LONDON (CP)—Employers of 1,000,000 striking industrial workers today agreed for the first time to negotiate directly with union leaders on their demands for a 10-per-cent wage increase. The employers' decision, announced in the House of Commons, raised hopes that the crippling work stoppage, affecting Britain's vital exports, might be settled soon.

Victoria Excluded From Metro Plan

The provincial government did not have the Greater Victoria area in mind when it drew up the "metro" provisions of the new Municipal Act. This was indicated by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black when he told the legislature Wednesday night: "Metro is not the answer in Greater Victoria in my humble opinion. Their answer is amalgamation."

Mr. Black was answering questions by P.A. Gibbs (Lib.-Oak Bay) on the metropolitan area plan spelled out in the new Municipal Act.

It became clear that the only area in the province likely to be encouraged by the province to enter a form of metropolitan union is the Lower Mainland.

The act provides that the minister may direct the councils of two or more adjacent municipalities to set up a joint committee to study metro. The minister may also direct the councils of two or more adjacent municipalities to set up a joint committee to study metro. ### ACADEMY AWARD CONTEST WINNERS KNOWN NEXT WEEK

Results of the Academy Awards Contest are expected to be announced at the beginning of next week.

Winners will be determined on the basis of the number of correct answers agreeing with the Academy Award winners as announced Wednesday night from Hollywood. (See page 23.)

The B.C. winner will be awarded an Oldsmobile 88 Holiday Hardtop. In addition, there are five fine prizes for the top local contestants.

The contest was sponsored by the Motion Picture Industry of B.C. in co-operation with The Times.

Cyprus Bishop Freed

New Peace Move Announced By U.K.

By RONALD WILLIAMS

LONDON (Reuters) —

Britain today freed exiled Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus and said talks on the colony's future will be held with him and other Cypriot representatives.

The government also offered terrorist leader Greek Col. George Grivas safe conduct out of Cyprus.

Makarios, leader of the Greek Cypriot movement for union with Greece, was deported a year ago to the Seychelle Islands for refusing to condemn terrorism.

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd told the House of Commons Makarios will be free to go anywhere except Cyprus, and passage from his Indian island home of exile is being arranged immediately. Three other Greek Orthodox clerics detained with him are also being released, Lennox-Boyd said.

Britain last week offered to release Makarios if he called for cessation of the two-year-old campaign by the terrorist organization, Ethniki Organosis Kyprion Agoniston National Organization of Cypriot combatants.

The archbishop's reply, published here today, said it is his sincere desire to see peace restored in Cyprus.

"I appeal to the EOKA organization and to the British government as well," Makarios said. Lennox-Boyd said in his statement that the state of emergency will not be lifted in Cyprus until Governor Sir John Harding feels it is safe to do so.

By PETER MURRAY

The newly-elected 25th Legislature of B.C. completed the business of its first session at 1:10 a.m. today and cleared the way for prorogation by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross this afternoon.

Two issues dominated the seven-week session—the Wenner-Gren agreement and Columbia River hydro—and both remained unsettled as the House prepared to rise.

The government did not make clear what concessions it intends to grant Swedish multimillionaire Axel Wenner-Gren in a 40,000-square mile chunk of northern B.C. or whether public or private interests shall harness the mighty Columbia.

Apart from these two major themes the session was marked by hassles over the Cassiar-Stewart Road, Sunday sport, aid to UBC, the Workmen's Compensation Board, and of course, "Chant's courthouses."

A new Municipal Act with some wide-reaching changes in local government was the most important single piece of legislation approved at the session.

Other important bills introduced by the government included a new motor-vehicle code, changes in the B.C. mining industry and the $28 tax rebate for homeowners.

The session started Feb. 7 with a rare opening day debate which kept the lieutenant-governor waiting close to half an hour before reading the Speech from the Throne.

The Opposition took the occasion to protest the government's firing of former legislative Sergeant-at-Arms E. A. Jamieson over the Cassiar-Stewart road dispute, and law clerk W. Berkeley Monteith.

Mr. Monteith claimed that he was dismissed because he refused to contribute to Socred party campaign funds.

The government countered that Mr. Monteith was replaced for acting on occasion as both legal adviser to the House-private bills committee, and petitioners before the committee.

NO SLOAN REPORT
The session was also notable for something that was missing—the Sloan Forestry Commission report.

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan had hoped to complete his report by Dec. 1 in time for the session, but found he was unable to meet the deadline. He is still at work on the monumental task.

If the report recommends important changes in the present sustained yield program, it is

HIGHLIGHTS

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of recommendations of the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting in its report issued today:

Appointment of a "board of broadcast governors" responsible for supervising all broadcasting in Canada, under Parliament.

Elimination of the present CBC board of governors, which now supervises operations of both the CBC and private stations.

The CBC would retain authority to direct private stations in the use of its "national service."

The federal government's policy of single-station TV operation in viewing areas should soon be abandoned but second stations should meet rigorous performance standards.

Proposed new system of regulation would not make any fundamental change in concept of existing system.

Federal treasury would contribute about $470,000,000 over the next six years to finance CBC expansion and operations, largely for TV.

There would be no licence on TV or radio receivers. Yield from a 15 per cent excise tax on radio and TV receivers—now going to the CBC for operations—would be used for capital purposes.

The CBC—which now gets its money year-to-year from Parliament—should be financed on a long-term basis founded generally on the amount of national consumer spending.

Canada's system of combining publicly and privately-owned broadcasting should be maintained.

Enforcement of broadcast regulations should be tightened. The regulatory body should not hesitate to cancel station licences for flagrant violations.

Development of more live Canadian programs should be encouraged, in both radio and TV.

The commission suggested the CBC abandon its Dominion radio network (Dominion is a secondary network).

Regulations for the program performance of private stations should not be based on a national minimum but on the capabilities of stations.

For the future, there should be a statutory prohibition against more than 20 per cent non-Canadian ownership in a Canadian broadcasting station.

Half the CBC's television service would be in color by 1963, following a start on color TV two years from now.

AGAINST NORMAN

'Red' Charges Raised Again

WASHINGTON (AP)—Counsel for the Senate sub-committee says if Canada takes the position that Canadian diplomat E. N. Norman never has been a Communist, this is contrary to information the FBI has given the U.S. state department.

A new chapter in the Senate internal security sub-committee's investigation of Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt, was made public today in the wake of a sharp protest by the Canadian government against the inquiry.

The new material was given out in the face of a state department request that it not be released because it "might be damaging to our relations with Canada." Joseph Reap, department press officer, said in response to queries that Undersecretary Christian A. Herter took that stand in a letter to sub-committee chairman James Eastland (Dem.-Miss.).

The department, after the Canadian protest, had said allegations in the hearing "do not represent opinions of the United States government."

Basic CBC System Little Changed— No TV Licence Fee

By JOHN LeBLANC

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A multitude of changes in Canada's radio and television setup—including more Canadian TV—is recommended today in the report of the royal commission on broadcasting.

But no basic change in the structure of Canadian broadcasting is called for in the report of the three-man body headed by R. M. Fowler of Montreal.

It proposes a new supervisory system for broadcasting, different in name but not far in function from the present one.

The federal government's single-station policy for TV is about ready for abandonment, the commission said, an innovation that would bring two stations to some viewing areas under certain conditions.

A new method of financing would be launched for the CBC—

to give it financial stability for operation and development over five years at a stretch—with the main funds coming out of Parliament's general revenues.

These public funds would amount to some $470,000,000 over the coming six years.

There would be no licence fee on TV or radio receivers, though the present 15-per-cent excise tax on receivers would continue, to be used for capital expansion. It now goes into CBC operating revenues.

Recommendations of the commission are merely advisory to the federal government but are expected to provide signposts for federal action on broadcasting in the next decade. The royal commission spent a year on the study.

No action on any of the proposals in the 150,000-word report is looked for at the present Parliament, expected to dissolve within a fortnight for a general election in June.

As a fundamental concept for its whole report, the commission was firm in its recommendation that Canada's broadcasting combination of publicly-owned and privately-owned broadcasting facilities should be maintained.

But it had a variety of suggestions including these:

1. Enforcement of broadcast regulations, should be tightened and its proposed "board of broadcast governors" should not hesitate to cancel station licences for flagrant violations.

2. Development of more live Canadian programs should be encouraged on radio and TV.

3. The CBC's French-language service should be extended.

4. There should be tougher standards for the program performance of private stations.

5. The CBC might abandon its Dominion radio network—secondary to the trans-Canada—which is made up of about 50 private stations taking programs from a Toronto CBC outlet.

6. The commission said that half the CBC's television service would be in color by 1963, and it estimated a start on color two years from now.

New Board of Broadcast Governors

On the more immediate question of how broadcasting is to be regulated—a top issue in commission hearings through 5 1/2 months last year—the commission proposed a shuffling and redefinition of functions now split between the 11-man CBC board of governors and the CBC management.

It proposed to set up a new "board of broadcast governors" distinct from the CBC and having supervisory authority over all broadcasting, including the CBC and private broadcasters.

Under this proposal, the whole 15-man personnel of the new board would be part-time, with the chairman getting $10,000 a year and the vice-chairman $5,000. Present full-time chairman of the CBC board of governors is A. D. Dunton, at $22,500.

The commission called for a new post of president of the CBC along with a general manager, which it now has, with their salaries to be set by the cabinet. Evident candidates for the presidency and general management would be Mr. Dunton and the present general manager, J. A. Oulmet.

Under the commission's proposals, the CBC would retain a strong measure of control over private stations. It could continue to demand that programs considered necessary to national service be carried by private stations.

But the board of broadcast governors would have over-riding authority.

CBC Single-Channel TV Policy Near End

OTTAWA (CP)—The Fowler royal commission of broadcasting today proposed stiff conditions for the licensing of two or more television stations in any given area.

The commission's report said the time "has come, or is near at hand," when the government's "single-channel" policy—the licensing of only one TV station in any city—should be abandoned.

But before this is done, the commission said, regulations should be passed to ensure that the programming of a second station will not be "substantially poorer" than that now offered by the national network.

Looking at the future of television in Canada, the three-man royal commission headed by R. M.

Fowler of Montreal said the CBC and private broadcasters should plan to increase present TV broadcasting hours and widen network coverage.

In broad terms, the commission suggested regulations should provide that while second stations could not produce as many "spectaculars" as the national network, it probably could provide greater content of local and regional programs.

There should be a set minimum of news reports, discussions of current events and services to such minority groups as farmers, children and music lovers.

"Whether or not such programs are capable of attracting commercial sponsorship."

KILLERS HUNTED IN DESERT

Paper Trail Left By Kidnap Victim

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Government officials said today troops and police have picked up a paper trail left by a pretty American woman kidnapped by bandit tribesmen who killed her husband and another United States official.

Government sources said they believe the band of about 12 nomads kidnapped Mrs. Anita Huovar Carroll, 35, of Issaquah, Wash., to "sell her on the Arab coasts of the Persian Gulf and the Gulf of Oman."

More than 1,000 Iranian troops and police were reported closing in on the bandits, fleeing across the Tangookheh Desert of the Gulf of Oman. They were ambushed by the bandits Sunday night and held off their attackers for a time with pistol fire.

Reports reaching the capital said the search force had "found little pieces of paper thrown away by Mrs. Carroll as she was forcibly taken away."

The reports said the hunters found the paper trail useful in their pursuit.

The slain Americans, Iranian officials said, were Mrs. Carroll's husband, Kevin, 37, development adviser for Kerman, Iran, and Brewster A. Wilson, 35, of Portland, Ore., a regional specialist for the Near East Foundation.

The Carrolls and Wilson were driving in a two-jeep party from Iranshahr to Port Chahbar, on the Gulf of Oman. They were ambushed by the bandits Sunday night and held off their attackers for a time with pistol fire.

later may "resolve any conflicts or inconsistencies" in the report and order a referendum.

A metropolitan government would be set up if a majority of the voters in each of two-thirds in number of the municipalities involved approve the plan.

TOO SMALL

"The government feels that Greater Victoria is too small an area to support both local councils and a super-council as provided under metro.

Under amalgamation all local councils would merge into one.

Amalgamation is provided for under section 25 of the new Municipal Act which states that when councils of two or more adjoining municipalities have each passed a resolution favoring union, the cabinet will bring it about.

But the initiative must come from the individual municipalities and not the minister, as under the metro plan.

Municipalities comprising the much larger area of the Lower Mainland would best have their interests looked after by metro, than complete amalgamation, the government feels.

LEADERSHIP NEED

Mr. Black said the Lower Mainland situation had been juggled about for the last four years and "leadership" is needed there.

He denied a claim by Mr. Gibbs that he was given "dictatorial powers" under the new act.

"I have no idea to push any one at all," Mr. Black said.

An education program will be carried out to persuade Lower Mainland citizens of the value of metro government, Mr. Black said.

"The people must be told the truth," he said. "We must not say metro will mean lower taxes because in some cases they will be increased."

BOOST IN CIVIC COSTS

Victoria aldermen will have to pare $500,000 from the over-all 1957 estimates to maintain the 1956 tax rate, city comptroller Dennis A. Young said Wednesday.

Taking into consideration all departmental preliminary budgets and $150,000 asked for added school costs, he said the increased expenditures indicated represent about eight mills on the city tax rate, or $750,000.

Revenue was expected to be up about three mills this year.

NORMAN CRIBBENS

IN THE LEGISLATURE

Sound, Fury Dies In Wee Sma' Hours

Everyone was so tired when Premier Bennett moved adjournment of the House early this morning that no one smiled — except the premier.

"May we ask what is in store for us this afternoon?" asked CCF leader Robert Strachan in funeral tones.

Looking as if he had just jumped out of bed, the premier replied:

"We are expecting a visit from Her Majesty's representative to prorogue this session of the legislature."

He looked and sounded as if he were announcing a Sunday school outing.

Mr. Bennett's bubbling vitality is the envy of many younger men in the legislature. Once or twice, as Wednesday's marathon sitting dragged into Thursday morning, the premier looked tired and drawn.

But this was only when business slowed to a routine tempo. The moment anyone attacked the government his face brightened, and he leaned forward in his chair as if he had a ringside seat at a bull fight.

Dowding Prepared to Talk for Hours

The weary hour that followed midnight was illumined with a little wit, as when Gordon Dowding (CCF-Burnaby) told the House he was prepared to "talk for hours" on the subject of verbal replies to members' questions placed on the order paper.

"I am sure the honorable member doesn't really feel like talking that long," replied Attorney-General Robert Bonner. "It is just that what he has already said seems like an hour."

A government spokesman forecast that the 899 sessions of the new Municipal Act

Uphill Takes Look From New Angle

Sitting between two reporters, 83-year-old Mr. Uphill glared wond at his colleagues on the floor of the House and started taking notes.

"Now I know how you fellows feel," he said.

Up came a note from W. J. Asselstine, former minister of mines in the Liberal government, now Social Credit member for Atlin.

"I have viewed the press gallery for many years," Mr. Asselstine wrote, "and never has it been graced with a more intelligent and impartial atmosphere."

A reporter offered to help Mr. Uphill down the steep stairs from the gallery, but the veteran member from Fernie brushed him aside.

"I'll fall down when I'm ready," he said.

Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal was guest of honor at the afternoon session and if he were announcing a Sunday school outing.

would pass third reading in an hour and a half.

He under-estimated the persistence of the Opposition, for it took three hours and five minutes and there is no doubt the Opposition would have talked longer if they had been permitted.

George Gregory, Liberal member for Victoria, expressed the general feelings of the Opposition when after the government members had shouted "No" to half a dozen amendments he said:

"We seem to be wasting our time."

Private Radio Hails Plan For New Control

QUEBEC (CP)—The Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters in a statement today said the Fowler commission report indicated recognition of the "important position" of private broadcasting in recommendations for a new broadcast governing body as well as licensing of competitive TV stations.

The statement was issued by the CARTB board of directors following the first published summary of the commission's report.

SECRET OUT

Minister Served Time For Murder

HACKENSACK, N.J. (CP)—Pastor J. Jerry Cacopardo, 46, of the Reformed Christian Church, wondered today how his congregation and neighbors would take the news that he was a convicted murderer.

Residents in this city of 30,000 knew Cacopardo only as a hard-working student who held a pastorate and studied for the ministry while supporting his wife and two small children.

They did not know until Wednesday that Cacopardo had spent 15 years in prison, part of a 30-year-to-life sentence for the second-degree murder of a Brooklyn woman in 1937 in a complicated family case.

Governor Averell Harriman of New York let out the "secret" when he announced Cacopardo need no longer observe the life-long parole restrictions that had been imposed on him when he left prison.

Widow's Life Extended 2 Years, Crown Admits

LONDON (CP)—Counsel for Dr. John Bodkin Adams today drew an admission from a Crown medical expert that the rich old lady Adams is accused of drugging to death lived longer than might be normally expected after suffering a stroke.

Dr. Arthur Henry Douthwaite agreed under cross-examination that the wealthy widow "exceeded the reasonable prognosis of her expectation of life" by at least two years.

Earlier, defence counsel disclosed that the 81-year-old patient was given injections of morphia even before Adams took over the case—and suggested she might have already been a drug addict.

Douthwaite, steadfastly critical of morphia and especially heroin in treating strokes in elderly persons, agreed that the doctor on the spot had an advantage in making a "prognosis" of a case.

Defence counsel insisted "you can't worry about drug addiction" if the life expectancy is short. But the expert contended: "I have said previously that Nursing records on the treatment of Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell when she first suffered a stroke in 1948 were offered as evidence at the trial of the 58-year-old Adams, charged with killing the woman to benefit from her estate.

Dr. Arthur Henry Douthwaite, Harley Street specialist, had testified there was "no justification" for such injections and had accused Dr. Adams of "murderous intent" in prescribing them.

Defence counsel Geoffrey

Lawrence, speaking in a purring voice but with a ring of sarcasm, asked the Crown expert whether "the field of condemnation that you are spreading from this witness box" included the doctor who treated the aging woman before Dr. Adams took the case.

"If that treatment was for the stroke, yes," replied the tall, grey-haired specialist, senior physician at London's Guy's Hospital.

"Good gracious me," exclaimed the defence lawyer. Mrs. Morrell died in November, 1950—two and one-half years after she suffered a stroke. Adams signed a certificate recording death by cerebral thrombosis.

Mayor Defends Fire Crews After Strachan Criticism

City leaders today snapped back at opposition leader Robert Strachan who said in the legislature Wednesday the city fire department could not adequately protect government buildings.

He was commenting on the fire which swept through the "Birdcage"—B.C.'s first legislative buildings—early Wednesday.

"I was disappointed at the efficiency, the number of men available and the volume of water on tap," he said.

Mayor Percy Scurrell said Victoria has a "very efficient, excellent fire department," and scored Mr. Strachan for "not knowing what he was talking about."

NOT UNDER-MANNED

The mayor said he has no reason to believe the fire department is under-manned or under-equipped.

"We could have a lot of things a lot better," if the B.C. government paid taxes on its city property. "It would make a terrific difference—$250,000 a year."

Chairman of the city council's fire committee, Ald. Austin Curtis, defended the fire department, and also scored Mr. Strachan's views.

Fire chief Frank Briers said the fire was attended by all available equipment—a pumper, a service truck, an aerial truck, two additional service trucks, and 20 men.

He said he has been trying to get more men and equipment for some time.

"I am now trying to get 14 men to cover Victoria West while the Point Ellice bridge is out."

City council has not acted on his recommendations, however, and has made tentative arrangements for protection by the RCN fire department in Esquimalt.

LOW RATES

The B.C. Underwriters' Association today said Victoria shares the lowest fire insurance rates in the province. Rates are based on quality of fire protection available. Victoria falls in the same category as Vancouver.

In the legislature, Mr. Strachan also suggested it may be time for establishment of a parliament fire protection unit by the government.

"I am forced to the conclusion that the city cannot give adequate protection to government buildings," Mr. Strachan said.

BUDGET CUT

He added that last year the Victoria fire department's budget had been cut by $61,000.

Ald. J. Donald Smith (S.C. Victoria) said Mr. Strachan's criticisms of the fire department were "uncalled for."

"We have the best fire department in Canada," he declared.

"Do you think the government should contribute to Victoria's fire protection?" Mr. Strachan asked.

Ald. Smith refused to give a definite answer to the question. "It is not a question that can be answered yes or no. There are many considerations involved. But I still say our fire department is doing a good job."

Racket Probe 'Not Through With Beck'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate investigators turned today from public to private checking into their charge that teamster president Dave Beck misappropriated $320,000 in union funds.

While the union leader headed homeward, they dug for the answers which Beck refused to provide on the grounds his answers might tend to incriminate him.

"We are not through with Mr. Beck," said John McClellan (Dem.-Ark.), chairman of the special Senate committee conducting the inquiry.

McClellan recessed the hearings indefinitely Wednesday after accusing Beck of "flagrant disrespect for honest unionism" and "arrogant contempt" for members of his teamsters union.

Egypt Stands Firm On Canal Toll Plan

CAIRO (AP)—President Nasser's chief political aide, Wing Commander Ali Sabry, said today Egypt will allow no foreign supervision whatsoever over the Suez Canal.

In an interview with the newspaper Al Shaab, Sabry said the canal will be open to large ships April 10 and that full details of Egypt's plan for operation of the waterway are expected to be announced about April 4.

Sabry said British and French ships will be allowed to go through the canal as long as they follow the regulations and procedures for all ships. The key factor—presumably—will be whether they will pay tolls to Egypt.

Sabry said Egypt had not recognized the Canal Users Association the West formed last summer "because it includes some of the users but leaves out the majority of countries whose ships or trade go through the canal." Apparently he referred to the Arab oil-producing nations, whose output makes up the bulk of the canal traffic.

Mr. Bennett's Letter

IN HIS LETTER TO THE TIMES yesterday Premier Bennett denies one of our statements about the provincial debt and ignores the other. He also attacks Mr. Gibbs, member of the Legislature for Oak Bay who, he says, does not understand the Government's bookkeeping.

Mr. Gibbs answers Mr. Bennett in a letter on this page today. Since Mr. Gibbs is well able to conduct his own controversy with the Premier, the public can judge between them. The Times welcomes the opportunity to print the views of these distinguished public servants in full.

As to Mr. Bennett's attack on this newspaper, the facts seem to be clear in the Premier's own budget speech of February 22.

He says (page 13) that in the last and in the present fiscal year the Government is setting aside about $36,000,000 out of its surplus revenues for the purpose of paying off direct debt which he hopes to eliminate by 1962.

Mr. Bennett quarrels with our statement that all this money will not necessarily be used for the repayment of debt and that all or part of it can be used for other purposes, as required, even for the ordinary operating costs of government. This, says Mr. Bennett, is not true because money thus set aside as sinking funds is legally sacred and can be used only for debt redemption.

But in his budget speech Mr. Bennett explained his plan as follows: "Prudent and far-sighted management requires that, over and above normal depreciation and obsolescence reserves, there be that further reserve which, when combined with elasticity in the use and application of current funds, will prevent impairment or unwarranted contraction in the provision of basic public services in the event of an economic recession or national emergency. This is particularly true in the management of Government fiscal affairs. Of all the ways and means available to achieve this purpose, none commends itself more than supplementary debt redemption from revenue surplus."

"Apart from their primary purpose, supplementary installments, as and when made, immediately earn interest; they could temporarily be used to supplement the lack of loanable open-market funds to government agencies during a tight-money cycle, and, SHOULD CRITICAL CONDITIONS WARRANT IT, COULD EVEN PERMIT THE TEMPORARY DEFERMENT OF FIXED ANNUAL PROVISIONS."

We do not know, of course, what Mr. Bennett meant to say in this passage but his meaning, to the ordinary reader, is quite clear.

He says, first, that he will lend his extra debt redemption funds to government agencies, presumably the P.G.E. Railway, the Toll Bridge Authority, the Power Commission and the local school boards if they cannot borrow elsewhere. This is exactly what we said in the first place.

Secondly, Mr. Bennett says that the extra debt redemption funds "could even permit the temporary deferment of fixed annual provisions." In plain English this must mean that, in an emergency, the Government would not spend its existing sinking funds, and cannot do so by law, but would not set aside the customary annual sinking fund installments because their latest addition raises them above legal requirements.

If this be so, it is mere quibbling to say that the special fund is sacred and unexpended for anything but debt redemption. Of course these actual dollars cannot be spent otherwise but if normal sinking fund installments are suspended temporarily the result is to reduce the rate of our debt redemption. That result would be the same as if part of the special sinking funds were used for current purposes.

In that case the Government holds its sinking funds intact but uses for ordinary running expenses the money that otherwise would be used to pay off debt. If the $36,000,000 is sacred its equivalent can be spent out of another pocket for any purpose that seems desirable.

Mr. Bennett ignores our other statement—that he is really not reducing debt at all, despite his large sinking fund provisions. For the indirect debt is rising rapidly as the direct debt falls.

Mr. Bennett denies that the borrowings of the Government's various agencies represent debt. He calls them merely contingent liabilities which are supported by the P.G.E.'s revenues, for example, or by the Toll Bridge Authority's tolls, or the Power Commission's earnings or the local school taxes.

Yet his budget speech itself shows that the liabilities of these agencies are indeed a responsibility of the Government. For he proposes to lend his sinking funds, if necessary, to his agencies. When they cannot borrow satisfactorily in the money market they must be financed by their parent, the Government.

To be sure, they will probably repay these loans, but where will the money for this purpose come from? It will come from the people. They and they alone will provide the annual interest charges and finally the repayment of principal. And the fact that the Government must bail them out by lending them some of the provincial sinking funds proves that their debt, though indirect, is truly a provincial debt, legally guaranteed by the Government and financed by the public.

Mr. Bennett's large provision of sinking funds, his attempt to pay off the direct debt by 1962, is an excellent policy and was welcomed here when it was announced. It cannot disguise, however, the gigantic increase in the indirect debt. It cannot alter by a cent the public's obligation to support and repay the total debt later on.

A Home for Hanna

MR. JUSTICE HARRY SULLIVAN has ruled invalid the deportation order issued by the Canadian Immigration Department on Christian Hanna.

This means that the man without a country may remain for the time being at least in Canada. It does not, as the judge pointed out, necessarily mean that the wife has now established his permanent right to residence here. Another order by the department, properly drawn and executed, could send him wandering again.

A point of law has been decided on a particular order. That is all.

But Immigration Minister Pickersgill would be going contrary to the will of the majority of Canadians if he were to issue another order intended to force Hanna from this country. It is perfectly legal for Mr.

Pickersgill to take such action. The department has every right in law to allow into or exclude from Canada potential immigrants.

In this particular case, however, the Canadian people have recognized Hanna as a cause célèbre—a homeless man looking for sanctuary. Public opinion, responding to warm human instincts, is in favor of giving him a chance to live here.

Mr. Hanna has ceased to be merely a case for the immigration department's routine consideration. He has become a symbol of homelessness. Canadians want to give him a home. Mr. Pickersgill would be moving contrary to their wishes and their finer sentiments if he took further action against the man.

The minister says he is neither "landing" nor "deporting" him. But this ambiguous statement is not good enough.

Compromise in Sight?

ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE Cypriot religious leader, Archbishop Makarios, will be freed from exile in the Seychelles Islands gives hope that an early solution to the vexatious Cyprus problem may soon be found.

The Greek Cypriot rebels have long insisted that they will negotiate peace only through the Archbishop, who was taken from the island for inciting his followers to violence. Britain, on the other hand, had said that Makarios would not be set free until he had denounced the EOKA terrorists. That position has now been altered, and the British Government says it is satisfied with a statement which falls short of "the clear appeal for which it asked."

The situation is complicated, of course, by the interests of both Greece and Turkey in the Cypriots' demand for independence. A quarter of the island's population is Turkish and appears to need protection from the Greek majority. At the same time, Greece and Turkey are members of NATO and as such their continued co-operation is a matter of concern to Britain.

It is interesting to note that NATO itself has been offered as a means of conciliation and Britain has accepted the offer in principle. It remains to be seen whether the EOKA extremists will curb their demands within limits to which Britain, with its own and Turkish interests at stake, can agree.

The Plot Thickens

THE public which reads the news of the national election campaign these days must feel with even more than its usual confusion. What the historic significance of this election may be is a matter best left to the historians. But you can say one thing for the campaign in its infancy—it has been born in chaos and in its two or three brief months of life is unlikely to reach the level of consciousness. Nevertheless, a certain wild and frantic logic can be detected, at least on one sector of this disordered battlefield. And that sector is based solidly on Victoria.

It is here that the grand strategy of Social Credit was first conceived; here it has been drastically reshaped; and from here that it is now being directed. One may like or dislike it, but the strategy cannot be denied.

THE strategy is directed primarily not against the Liberal Government at Ottawa but against the Conservative Opposition. This is perfectly logical and, indeed, unavoidable. For the first obstacle facing Social Credit is not the Liberal Party, which will remain in business whatever happens at the June poll, but the Conservative Party.

If Social Credit is to get anywhere in national politics it must destroy and replace the Conservative Party. Once the Conservative Party is replaced, then strike for office at a future election.

It will be fatal to Social Credit if the Conservative Party can make substantial gains in this election and thus prove finally that it is the only available alternative to the Liberal Party. Once the Conservative Party is revived after more than twenty years of failure there will be no room for the Social Credit splinter. It will have no national future.

ON the other hand, if the Conservative Party fails to revive, if it can be further weakened in this election, then it is likely to begin a final decline as its followers lose hope. Then, and not until then, will Social Credit begin to look even faintly like a national party, attracting those who are opposed to the Liberal Party.

Mr. Diefenbaker knows this very well. He knows that his party's long-run danger comes not from the Liberal Party but from the split in the Opposition vote. The Liberal Party may well defeat the Conservative Party in this election but will not thereby endanger its future. A growing Social Credit Party, however, will certainly endanger the Conservatives' future by splitting and, later on, replacing them as the real Opposition.

A FEW weeks ago Mr. Diefenbaker attempted to appeal to the Social Credit voters in the west by adopting, almost word for word, the federal policies first proclaimed by Premier Bennett. That gambit seems to have failed completely. The Social Credit Party's reply is to plan the nomination of candidates in most parts of the nation, and especially in the old Conservative stronghold of Ontario.

At first sight this may seem to be the act of desperate and stupid men. It is nothing of the sort. The Social Credit leaders know exactly what they are doing.

They do not expect to elect many candidates east of Alberta but that is not their immediate purpose. Their immediate purpose is to damage the Conservative Party and this they can do by splitting the Opposition vote. They will split it wherever they nominate; and if this must generally benefit Liberal candidates in the short run it will benefit Social Credit (or so its leaders hope) in the long run.

THE Social Credit candidate in most places is thus like a batter in a baseball game who is ordered to make a sacrifice hit. He cannot reach first base himself but he can assist the players already on the bases, the players of Alberta mainly, and a few in British Columbia. He can set up the next play for 1961.

The Liberal Party, as a party, is not endangered in the least by this election. Whether it wins or loses, the party remains intact and strong. For the Conservative and Social Credit Parties, however, the election is absolutely vital.

The Conservative Party must demonstrate that it remains the true Opposition and that it can provide an alternative to the Government, perhaps not now but later on. The Social Credit Party must prove at all costs that the Conservative Party is on the way out, that Social Credit is on the way in, certainly not now but much later on.

WE are thus witnessing not merely the usual struggle between the two national parties but an internal and probably lethal struggle within the Opposition. The former Conservatives of British Columbia who boarded Social Credit as a convenient vehicle are now engaged in a supreme attempt to ruin their old party.

This is not a pretty sight but it should be examined frankly by the voters if they are to realize what they are doing at the polls.

A large number of Canadians, perhaps a slight numerical majority, are opposed to the present Government. Yet they cannot possibly unseat it if they are divided and split their votes between three Opposition Parties, including the CCF. This is not a matter of politics but of mathematics.

MR. DIEFENBAKER is absolutely right in saying that only the Conservative Party, at the present point, can offer any serious challenge to the Government; that for the purpose of defeating the Government all votes cast for the Social Credit and CCF Parties are wasted.

Social Credit knows this as well as Mr. Diefenbaker but it is thinking in other terms. It is not attempting to defeat the Government at present. It is out to wreck the Conservative Party by stages and the next stage is scheduled for June.

As Our Readers See It

Mr. Gibbs Replies

After reading Mr. Bennett's letter of March 22, 1957, it seems to me that he is most concerned with the technical skills required in the management of sinking funds.

He is quite obviously abusive of those who do not profess to be omniscient, yet have the temerity to question his policies.

On March 8th, I was discussing and objecting to his new policy for supplementing sinking funds for debt redemption. The votes to which he refers were not under discussion, and actually were discussed on Tuesday, March 26th—two weeks after the policy debate.

Your editorial related that "he can use this money to pay public services if his revenues should drop." Mr. Bennett said in his budget speech the proposed supplements would permit him, in a recession or in an emergency, to discontinue paying into the sinking fund the moneys required by contract with the bondholders. What is that but enabling Mr. Bennett to use the sinking fund money collected annually from taxpayers for public services? His policy provides that $30,000,000 be collected from the taxpayers—IN ADVANCE—in the years 1956-58.

Mr. Bennett completely ignores and fails in his letter to refute the nub of my argument that he may use the $36,000,000 of taxpayers' money to pay contractors' bills and at the same time create a debt of the same amount. Your editorial put that in different words by stating "These agencies are apparently coming to the Government for money, and the Government not only has guaranteed their borrowings, but is ready to finance them out of its own funds"—which fairly summarizes my argument.

There is some evidence supporting that viewpoint; the sinking fund investments in 1952 included only 25 per cent provincial bonds, with approximately 75 per cent Dominion bonds, whereas, at March 31st, 1956, the condition was reversed—viz. 75 per cent provincial bonds and only 25 per cent Dominion bonds in the sinking fund.

Fluoridation

Your editorial of the 14th urging adoption of a fluoridation measure over the pessimism of Mr. G. K. Sammon, chairman, Victoria-Esquimalt Union Board of Health, who deems the cause at present hopeless, is contradicted in principle by your brilliant editorial of March 23rd. I venture the opinion that Mr. Sammon's pessimism is fully justified, because, for one thing, Canada's sense of justice is distinctly averse to being regimented, and everybody—even fluoridation proponents—demand freedom to go about their own business unmolested. Moreover, fluoridation has been ruled illegal in two of Canada's provincial supreme courts, and another ruling that "it is immoral and legally wrong."

Fluoridation of a community water supply violates a peoples' right of choice.

Sorrowful Warning

On Friday, March 15, 1957, my five-year-old son was injured by the pellet of an air gun striking him in the eye while he was playing with two other youngsters.

Your paper carried a story on Saturday, in which it stated that the accident was not serious.

As it is, my son is still in hospital with a very serious eye injury, one that will probably cost him the sight of one eye.

I thought that by writing this letter to you it might help to prevent other terrible accidents of this nature. If only parents would consider the damage that can be inflicted by weapons or toys of this nature, I am sure that they would

It is the prerogative of the sinking fund trustees, of which Mr. Bennett is the chairman, to invest our moneys in P.G.E. bonds, school bonds and Toll Bridge Authority bonds. The change in sinking fund investments since 1952 is indicative of Mr. Bennett's policy.

Mr. Bennett drew attention in his budget speech to the lack of money in the open market for his government agencies—in other words—private investors are attracted by more lucrative investments than those offered by our government agencies.

With $150,000,000 of government agency commitments, Mr. Bennett, under such circumstances, is confronted with a dilemma, and is obliged to choose from the alternatives:

- (1) offer a higher rate (possibly 5½ per cent) to private investors for agency borrowings;
- (2) borrow, at probably 5 per cent for direct provincial obligations;
- (3) tax the people to raise the money for transfer to the sinking fund trustees, who in turn may use our tax money to buy agency bonds so that the agencies may pay the contractors with our money.

Mr. Bennett and his supporters chose alternative No. 3.

On the votes to which Mr. Bennett refers, I contended that the supplements were entirely unnecessary, and stated the following reasons:

The sinking fund is in excess of legal requirements; the Provincial Government has investments of $56,000,000 in addition to the sinking fund investments of $56,000,000 (which is assuredly ample supplementary protection for the bondholders); it is unnecessary to take $36,000,000 from the people for this purpose, and the money should be used for reduction of taxes or adjustments of pensions.

Mr. Bennett studiously avoided comment on your editorial remarks re the inflationary aspect of his fiscal policy.—but I heartily concur in your views.

ARCHIE GIBBS,

not have one in the house under any circumstances.

I was informed by the police officer that air-rifles are not considered an offensive weapon. My opinion is that any weapon that can cause such damage is an offensive weapon, and should be "outlawed" under the Criminal Code as other firearms are.

I believe that if this could be, many parents would breathe a sigh of relief when they send their youngsters out to play, as my wife did on that Friday.

Where Rides the 'Neutral'?

My son (who is no chicken) said after he had read your "Open Letter to Wenner-Gren," "I agree with every word of it."

I was greatly surprised to hear this wholehearted approval of your views on this vital matter. Adverse criticism of events political and the press comments thereon, being his usual reactions to what he reads.

I, too, had previously read your open letter and had decided to write expressing my own humble agreement with your findings.

Premier Bennett's boastful claim that "twenty-one are for it" (the Wenner-Gren deal) is poppycock, and on a par with similar wishy thinking and unfounded statements.

In the event of a third world war—no one can deny such a possibility—how would the Wenner-Gren's ship of neutrality ride? Doubtless with a list to port or starboard, as seemeth most expedient among neutral powers even now.

FROM WASHINGTON

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The Bermuda Harvest

OUR knowledge of what went on at Bermuda is, as this is written, very meagre, and so it is likely to remain until we have the commentary from London and Washington by men who have been talked to off the record.

Yet it would be surprising if anything surprising comes out that is not already indicated by the official communiqué. This says, if I read it correctly, that the basic Anglo-American Atlantic alliance for the defence of Western Europe is intact and quite solid. The reduction of military forces which the British are planning to make is to be compensated by the American offer to supply new high-powered weapons, such as guided missiles.

Beyond this basic alliance, which is also the core of NATO, the old partnership is, as they say in diplomacy, fluid. For the Pacific and for Japan and as far south as Vietnam, there is no partnership but rather an American sphere of influence.

In the Middle East and in Africa there is not a concerted policy. There are fairly well-defined common purposes, and there are commitments, which are not rigid or very strict, to consult. But there are very considerable differences of opinion as to what the situation really is and considerable differences as to what we ought to do.

Dulles Line

We may say, I think, that at Bermuda the British conceded that Western policy in the Middle East should for the present follow the line laid down by the president and Secretary Dulles. This acceptance of American leadership was not, however, unreserved.

Whatever may be said of Britain's loss of influence in the Arab world, it is a British vital interest to have access to the oil of the Persian Gulf area. Although there were no warnings or threats of any kind, there was a distinct implication at Bermuda that Britain would follow American leadership in dealing with the Arab states as long as, but no longer than, its vital interests are not sacrificed.

A most important consequence of Bermuda is that the president and Mr. Dulles, having been conceded the right to lead and to administer their own rather than an agreed policy, have now become definitely responsible for the consequences. They are already responsible, as a result of their one-sided pressure, for the security of Israel.

Beneath the bland and polite surface of the Bermuda communiqué, one can read that they have acquired the same kind of responsibility for the security of British, indeed of Western European, vital interests in the canal and the oil of the Middle East.

The problem of negotiating with Nasser is, we have come to realize, inordinately difficult because, as things have developed, we have deprived ourselves of the power to bargain with him.

Specific Proof

We have given him a guarantee that we will not use force. We have given him specific proof that we will not allow Britain, France and Israel to use force. We have conceded that the UN has no independent authority and that it can act only with his consent. We have given him reason to believe that there is little likelihood of our agreeing to use sanctions against him.

On the other hand, we have very little to offer him as a reward for substantial concessions.

Under these conditions it is unfair to expect Mr. Hammarskjöld to wring from Nasser the concessions which Nasser is under no pressure to concede. The administration is well advised, no doubt, to try to negotiate with President Nasser through Mr. Hammarskjöld. But we must never lose sight of the fact that while Mr. Hammarskjöld may be the most acceptable negotiator, he has no bargaining power of his own beyond that which the United States possesses.

We ought not, therefore, to allow the world to think that we have abdicated our own responsibility and are leaving everything to Mr. Hammarskjöld. For it is only as we accept the responsibility of restoring our power to bargain with Nasser that Mr. Hammarskjöld can be expected to negotiate successfully.

Don't Fence Me In

I GUESS I'm getting hardened, because last Monday was this column's third anniversary, and I never even noticed it.

Instead, I noticed that Monday's column had a typographical error that turned my hair from sprinkled grey to almost snowy white.

Where I had written "it's short-sighted, if not stupid, to refuse to study other religious faiths," the printed column omitted the words "to refuse," so that what remained was the antithesis of all I was trying to say.

Normally, I laugh over such errors because my typing is so wild that only a genius can decipher it. But this time it hit me where it hurts. And I'm not going on record as saying that it's stupid to acquire additional knowledge on any serious subject.

In this bureaucratic age when, one by one, our freedoms are being whittled away, I'll always be in there pitching for the right to read, hear, see and think what I want.

I grow more and more fed up with people who try to fence me in. (Give me another 10 years and I'll be a ripstitching Victorian, won't I?)

It infuriates me that the British are allowed to see "Baby Doll" while we callow Canadians are denied the chance to exercise our own judgment.

Personally, I don't like the films of Tennessee Williams plays because I've had an overdose of studies in neurotic and frustrated failure. Even Magnani the Magnificent could not redeem "The Rose Tattoo" so far as I was concerned. But I wish I lived in a country where I could see "Baby Doll" and judge for myself.

As to reading what we want, I guess we all remember what happened in Victoria at the time of the Library Board crisis.

To me, the brightest part of that strange hassle was the way Victoria's intellectuals rallied to the cause of academic freedom. It cheered me up considerably to see the people of little faith being smacked down right and left.

Because it seems to me that man's right to knowledge is most important.

It is especially important in the field of politics. And that's something which our present provincial government might do well to remember when "responsible" ministers blandly refuse to answer questions from the other side of the House.

But that—despite the Social Credit Halo—is getting away from people who refuse to study religions that are different from their own. (You should see some of the letters I've had in the past!) Surely, in this shrinking world of the 20th century, it's essential that we should try to understand the religions which mean so much to our newly-acquired neighbors? How else are we going to understand those neighbors, and some of the "queer" things that they do?

I can't see how, nowadays, anyone can be in favor of religious fencing-in.

But two consecutive columns on this subject are enough. As another columnist wittily remarked, "Pardon me, but my obsession's showing!"

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Gallstone Operations

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

When I was a young man in medicine, I always ordered an operation for gallstones because that was what I had been taught to do. But as I grew older and saw hundreds of persons with perfectly silent gallstones which never bothered them, and when I saw at countless autopsies that persons who died of a pneumonia or a heart attack or a stroke had had harmless gallstones for most of their life, I lost my enthusiasm for operations. Today I advise operations only when the patient is getting colics and having a lot of pain or flatulence or abdominal distress. Sometimes when a man or woman has heart disease of a certain type plus trouble with the gallbladder, the removal of this organ brings great relief, not only in the abdomen, but up in the region of the heart as well.

I used to be influenced by the worry many physicians have as to the possibility that gallstones might eventually produce cancer of the gallbladder. But since I have read insurance statistics showing that among the hundreds of gallstones-carrying people who were insured years ago the final mortality has been only some 1.4 per cent higher than in persons without known gallbladder disease, I have quit worrying about cancer due to gallstones.

I used to fear that disease in the gallbladder might eventually injure the liver, but today I doubt if it does this often enough so that we need worry about it. When a patient persists in worrying about some possible but small danger, I tell him that the danger of being hurt in an auto accident is much greater.

RETARDED CHILDREN CAN BE HELPED

Because sometimes I comment on the fact that a number of retarded children have inherited their difficulty from someone else in the family who has some disease of the nervous system (usually not feeble-mindedness), quite a few persons have written angrily to say that I have done the cause of retarded children a terrible disservice. They accuse me of implying that when feeble-mindedness is inherited it is hopeless and nothing can be done. Of course, I never implied that or said that. Actually, for the last four years I have been trying in every way I could to help mothers with retarded children to learn how to help them and teach them to be useful and perhaps even self-supporting. Every time I find an instructive book that the mothers of retarded children can use, I comment on it.

Now I find on my desk a delightful book called "Retarded Children Can Be Helped," written by Maya Pines, with a remarkable series of photographs by that master of his profession, Cornell Capa (Chanel Press, Great Neck, N.Y.). In the book one sees children at play and at work, learning to do many useful things.

On page 70, the authors say that 67 per cent of retarded children could be taught even to hold a paying job. Many can perform happily certain monotonous tasks in a factory which highly intelligent persons might find too boring. A child with a mental age of five and an I.Q. of as low as 33 can be taught to wash dishes, to sandpaper furniture, to scrub and polish floors, to put laundry through a mangle, or to weave with a loom. A person who has never grown mentally beyond the age of six can mow a lawn, mix cement, assist in laying bricks, handle freight, make brushes, or do simple work in a laundry. A lad with a mental age of seven can be taught to help in repairing shoes, to assist a blacksmith, to run a plow, to do simple carpentry, to cane chairs, to do rough painting, to knit neckties and scarves, to pack small articles in a factory, and to perform domestic chores.

Someone with the mental age of eight may do much of the work about a farm. He can make toys, do stencil work, put together dresses cut out by others, and do plain ironing and other domestic work.

With a mental age of from nine to ten, and an I.Q. between 60 and 66, a man or woman can work at a number of jobs in a factory; he can repair furniture, make pottery, cut out and make dresses, do plain cooking and panining, sew on buttons, or embroider, or work with an electrician or a steam-fitter.

SYNOPSIS — Cloudy cover was fairly general overnight over northern sections of the province. Southern sections on the other hand remained almost clear.

However, cloud is spreading rapidly up the U.S. coast and should cover southern B.C. this morning and reach much of the rest of the province during the afternoon and evening. Some showers, too, will occur in coastal areas tonight.

Friday will be generally cloudy and more showers will occur in coastal areas in the evening as another disturbance nears the coast. However, only few showers are expected for the interior.

Taxes, Pensions Under Tory Fire

(From Times News Services)

Federal budget concessions to taxpayers were described Wednesday as so small as to make one wonder whether they were seriously made.

And furthermore, confided Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (P.C. Hamilton West), increases of $6 monthly in pensions for the aged, blind, disabled and others announced in the budget would not provide "even half a loaf."

"In fact, I think it would be stretching the point to say this is a slice of bread,"

'Wants to Get Its Finger in Pie'

Mr. Hansell said Dr. McCann told Social Credit Leader Low March 8 he would keep an open mind on the taxability of the "dividend." But March 18 the minister had informed the House that in the opinion of revenue department officials the dividend would be taxable.

"It occurs to me that the government wants to get its finger in the pie," said Mr. Hansell. He estimated that application of income tax to the dividends would bring about $2,000,000 into the federal treasury for this year.

In addition, Albertans would likely be spending the estimated $22 payment each eligible person would get and through the 10 per cent federal sales tax, Ottawa would get another chunk of the "pie."

Mr. Hansell said Dr. McCann could have waited until the end of the year to make up his mind. That way representations could have been made by the Alberta government, possibly, and others interested in the taxability of the dividends.

Dr. McCann interrupted to say he had made his statement in reply to questions. Answers could not be withheld for a year. But he would still be "glad" to hear representations from anyone on the matter.

Mrs. Fairclough also recommended the misrepresentation as applied by the Income Tax Act be qualified. Courts had interpreted the word to mean taxpayers were guilty of misrepresentation when the mistake was made innocently. This possibility should be avoided.

Mrs. Fairclough urged that wives be allowed to claim half their husbands' estate as an exemption from succession duties, and that the present level of $50,000 at which such taxes take effect be considered as a basic exemption. At present no succession duty is charged on estates under $50,000, but the tax is applied to the full value of estates over that amount.

William Bryce (C.C.F., Selkirk) said pensions to single veterans and widows' allowances are inadequate and should be increased.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday he never received an appeal from the British Liberal party asking him to urge Prime Minister Macmillan to stop H-bomb tests scheduled for Christmas Island in the Pacific next month.

Replying to Colin Cameron (C.C.F. Nanaimo), he said the tests were discussed at the Bermuda conference and that the joint communiqué issued after the talks referred to them.

"... we felt there was some progress being made in the direction of safeguarding, perhaps in a more specific way, against the dangers to health that might be involved in further experimental explosions," Mr. St. Laurent said.

Ottawa City should be made to do some housecleaning before it gets federal grants in lieu of municipal taxes, a Liberal senator from Manitoba said Wednesday.

Senator Thomas Creer told the Senate banking committee that federal payment of the equivalent of municipal taxes is "an extremely dangerous principle." He spoke during consideration of a bill to provide between $16,000,000 and $20,000,000 for such payments, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1957.

He said the $3,500,000 that Ottawa would receive should be made "conditional on the city doing a little housecleaning of its streets."

A British expert is en route to Ottawa to discuss details of the sale of $115,000,000 worth of Canadian uranium to Britain over a five-year period, Trade Minister Howe said.

Mr. Howe, replying to Howard Green (P.C. Vancouver-Quadra) said one of the details to be decided is whether the uranium will be in the form of oxide or metal.

He said the sale was under negotiation for almost a year.

Barren Year Needed For Black Currants

Last week I was looking at new-planted black currant bushes which had not been severely pruned.

The owner, as so many of us have done in the past, hoped for at least a small crop of fruit this season.

Years ago I made the same mistake and lost the crops of four seasons before courage was as Jack Beastall cumulated to prune the bushes severely, forego fruit for a year, and allow the plants to establish themselves.

We gardeners lose a lot of plants, or condemn them to years of little more than survival, through our eagerness to see the first bloom or fruit.

Even when plants have flowered or fruited the previous year, it is often the best policy to limit or prevent flowering the year after moving.

No matter how carefully we dig a plant, hundreds of fine hair roots are lost, and these are the roots which pick up the food.

Preventing flowering permits the plant to become thoroughly established. This is to be preferred to draining its last bit of energy by trying to produce seed.

Each branch of a newly planted black currant should be cut back to the third bud above the soil.

These buds will make strong new growths to carry the fruit next year.

Sacrificing this year's few currants leads to bumper crops in the years to come.

NEW YORK (AP) — Murray Garsson, 68, one of two brothers imprisoned after the collapse of their $70,000,000 Second World War munitions combine, died Thursday night, penniless and homeless.

His physician, Dr. Emanuel M. Josephson, took pity on Garsson when he was forced to leave his hotel last month. For three weeks Garsson slept in the doctor's reception room.

Garsson and his brother, Henry, served prison terms for bribing former representative Andrew May, Kentucky Democrat, who used his influence to get them wartime contracts. May went to prison.

Treasury Should Bear CBC Costs

Fowler Commission Estimates 6-Year Outlay $470 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian taxpayers may have to kick in about $470,000,000 over the next six years to finance the expansion and authority over both the CBC and the private operators and would be responsible to Parliament annually for the results.

FOWLER

NEEDS ITS POWERS

For the CBC board of governors, Chairman Dunton has told the commission that the publicly-owned corporation needs its powers to put over its national service.

Members of the commission, apart from 50-year-old Mr. Fowler, head of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association at Montreal, are Edmond Turcotte, 59, Canadian Ambassador to Colombia and former Montreal newspaper editor, and James Stewart, 62, chairman of the board of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Toronto.

The Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters has been calling for an independent regulatory board separate from the CBC board of governors, and above both the CBC and the private broadcasters.

The commission contended that the CRTC was looking for a more authoritarian type of tribunal and that the one it proposed would be closer to Parliament and its thinking, and therefore closer to the ideas of the public generally.

Dealing with television, it said the time has come or is near at hand when the "single-channel" policy of the federal government should be dropped. At present TV transmission is reserved for the CBC in Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. In other areas, single private stations only are allowed.

NOT BELOW CBC
The commission said any second stations in a viewing area should be made to provide programs not substantially below that of the national CBC network level.

For the future, the CBC and private broadcasters should plan to increase TV viewing hours and widen network coverage. It also suggested that TV's present coverage of 80 per cent of Canadians could be broadened to 90 per cent by low-power "repeater" stations at small points.

On the tricky question of financing the CBC—the commission's corps of financial experts came up with three formulas, of which the report favored one hooked to consumer spending. On an intricate formula based on a so-called "1956 dollar," the CBC would get from the treasury amounts starting with about $44,200,000 in the fiscal year starting April 1 and some $74,000,000 in the year ending March 31, 1963.

BE ADDITIONAL
These sums would be in addition to what the CBC gets from other revenue sources such as advertising. They also would not include what the corporation receives from the tax on receivers, which would go into a fund to be used for capital needs of the government agency.

The starting $44,200,000 is roughly what the CBC estimated before the commission as what it could use to provide a service at its equivalent of last year. At that time, the CBC suggested it could do this at a cost of about $20 per TV household—not a fee—and on the basis of 2,000,000 households it would come to $40,000,000.

The CBC has been going into the red even with normal government grants since it started TV operations in 1952. For the 1956-57 year that ends March 31, it has needed a special parliamentary grant of $12,000,000 to bring it around the break-even point on expenditures of about $40,000,000. The corporation's full financial statement for the year has not yet been made public.

In dealing with the private broadcasters, the commission suggested regulations should be enforced strictly. The broadcast board should have no hesitation in taking away a station's licence for flagrant violations. A new departure would be that a station be brought into court for offences that could call for fines ranging between $50 and $1,000. At present there is no intermediate step between a reprimand and a revocation of licence, the latter not exercised yet.

CBC PUBLIC RELATIONS TOO TIMID

Radio, TV Broadcasters Accused Of 'Baiting' Governing Body

OTTAWA (CP)—The Fowler royal commission on broadcasting today accused the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters of "baiting" the CBC.

The commission also said in its report that the CRTC, an association of most privately-owned broadcasting stations, has issued "much one-sided or misleading information on the true nature and functioning of the present system of broadcasting in Canada."

The CBC in turn was charged for being "too timid" in telling the Canadian public about its job. It should have reacted to CRTC

That's what the Fowler commission estimates in proposing that the federal treasury be used to meet the CBC's capital and operating costs with fixed annual grants. The commission rejected the idea of imposing a licence fee on television and radio viewers as unworkable.

The CBC now finances expansion by government loans and meets operating losses by revenue from the 15-per-cent excise tax on new television and radio sets and parts and by federal grants.

SUGGESTS REVISION
The Fowler commission suggested the CBC financial structure be revised and that the excise tax yields be provided for CBC capital expansion, giving the national broadcasting system a steady flow of money.

The CBC's net operating losses, after deducting income from advertising and other commercial sources, were forecast to swell to a total of some $353,000,000 over the six years, climbing from $44,238,000 in 1957-58 to $73,909,000 in 1962-63.

Thus, total outlays for the six years would amount to about $468,000,000. The operating losses, rising partly from plans for increasing TV coverage and gradual introduction of color TV, also would be borne by more federal annual grants, fixed at between one-quarter and one-third of one per cent of Canadian consumer spending on goods and services.

The operating loss of the CBC in the current year of $38,000,000 was the equivalent of just 3 1/3 cents a day for each home equipped with television and nine-tenths of a cent for each equipped with a radio.

In scrutinizing the CBC's finances, the commission "found no examples of careless waste and certainly nothing that even remotely resembled fraud, neglect or mismanagement."

On the other hand, "We cannot say that everything is right with the present financial system of the CBC."

HAS MET PROBLEMS
Because of its rapid expansion, the CBC had encountered staff and administrative problems; it had increased operating costs by acquiring accommodation on a "patchwork" basis.

"But the greatest financial weakness of the CBC has been the lack of an assured and definite basis of current financing."

"We think it is essential that the CBC have its duties accurately defined, that it be provided with an adequate but not excessive income over a term of years to enable it to discharge those duties and that it then be required to manage its affairs so as to live within that income. This is the central and essential basis of our financial recommendations."

ASKED FOR REPEAL
Canadian radio and TV manufacturers have pleaded for a repeal of the 15-per-cent excise tax, arguing that it discriminates against the electronics industry.

But the commission countered that the tax is levied against a number of products and the rising sales of TV sets in recent years did not indicate that the tax had a depressive effect.

Setting the proceeds of this tax aside for CBC capital needs would free the system from asking the government for any further loans. The commission emphasized that the proposed over-all grants for capital and operating losses would not require a complete new supply of federal money. Revenue from the tax would be an offsetting item.

The capital grants would be provided for the CBC on an annual basis. This would allow parliamentary scrutiny of CBC capital budgets. But a current restriction, whereby the cabinet must approve of all CBC expenditures in excess of $25,000, would be removed.

One of the main features of the proposed grants to cover operating losses is that the CBC would get an idea of the size of the grants projected over a five-year period. This would assist in future planning.

But they should "avoid the falsely doctrinaire, the emotional appeal or the emptiness of mere verbalism."

The CRTC had filed "a forbidding mass of printed or typewritten prose" with the commission, "offering no discernible argumentation, one way or the other and even presenting, at times, contradictions."

"At the end of the hearing we were left not knowing exactly what the CRTC sought to demonstrate or what it expected us to do with the large part of this great volume of words," the commission said.

Private broadcasters should express their views. It helped focus public attention on the evolution of broadcasting.

TV—GOOD OR BAD?—Evaluating TV's influence on Canada, after a full year of intensive study, R. M. Fowler (right), chairman of the royal commission on broadcasting, said today: "It is one of the most potentially beneficial and one of the most potentially dangerous media ever developed." Asked whether he thought evil or good would eventually triumph in Canadian television, Mr. Fowler gave the nod to good. Other members of the radio-TV royal commission, whose report was tabled in the Commons today, were diplomat Edmond Turcotte (centre) and Canadian Bank of Commerce president James Stewart (right). — (CP photos)

STATE-CONTROLLED BROADCASTING ONLY ANSWER

U.S. 'Tidal Wave' of Culture Threat to Canada's Identity

OTTAWA (CP)—The Fowler royal commission on broadcasting said today there is a threat to Canada's national identity from the "tidal wave" of United States culture carried by American radio and television stations.

A Canadian state-controlled broadcasting system is the only means of maintaining and developing "a Canadian sense of identity," the commission said in its report published today.

A privately-owned system, without support from the public treasury, would be impelled by economic forces to become the outlet for American networks and programs.

Canada faced the problem of costs in transmitting both TV and radio signals over long distances.

LANGUAGE FACTOR
The economic problem was "still more difficult" because of the division of the population into about 11,000,000 English-speaking and 5,000,000 French-speaking people.

Canada could have cheaper radio and TV service if Canadian stations were tied to U.S. outlets. The same fact held true, through Canada's history, with respect to rail and air transportation and consumer goods.

It has been uniformly the same for the Canadian answer, irrespective of party or race, has been uniformly the same for nearly a century.

"We are prepared, by measures of assistance, financial aid and a conscious stimulation, to compensate for our disabilities of geography, sparse population and vast distances, and we have accepted this as a legitimate role of government in Canada."

Political Broadcasts Party Problem
OTTAWA (CP)—Apportionment of time on Canadian radio and television stations for political broadcasts should be decided by political parties, the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting recommended today.

The commission's report, tabled in Parliament, stated the Canadian Broadcasting Act now provides that the CBC may make regulations "to prescribe the proportion of time that may be devoted to political broadcasts by the stations of the corporation and by private stations, and to assign such time on an equitable basis to all parties and rival candidates."

The commission said the proposed new board of broadcast governors should prescribe the proportion of time that may be devoted to political broadcasts by both CBC and private stations. However, it did not consider the board should "assign such time on an equitable basis to all parties and rival candidates."

This should be delegated to the representatives of the people. The proposed board should prescribe only the over-all time that may be devoted by public and private stations to political broadcasts and the various political parties should agree among themselves on the apportionment of that time.

50% CBC TV SERVICE IN COLOR BY 1963

OTTAWA (CP)—An estimate that approximately half the CBC television service will be in color by 1963—at an additional cost of $6,000,000 in that year—is made in the report of the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting.

The commission bases this on a calculation that two years from now the publicly-owned corporation will be equipped to transmit color, acquiring colored programs for English stations from the United States and using films to service French outlets.

By March 31, 1960, it calculated that 10 per cent of CBC programs would be in color. Color content of CBC programming would increase by the same percentage in each succeeding year.

On the production and transmission side, the commission said it was the changeover to color would mean a cost of $15,000 to $25,000 for an existing TV station.

$2½ Million Outlay Proposed for North
OTTAWA (CP)—Federal expenditure of $2,500,000 to give north and radio listeners Canadian programs instead of Russian and American broadcasts is urged by the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting.

The commission said in its report today that the 32,000 residents of the Yukon and the Northwest Territories "are in greater need of Canadian radio than most of their fellow countrymen."

A capital outlay of $2,500,000 proposed by the CBC at commission hearings to push Canadian radio into the north "may well be justified."

The report said that under normal conditions such an expenditure would not be justified for a maximum audience of 32,000.

Funds required should not be considered part of ordinary CBC operations but should be voted separately by Parliament.

The report said their service is inadequate. Soviet and American broadcasts came in more clearly and with more up-to-date programs.

End to CBC Domination Proposed

OTTAWA (CP)—A new regulatory body which would terminate the CBC's long domination over Canadian broadcasting is proposed by the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting in its report to Parliament today.

While falling short of demands of private broadcasters, the new body—the Board of Broadcast Governors—would mean scrapping of the existing CBC board of governors which for years has ruled over both private and public broadcasting.

Its membership of 15, picked from across the country but excluding CBC officials, would sit for five years only with no chance of immediate reappointment. Fresh appointments would be staggered so that there would be no complete changeover of 15 at once.

It would be responsible to Parliament, and both the publicly-owned CBC and the private broadcasters would be answerable to it.

TO GET NEW POST
The nature of the concept indicates pretty clearly that the present chairman of the CBC board of governors, A. D. Dunton, would be cast in a new role.

The proposal calls for the chairman of the new board to get an annual salary of $10,000. Mr. Dunton, who also is operating head of the CBC, gets about $22,500.

The commission, while calling for the scrapping of the CBC governors, suggests also that a new office of president of the CBC be opened. It is believed likely that Mr. Dunton would continue in that post at $22,500 or more.

The commission rejected the private broadcasters' proposal for an independent regulatory board mainly on the grounds that such a body would not be responsive to parliamentary control.

The commission's suggested new body would take over many of the operations of the CBC board. It would hear applications for new stations and reach its conclusions "without private consultation with officials of the CBC or anyone else."

The commission also recommended: Foreign ownership of Canadian stations be limited to 20 per cent of each station.

HOUSE WORKS TO 1 A.M. TO CLEAN UP BUSINESS

The B.C. legislature worked until 1.10 a.m. today to clear the decks for today's prorogation. It took three hours to pass the new 899-section Municipal Act.

An opposition motion, presented by Mrs. Lois Haggen (CCF, Grand Forks-Greenwood), urging more humane methods in slaughter houses was accepted by the government.

Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan (acting for ailing Agriculture Minister Ralph Chetwynd) agreed to ask Ottawa to investigate the matter.

RCs to Dictate Say Orangemen

Lodgemen Pledge Continued Fight Against Private School Tax Ease

Opposition to the B.C. government's plan to exempt private schools from municipal taxation died a quick death in the legislature Wednesday night—but outside the House opponents said they'd not give up the fight.

As part of the new Municipal Act, the tax-exemption proposal became law in spite of a last-minute protest in the legislature by CCF Leader Robert Strachan.

But Saanich Social Creditor John Tisdale, who opposed the measure during second reading of the Municipal Act, had nothing to say when the bill came up for third and final reading.

Mr. Tisdale's protest was supported last week by the Loyal Order of Orangemen who warned the government it would "unite against the Social Credit party" if the government exempted private schools (including Roman Catholic schools) from municipal taxation.

A spokesman for the Orangemen said today the organization, with a membership of 10,000 throughout the province, "will not give up the fight."

'We'll Fight to Last Ditch'
"We're determined to fight to the last ditch," said Fred Martin, 2440 Dalhousie.

"This is the stepping stone to separate schools," Mr. Martin added. "We'll have them within five years and then the Roman Catholic Church is going to dictate, with an increase in education costs."

The government had "railroaded" the tax exemption measure through, he said.

The tax exemption clause went through after Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the exemption had been in effect in the last ditch, under the city's charter, since 1886.

In 1953, he said, the legislature reconsidered Vancouver's charter and decided the tax exemption clause for private schools should stand.

"There is nothing novel in this clause," he said. "We are merely extending it to other parts of the province in an effort to achieve uniformity."

A bid by Liberal George Gregory to have the whole Act stood over for six months was rejected.

LIBERALS UNRULY

Burnett Emerges Winner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal Party delegates for Vancouver Quadra riding have selected a twice-defeated city contractor, T. R. "Ted" Burnett, as party contestant in the next federal election during an unruly nominating convention here.

Burnett was named Tuesday night to contest the seat held by Howard Green, veteran Progressive Conservative member of Parliament.

The meeting was in an uproar almost continuously until Mr. Burnett was declared the winner by returning officer Alex Fisher. Mr. Fisher was earlier overruled by Mr. Burnett, who acted as chairman, when he tried to have the nomination postponed until "an outstanding candidate" could be found.

Mansell C. Grey, a roofing contractor and defeated nominee, told the 116 delegates: "The way this meeting started I was ashamed to be a Liberal."

At one point an exchange was recorded between several delegates and Mr. Burnett.

"Count those votes again," one delegate said. "I got different totals than yours." The chairman said: "You're not even a delegate."

A second voice asked: "How could he be? He wouldn't go for Burnett." Mr. Burnett replied: "Did your wife permit you to say that?"

A third delegate yelled: "Don't get personal. Hang on to yourself up there."

TORY CANDIDATE
PRINCE GEORGE—William D. Ferry, Prince George lawyer, was nominated Wednesday night to contest the Cariboo riding for the Progressive Conservatives in the federal election.

Socred Election Spending Tops All Others; Wicks Cost $4,251

Political parties and their candidates spent $402,800 in last September's provincial election. Total Social Credit spending was reported at $182,869 for both party headquarters and all candidates.

Next highest total was for the Liberals who spent $125,731. The CCF spent $53,955 and the Conservatives $29,871.

This was reported to the legislature Wednesday by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black.

When filing his written answer to a question from CCF Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

Lowest personal spending was a record of $5 by LPP candidate Harold Griffin, who trailed far behind in Point Grey.

WICKS COSTLY

Most expensive candidate to elect was Labor Minister Lyle Wicks, $4,251. This was the largest for any candidate.

Premier Bennett in South Okanagan reported his personal expenses at $1,136.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan had the lowest personal expenses reported. He spent only $792 in his Cowichan-Newcastle riding.

$3,507 FOR LAING

Liberal Leader Arthur Laing, who lost his seat in the triple-member riding of Vancouver-Point Grey — reported $3,507 spent.

Only Liberal candidate topping Mr. Laing in personal spending was P. Archie Gibbs, who won the Oak Bay seat after spending $3,580.

Cabinet member spending the least in personal expenses was Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, who reported $935 in his Fort George riding.

RCMP Agent Almost Forced To Take 'Fix'

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER — A young RCMP constable who posed as a drug addict for seven months narrowly escaped having "his identity revealed at a 'fixing' party with another addict."

Special prosecutor Willfred Heffernan said in police court Wednesday that only a pre-arranged signal which brought two fellow policemen to his assistance saved Const. Theodore Gangdal from a party at which he would have had either to take narcotics or expose himself.

Heffernan made the disclosure at the hearing of Willfred Atchison, 56, one of 24 arrested on drug trafficking charges in a roundup made possible by Gangdal's undercover work. Atchison pleaded guilty and was given three years. William Gilbert, 31, was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary after being found guilty on the trafficking charge.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

VANCOUVER — Ronald Gordon Grant, 19, was committed for trial Wednesday on a charge of manslaughter, in the Feb. 17 traffic death here of Mrs. Elizabeth Spain, 70. He was released on $3,000 bail.

BUSIEST AIRPORT

VANCOUVER — Vancouver International airport last year handled 225,000 aircraft movements, the highest of any airport in Canada, manager William Ingalls said Wednesday. Movements for January showed a 163-percent increase over the same period last year. Military aircraft movements for the same month rose 242 percent.

BCE BUILDING OPENING

VANCOUVER — Lieut. Governor Frank M. Ross will officially open the B.C. Electric Company's new 21-storey office building here tonight. The building will be dedicated by Rt. Rev. Godfrey P. Gower, Anglican Bishop of New Westminster diocese.

HUNGRY VISITORS

VANCOUVER — Visitors to Vancouver parks last year ate 24 million of hot dogs, but these weren't the favorite purchase. Parks superintendent Percy Fox said that besides eating 389,412 hot dogs, visitors bought 1,214,720 ice cream cones and drank 625,000 bottles of soft drinks. Other figures included 275,000 bags of peanuts and 179,489 bags of popcorn.

FORGERS SENTENCED

VANCOUVER — A five-day cheque-forging spree brought a two-year penitentiary term to Herbert Hussey, 42-year-old laborer who pleaded guilty Wednesday to forging seven cheques worth $227 last Feb. 22-27.

SEA PIONEER DIES

VANCOUVER — The navy hymn will be sung Friday at the funeral of Captain H. St. Clair Jellett, 75, who died Monday aboard his 33-foot yacht Cressett. He was a pioneer member of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and former master of the tanker B.C. Standard for Standard Oil Company.

4 New Classrooms Get Go-Ahead At Mt. Brenton

LADYSMITH (CP) — Four classrooms and an activity room addition will be built at Mount Brenton High School near here at an estimated cost of $80,000. School District 67 was notified of the education department's approval of the addition. The school board also approved a swing shift plan for Mount Brenton High School to speed up construction. The swing shift will start after the Easter holidays and continue until the end of the school term.

ISLAND DIGEST

CLC DIRECTOR REPLIES

Fishermen's Union Must Clean Out Reds

United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union will not get back into the Canadian Labor Congress until it has cleared its ranks of Communist leadership and influence.

T. C. Gooderham, B.C. regional director of the Congress, commenting Wednesday on a statement by the fishermen's executive said:

"No application for affiliation to the Congress will be considered until the United Fishermen have purged themselves of Red domination."

The fishermen's executive statement, had, claimed Canadian unionists "now want to put an end to witch hunts."

Informal connections with the Congress are on a very good plane, the report said, and unity is pending.

DON'T BE FOOLED

"The public," Mr. Gooderham said "should not be fooled into thinking the Congress is pleading with the fishermen's union to come back. The union was expelled, not as a result of a witch hunt, but on very firm grounds that it was under Communist influence. It won't be allowed back until that influence has been removed."

He was active in sports, was a track and field star and played basketball. In 1925-26 he coached the senior B girls to an Island basketball championship, and in 1929-30 he coached Junior boys to Island and B.C. titles.

He also played and umpired baseball.

Surviving are his wife, Edna; one son, Rupert; one daughter, Sheila; and one sister, Mrs. William Arthur, Duncan.

Last Try Fails In Sunday Sport

CCF, Socreds Both Split on Issue
Brought Up by Uphill; Vote 35 to 12

A last-ditch attempt to legalize commercial Sunday sport in Vancouver was voted down by a government majority in the legislature Wednesday.

Vote on an amendment sponsored by Tom Uphill (Lab. Fernie) was 35-12, with three members on each side of the House splitting with their party on the controversial issue.

An amendment to the Vancouver charter sought by city council, was turned down by the legislature private bills committee at a closed meeting Monday.

Mr. Uphill attempted to have the amendment approved by the whole legislature, after claiming that the MLAs had no right to "hurdle" the wishes of the people of Vancouver who had supported Sunday sports in a 1955 plebiscite.

3 SOCREDS REBEL

Supporting him were seven CCFers, the two Liberals and Socreds Bert Price (Vancouver-Burrard), Fred Sharp (Vancouver East) and Cyril Sheldford (SC-Omineca).

The 32 government members voting against the amendment were joined by CCF members Mrs. Lois Haggen (Grand Forks-Greenwood), John Squire (Alberni) and the party leader, Robert Strachan.

The CCF MLAs took varying attitudes toward the proposal. Mr. Strachan linked the amendment to the current trend in the basic industries of the province to work a seven-day week.

The government, which condones this practice by issuing overtime permits, should establish a "principle" before allowing the people of Vancouver to have commercial Sunday sports, he said.

"Are we going to have two kinds of laws," Mr. Strachan said, "one for the workers by telling them they can't do certain things on Sunday, and another for industry?"

"Step by step the Sabbath we knew has been broken down—not by the advocates of Sunday sport but by commercial enterprises. Pulp mills and sawmills are going full blast all over the province."

Mr. Squire opposed the amendment on the ground that the Sunday sport issue should be settled by a province-wide plebiscite, not by the people of Vancouver.

Only three government members rose to take part in the debate. Premier Bennett and members of his cabinet remained silent.

Mr. Sheldford agreed that a province-wide plebiscite was the best solution, but said he was supporting the amendment because "the majority should rule regardless of what they want."

J. A. Reid (SC-Salmon Arm) said if Vancouver was granted commercial Sunday sport this year, the legislature would be asked by other communities throughout the province to give them the same privileges next session.

WIDENING FEARED

Movie theatres, dance halls and other entertainment forms would clamor for permission to operate on Sundays.

"Where would it stop," Mr. Reid asked.

Liberal member George Gregory spoke first after Mr. Uphill moved his amendment and said he would support it, "not because I care one whit whether or not Vancouver has Sunday sport, but because I care for democracy."

The people of Vancouver had voted in favor of Sunday sport and it was the duty of legislature members to grant it, despite their personal feelings on the issue.

That was one reason the two Liberal members had voted with the government on the $28 tax homeowner's tax rebate legislation, Mr. Gregory said, because the people had elected the party (Social Credit) which had pledged to put it in effect.

New Motor Vehicle Act Passed Bans Cyclists Riding Abreast

The B.C. government's new Motor Vehicles Act passed third reading in the legislature Wednesday with a minor amendment regarding the braking of vehicles. It awaits assent by the Lieutenant Governor to become law.

Victoria Daily Times THURSDAY, MARCH 28, 1957 9

In its original form the act ruled that no driver shall permit a motor vehicle to stand unattended without first having stopped the engine, locked the ignition, removed the key and effectively set the brakes. Opposition members pointed out that a car could be effectively braked by leaving the gears engaged and this was necessary in cold weather when brakes were apt to freeze.

Attorney General Robert Bonner agreed that the wording should be changed from "effectively set the brakes" to "effectively braked the vehicle."

Tony Gargrave (CCF-Mackenzie) objected to a clause enforcing cyclists to ride one behind the other in single file.

"I think this is unrealistic," he said. You cannot expect a boy and a girl to ride down a country lane one behind the other. In Britain I have seen scores of cyclists riding down the main highways in pairs.

Arthur Turner (CCF-Vancouver East) contended it was much safer for cyclists to ride in pairs over long journeys and "much more chummy."

The clause prohibiting cyclists from riding abreast passed without amendment after Mr. Gargrave had said:

"Motorists should have more regard for people who ride bicycles by passing them with caution. I am glad to see the rights of the cyclists are recognized in this bill."

IN PARIS

Teen-Agers Make Merry Near Corpses

PARIS (UPI)—Police investigating "giggling and singing sounds" coming from the catacombs of Paris early Tuesday found 19 thrill-seeking teen-agers making merry with champagne beside the skeletons.

The group of boys and girls, described as from society families, broke through a heavy iron gate and descended into the dank catacombs Monday night armed with candles, chilled champagne and sandwiches. There they sang and danced in the galleries which contain thousands of skeletons.

They left about 2 a.m. and found a small convoy of police wagons waiting to take them downtown.

Police said their men investigated after they heard strange noises coming from the depths. The teen-agers were let off with small fines.

Liquor Profit Cut Demanded By Fishermen

VANCOUVER (CP)—The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) Wednesday demanded that the provincial government reduce its liquor prices substantially.

A resolution sponsored by Vancouver shoreworker's local and passed by the union's annual convention here said it would be difficult to give "an example of more rapacious profiteering anywhere in our economy" than the government practice of purchasing liquor at $5 or less per 12-bottle case and selling it for $36.

THE PATRICK STORY

Fate Called Lester Back

By ARCHIE WILLS

(Copyright, 1957, By The Victoria Daily Times)
(Conclusion)

I have written a lot about my good friend, Lester Patrick. But there are countless other stories about him, which will have to wait for some other time.

His activities here since he retired from Madison Square Garden are well known to most. His Cougars, under Roger Leiger, won the Coast title and they have been contenders during most years. The main thing is that Lester has had a club and much pleasure has been provided for many faithful fans and for countless others who get their entertainment for nothing over the radio.

Wills

Lester was fortunate in having a good workman in the late Fred Hutchinson and left most of the work here to him. Last year he decided to hand over the club to his two sons, Hutchinson and some local business men.

Fate again interrupted Lester's retirement and when "Hutch" passed on, he went back to the grind to help out. "But that's it," says Lester. "I'll have none of it next season. I'm through this time and I think it's about time."

"What are you going to do with your time?" I asked him. "You're still young, just 73, and the doctors keep people living into their nineties."

"Oh, yeh," he came back. "Better ask Grace what we'll do."

Mrs. Patrick came in at that moment and I asked her, "I guess we'll stay here," she said. "I like it. Perhaps we'll travel a bit and see the grandchildren."

"Perhaps Lester will be able to get back to his famous act as a monologist," I suggested.

'Patrick Night' Held in Regina

"My memory's not what it used to be," he said. "Nobody could recite 'Little Bateese' like you, Lester," I mentioned.

With that Lester went to his library and came back with Henry Drummond's book of poems.

"Do you know I honed up on this one, 'The Cure of Calumet,'" he said with pride in his voice. "Some months ago Father Murray arranged a Lester Patrick Night in Regina and we had a great time. It was real nice of them. I knew I'd have to make a speech and I

Day Quit To Avoid Plank Walk

TORONTO (CP) — General Manager Hap Day of the Toronto Maple Leafs said Wednesday he quit "of my own volition," although he took the inference from remarks made by President Conn Smythe that "I was walking the plank, so to speak."

The 56-year-old official, who quit Monday after all the fuss raised by the National Hockey League's team's fifth-place finish, told a press conference he left the organization with "no bitterness and with the greatest respect" for Smythe.

Day, who promised to "tell all" at the hastily called press conference, side-stepped questions concerning personalities with the comment that "this is no place for that."

Day traced his resignation to a New York press conference held by Smythe on Sunday, March 17, when the fiery president laid some of the blame on himself and Day for what Smythe termed Leaf's "year of failure."

"The inference I took from that conference was, as I have said before, that I had been publicly dismembered. I felt this was not the basis for further negotiations," Day said.

He said he had no alibi for his record in the Leaf organization as player, coach, assistant manager and general manager, ranging over 30 years.

During that period the Leafs won one Stanley Cup while he was a defenceman, five when he was coach and one when he was assistant manager.

He also defended what has been described as the Day system of hockey-defensive, close-checking play. "I don't think my system has been outmoded. I can only recommend defensive hockey to any team when the opposition has the puck."

Vikings 2 Games Down In Canadian Hoop Final

Switch to Zone College Hope In Third Game

By TOM ENGLISH
(Vikings' Team Captain)

TORONTO — We played a better game Wednesday night, but the Victoria College Vikings were still unable to find a solution to the height and power of the Toronto YMHA Whites.

Although we outscored the Whites in the second half, after coach Bill Garner switched us to a zone defence, the tall Torontonians grabbed a 78-66 victory and a two-game lead in this best-of-five series for the Canadian junior basketball championship.

Around Toronto they are predicting the Whites will wrap up the series in three straight games tonight, but our performance in the second half gives us hope that we'll still be able to bring the title back to Victoria.

We are all several pounds lighter and beginning to feel the effects of playing three previous series and travelling more than half way across Canada and were naturally disappointed when we lost Wednesday after giving the game everything we had.

TO TRY ZONE AGAIN

However, we may still be able to come out on top and Bill says we'll try the zone all the way tonight.

YMHA coach, Dave Sherman, who piloted Toronto Northwings to national championships in 1955 and 1956, won't predict a victory although we suspect he is quite confident now. "We still have to take one more game," he says, "and those Vikings have come back before."

Whites, who hit on 60 per cent of their shots from the floor, swished five straight shots through the hoop to jump into an early lead, 42-29 at half time.

Vikings' zone defence and down-floor checking gave the YHMA club some trouble in the second half and we outscored them, 37-34. But the Whites, particularly Warren Reynolds and Fred Lewis, continued to fire long shots with amazing accuracy and were never in real trouble.

DEADLY SHOOTING

Reynolds was again the top scorer with 21 points, but the man who probably won the game for them was Lewis, who swished 16 points with 40-foot two-handers in the best shooting display we have seen this season.

Ken Buntin, the six-foot, five inch substitute for six-foot seven-inch centre Doug Gaidy, also collected 16 points for Whites.

Bob Tomlinson played one of his best games of our road trip and wound up with 23 points to lead all scorers and his passes set up many scoring chances, but we failed to cash in on most of them.

I added 16 points to the College total and Art Chiko and Ken McCulloch each came through with 11 points. Close checking by the Whites, which bothered all of us, held big Waldo Skillings to a single point.

Lineups follow:
Toronto — Green, Reynolds 21, Lewis 16, Cohen 2, Moch 7, Gaidy 10, Olanow 4, Buntin 16, Borkin 2. Total — 78.

Defencemen Could Hold Key That Locks Up Hockey Semi

By TOM ENGLISH

In this age of atomic power, jet speed and push-button warfare, the Victoria Cougars and New Westminster Royals have turned old fashioned.

In Tuesday's opening game of the Western Hockey League coast semi-finals, they gave the game back to the foot-slogging infantry-men of the defence.

And whether the series ends tonight or Saturday night, it is probable that the usually obscure blue-line infantry-men will hold the whip hand.

Tuesday night's game, a brittle 3-2 overtime victory for New Westminster was a solid case for the defencemen.

The Cougar defence, which has had its troubles this year, turned in its best collective game of the year. Team captain Bill Davidson, Bill Dobyn, Lionel Heinrich and rookie Gordie Matheson, performed nobly in front of goalie Marcel Pelletier in a lasting but losing effort.

On the New Westminster side, ageless Bob Bergeron, an acknowledged master of the poke-check, broke up one Cougar attack after another and harried the Cougar shooting with his very presence.

Pete Durham played his usually destructive bashing game and scored the tying goal and set up the winner.

Tonight at Memorial Arena, the battle will be resumed.

The Royals, one game up in the best-of-three series, have everything to win.

"The Cougars, one game down, have everything to lose. Coach Colin Kilburn says, 'We are far from dead. We have eight straight wins at home. We win tonight and start a new series Saturday night.'"

And Kilburn gets a solid vote of a confidence from a group of fans who are making plans to see Saturday's game in New Westminster.

Wally Smith is arranging travel accommodations by bus and Nanaimo boat for any local fans wishing to travel with the team. A call to Smith at 4-8221 or 2-0111 will reserve space.

Toe Hopes Milt's Theory Works for Habs Tonight

By The Canadian Press

"When you win that first one it's a big one — especially on the other fellow's ice," says coach Milt Schmidt of the high-flying Boston Bruins. At least one other National Hockey League coach hopes he's right.

Schmidt feels the Bruins have wiped out the Detroit Red Wings home-ice advantage in their second game of the NHL semi-finals tonight. They opened the best-of-seven series with a 3-1 victory on the same ice Tuesday.

Toe Blake hopes the same principle will work for his Montreal Canadiens tonight in New York where the Habs set down Rangers 4-1 Tuesday.

Blake, of course, was elated over winning the first game, but feels "the Rangers still have a big kick left." He maintains his club shouldn't have been rated a 5-to-1 favorite by Ranger coach Phil Watson despite the home-ice advantage for possibly the next five games.

Muzz Patrick, Rangers' general manager, was disappointed in New York's inability to take the first one. He had envisioned a two-game sweep before the scene swung to Montreal.

"We now have our backs to the wall," Patrick admitted. "The first game, however, could have gone either way. Maybe we'll be more fortunate in the second."

Both clubs are in good shape physically. Montreal's lone absentee Tuesday was rookie Stan Smrke, sidelined with a leg ailment. Centre Larry Popein of the Rangers missed the opener, but is expected to be ready tonight.

WINGS FAVORED

Despite the opening Bruin triumph in Detroit, the league champion Red Wings are a one-goal favorite to win tonight.

"It's entirely up to them now," said general manager Jack Adams of his Detroit club. "It's their money they are playing for. I'm not going to whip them up. They know the score."

Adams added an "Amen" however, to a comment by Schmidt that "one game is not a series."

Rhubarb Crop Looks Thick

By JACK HAND
TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—It's a warm July night at Comiskey Park on Chicago's south side. Minnie Minoso is up with the bases full, two but and the score tied in the last of the ninth. Don Larsen of the hated Yankees zips a fast ball through the strike zone and the plate-crowding Minoso is nicked on the arm.

Imagine the fans' stormy reaction when the plate umpire gives the "strike three" sign and motions for a new supply of baseballs for the extra innings.

That is the way it may be this summer, a season that could produce the highest rhubarb crop since Ty Cobb left the game.

Cal Hubbard, supervisor of umpires in the American League, has been visiting dugouts before the exhibition games, briefing the managers, coaches and players about the rule changes.

"I've been telling people all winter that they're going to see some fun at the ball parks this year," Hubbard said in an interview. "I've told the umpires to be extra tough down here in the spring games to warn everybody about to expect."

"The new rule says if a ball is in the strike zone when it touches the batter, it shall be called a strike, whether or not the batter tried to avoid the ball.

"It doesn't say so in the rules but we have agreed to interpret it that the ball shall be dead after it hits a man in a case like that. Otherwise you'd have all kinds of arguments about interference and obstruction."

Hubbard said the rule he expects to give batters the most trouble is the one that reads "a batter shall not leave his position in the batter's box after the pitcher comes to a set position or starts his windup. If the pitcher pitches, the umpire shall call 'ball' or 'strike' as the case may be."

"This means just what it says," Hubbard warned. "No more of this fiddling around to wipe an imaginary bug out of the eye or hitch up the belt while the pitcher waits."

Another change decrees that a pitcher, with nobody on base, must deliver the ball to the batter within 20 seconds after he receives the ball. Last year the pitcher had to throw 20 seconds after he touched the rubber. Catchers must return the ball promptly to the pitcher. If a pitcher takes more than 20 seconds, the umpire shall call "ball."

Flyers Win Savage Cup; First Yanks

VERNON, B.C. (CP)—Spokane Flyers, Western International Hockey League champions, became the first American team to win the Savage Cup Wednesday night as they downed Vernon Canadians, 6-4, to take the best-of-seven series, 4-3, one game tied.

Another bumper crowd of more than 3,000 fans saw Flyers take an early lead and hold it all the way.

Spokane now represents British Columbia at the Western Canada finals in Fort William, Ont., against the Beavers. The winner meets the eastern champion for the Allan Cup. Should Spokane win, Flyers would become the first U.S. team ever to take the Canadian championship.

The Okanagan Senior Hockey League Canadians, winners of the 1956 Allan Cup, couldn't keep up to the high-scoring Spokane line of Art Jones, Tick Beattie and Lorne Nadeau in the series.

BIG LINE SCORES
Beattie came through for Spokane again Wednesday night, knocking off two goals. Jones, Buddy Bodman, Frank Kubasek and Nadeau each picked up singles.

Art Davidson got two for Vernon, with one marker going to Tommy Stecyk and Frankie King.

Holding tight to a one-goal lead going into the last period, Flyers started to play tight hockey. Beattie put them out in front 4-2 but King came back for the Canadians to close the gap.

Again Spokane drew ahead on Bodman's counter. Stecyk scored the fourth goal for Vernon to put the Canadians behind 5-4. With only four seconds to go Beattie grabbed a loose puck drove over centre ice and scored in the empty Vernon net. Coach George Agar had yanked Gordon for the extra man, but it backfired.

WHL SCORING FIGURES

Guyle Most Prolific But Ray Most Heroic

Guyle Fielder won the Western Hockey League scoring race in a breeze, but the dazzling Seattle centre had to take a back seat to Brandon's Ray Manson in the business of scoring winning goals.

Manson ended up in fifth place among the league's goal scorers but he included the league high of 10 winning tallies among his 40 goals. Fielder, also had the facility of coming through in the clutch, setting a new league record as he supplied the passes for 14 game-winning goals scored by his mates.

Fielder wrote two other marks into the WHL books. He collected a record total of 89 assists and shattered the former league mark of 110 points registered by Bronco Horvath of Edmonton two years ago.

PROFESSIONAL HIGH
His 122 points for the season also set an all-time high for professional hockey, erasing the mark of 119 chalked up by George Sullivan with Hershey Bears in the 1953-54 American Hockey League season.

Seattle, with three players among the five top point-getters, was the highest-scoring club with 263 goals.

Ray Kinasevich triggered 44 goals for Seattle to top the list in the goal-scoring department but finished fifth, one point behind Manson's 83, in the point chase.

Americans' Eddie Dorohy, league scoring champion in 1951-52, had 31 goals and 55 assists for third place, 12 points behind runner-up Phil Maloney of Vancouver. Maloney, winner of last season's scoring crown, fired 43 goals and earned 55 assists to wind up 24 points off Fielder's record-shattering pace.

Pete Durham of New Westminster again topped the league in penalties, coming within three minutes of equalling the league mark set by Vancouver's Harry Dick. For Durham, who collected 205 minutes in penalties, it was third time he has topped the WHL in penalties.

Kennel Show Gets Record Entry List
Victoria City Kennel Club's 70th annual spring show Friday and Saturday at the Amphion Street Radminton Hall, has received a record number of entries.

Mrs. Margot Bowden and Mrs. E. Alben, of Toronto, will officiate in judging the two-day show.

Mrs. Bowden will judge the dogs Friday, starting at 10 a.m., and Mrs. Alben will judge the all-breeds entries Saturday.

Popular feature of the show will be obedience trials, held each day. Friday, the working dogs will be judged by Mr. Howard Tyrell, of Nanaimo, while Saturday the event will be under the eye of Mr. Don Stevens of Vancouver.

Prizes will be presented Friday by Mrs. Geoffrey I. Edge-low and Saturday by Mrs. Fred Robertson.

PLATEAU TO HOLD SKI RACES

Forbidden Plateau Ski Club will hold its annual races at the plateau slopes near Courtenay this Sunday.

Three feet of fresh snow, which fell last weekend, has assured ample snow for the club races and good skiing through the Easter weekend. There is now four feet of snow at Forbidden Plateau Lodge and about six feet higher up at the ski tow.

Last Sunday's heavy snow broke telephone lines to the lodge and prevented several skiers from reaching the slopes but provided excellent sport for those who had arrived at the lodge Friday or Saturday.

NEWSPAPERS SHOW BIGGEST AD GAIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Newspapers showed the biggest gain in advertising in the U.S. of any medium during January, Printers' Ink reported Wednesday.

Newspapers boosted their volume 10 per cent over December, 1956, according to the magazine's national advertising index.

Other heavy gainers during the month of January were outdoor advertising, up 9 per cent from the previous month, and network radio, up 6 per cent.

School of Therapy Advocated for UBC

VANCOUVER (CP)—Establishment of a school of physical and occupational therapy at the University of British Columbia is recommended in a report released here today by John W. Patterson, dean of medicine at UBC.

The report, compiled by Dr. A. T. Jousse, director of physical and occupational therapy at the University of Toronto, says the school is needed to meet the pressing need for physical and occupational therapists in British Columbia.

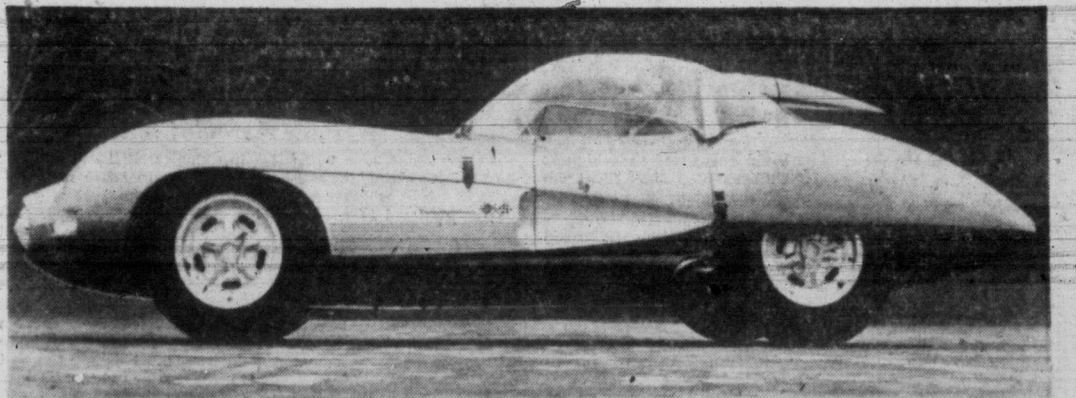

The study was carried out in November, 1956, at the request of the B.C. division of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

The report recommends that cost of setting up the school be met by private and public donations and that operating costs be borne by "an agency outside the university for a period of at least five years."

Dr. Jousse says at least $50,000 would be required for operating costs the first year. The school would be under the direction of the present faculty of medicine and "must be capable of expansion into an institute of rehabilitation to provide a common training and indoctrination for those who participate in the treatment and rehabilitation of the sick and disabled."

MUST TRAIN CANADIANS
In his report, Dr. Jousse says that of the 189 registered physical therapists in B.C., "not all of whom are practising"—only 27 were trained in Canada.

It would require three years to turn out the first therapists. The school would have an initial enrollment of about 25, with a director, teachers of physical and occupational therapy, a teacher of anatomy and a teacher of physiology.

HAD PRIOR KNOWLEDGE OF ISRAELI ATTACK

U.K., France Invasion Secrets For Egypt Bared in French Book

PARIS (Reuters)—A new book by two French journalists says Britain and France knew in advance that Israel was going to attack Egypt last Oct. 28 and that the Franco-British intervention was planned as long ago as August.

Extracts from the book, which appeared today in the Paris newspaper Figaro, said Britain rejected a French "lightweight" plan in favor of a "big show" landing.

The book, The Secrets of the Egyptian Expedition, was written by brothers Serge and Merry Bromberger. The article quotes Maurice Schumann, former minister of state for foreign affairs, as authority for certain sections of it.

Informed sources said it would be practically impossible to gather the information in the Figaro article and print it under such respectable auspices without French government co-operation or tacit consent.

Figaro is considered one of France's most respected newspapers.

Serge, who reported the operation for Figaro, wrote the summary of the account. There were two plans for the operation, it said.

LIGHTNING EXPEDITION

1. Musketeer A—Put forward by the French, which called for a lightning expedition—48 hours of air attacks to neutralize the Egyptian air force, dropping of paratroops, a light landing with amphibious craft and a rush down the canal.

The plan also envisaged a dash to Cairo to "finish with Nasser" if necessary after the occupation of the canal.

2. Musketeer B—"Reflected both the diplomatic temperament of Sir

Anthony (Eden), the conceptions of the traditional general staffs and the influence of the atomic armament. It was the big landing with a big show.

The lightweight version of Musketeer was rejected by the British, "masters of the operations" Oct. 27, the book said.

It was known that the Israelis were going to go into action on Oct. 27—Musketeer B would land the expeditionary force at Port Said only on Nov. 10.

QUICK OPERATION

French tanks could have covered the area between Port Said and Suez in a few hours, the authors said.

The Brombergers said that on the night of the "Bulgarian bomb"—the veiled threat to bombard Paris and London with rockets—"Eden was asleep, or at least resting, in his flat. The foreign office had the document (the text of the Bulgarian message) but did not consider it important enough to worry the prime minister about."

Mallet was lunching on Nov. 6 when Eden telephoned from London. The writers said:

"The prime minister had just decided on a cease-fire. He could no longer hold out against the injunctions of the United Nations—and above all of Washington—an opposition within his own cabinet.

"Sir Anthony Eden had received assurances from Washington. In any case, the Atlantic Alliance covered Europe. A bomb on Paris or London, and it would be the American atomic deluge on Russia, President Eisenhower was making this known to Moscow."

25 LEAVE SUNDAY

C of C Tour Hopes to Draw 2,000 Visitors

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce tri-state "goodwill tour" hopes to draw nearly 2,000 visitors to the city's April 28-May 12 Springtime Festival.

Chamber officials have completed plans to publicize the festival on the 1,100-mile tour through Washington, Oregon and northern California.

The 10-day tour starts Sunday. The party will consist of 25 businessmen mostly connected with the tourist trade.

Sam Lane, chairman of the chamber's tourist trade group, and Ken Lowndes, in charge of the tour, said pamphlets on the festival will be distributed in all major centres.

"Everything will be done to publicize the event at receptions and dinners," said Mr. Lane. "Through personal contact we hope to draw a large influx of visitors to the city this spring."

The party will stage gags and stunts to attract attention to Victoria.

Some members will wear top hats. Each hat will be adorned with the figure "10," representing 10 good reasons why Americans should come to Victoria.

In addition, the party will take along with them Victoria's famous "atomic" crumpets for distribution to the citizens of the United States.

The main event of the tour will be the presentation of a model of the historic Hudson's Bay Co. vessel, The Beaver, to the combined Vancouver and Portland Chambers of Commerce. The Beaver was the first steamship to ply the Pacific Coast.

The model is being presented as a goodwill measure between the two countries. It was made by Col. Richard Ricard, retired soldier, explorer and lecturer, residing at Cordova Bay.

The goodwill tour will start at 10.45 a.m. Sunday from the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Depot. The party will travel aboard a 41-passenger Greyhound bus.

Before the party embarks on the Washington State ferry, they will attend a farewell reception sponsored by Sidney Chamber of Commerce.

Delay Seen in Changing Gorge Hospital for 'Chronic' Cases

A delay of six months in changing Gorge Road Hospital from a haven for elderly non-medical care patients to a rehabilitation centre was envisaged today by city welfare administrator William Hooson.

The switch in the hospital's main function was detailed in the legislature recently by Health Minister Eric Martin. It hinged on passage of a bill Tuesday which extends BCHIC coverage to so-called "chronic patients."

The minister explained that "chronic" in this case means patients who are capable of responding to "intense and rehabilitative treatment." Under the scheme a patient with a broken limb would be transferred to Gorge for convalescence, after receiving prime treatment at an acute hospital such as Royal Jubilee.

COSTS DOUBLED

Costs of patient care in an acute hospital are twice the cost of care in a rehabilitative hospital.

Mr. Hooson, who is a member of the Gorge Hospital board of directors, said the new act leaves Gorge Hospital with problems which will take at least six months to solve.

First, a hospital medical administrator must be hired. Second additional space must eventually be acquired to make room for patients for convalescent care and elderly patients now receiving non-medical care at Gorge Hospital must be located elsewhere.

This will mean either finding additional boarding homes in the city and district or providing an additional wing at the hospital for use in providing boarding home type care.

"The whole changeover plan has not jelled yet," he stated. He said there was some hope that eventually the Gorge Hospital would accommodate outpatients for treatment, in clinics such as are operated for arthritis, multiple sclerosis and cerebral palsy cases.

Much of the planning will be the responsibility of board chairman Mrs. C. C. Warren, recently elected to the post. She is the first woman to hold that position at the hospital.

Others elected to the board are former alderman Mrs. M. Christie and former chairman P. E. Winslow, as honorary president; R. W. Phipps, vice-president; J. C. Nimmo, treasurer; Mrs. F. Mutrie, secretary; Dr. Murray Anderson, Dr. T. F. Rose, Alan Baker, F. W. Griffith, Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, Miss M. Baird, Alfred Dowell, William Hooson and F. G. Mulliner.

Mrs. Warren felt the eventual plan would see the 104 beds now in the hospital used for chronic patients, and if elderly patients who require only non-medical care remain at the hospital a fund-raising campaign might be necessary to provide additional space—perhaps a 50-bed wing.

The government plan to include long-term patients under the BCHIC does not extend to cover actual chronic cases, who will continue to either pay their own bills or become the responsibility of provincial and municipal welfare agencies.

'SHALL' BECOMES 'MAY'

Holiday Act Change Sparks Protest

New legislation which gives employers freer reins in arranging annual holidays for their workers was criticized Wednesday by the CCF.

The change is contained in a one-word amendment to the Annual Holidays with Pay Act approved by the legislature last session. The original statute said employers "shall" permit an employee to take his annual holiday either in one unbroken period of two weeks or in two periods of one week each.

Under the amendment, which was given third and final reading despite CCF objections, employers now "may" permit it.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan described as "double talk" a claim by Labor Minister Lyle Wicks that the amendment results in "very little difference" in the original intent of the act.

"Now the employer doesn't have to consider his employees," Mr. Strachan said. "This is a complete change of emphasis, a reversal."

CCF members pressed Mr. Wicks to state who had made representations on the matter and what was the reason for the change.

Answering for his minister, Premier Bennett said the amendment was being enacted because it was "in the public interest." He did not elaborate.

John Squire (CCF-Alberni)

14 Victoria Daily Times
THURSDAY, MARCH 28, 1957

claimed a specific request to change "shall" to "may" was made in a brief submitted to the cabinet by a group of lumbermen. "We've got news for them," said Mr. Squire, an IWA official, "we're not going to let them get away with it."

In Shoes the Trend Is To a Tapered Toe

"To the tip of her toes" will take on an interesting and more important meaning in shoe fashions as Milady's "ten tiny toes" receive tender treatment this spring from leading shoe designers!

Basic to all the style thinking for '37 is the increasing trend toward tapered toes. Spring brings this well-favored design into the medium and lower price range.

Medium heels, too, are increasingly important on spring shoes and are available in all price ranges. As a matter of fact, this heel has become a style "must" in every style-wise wardrobe.

This spring again will see the triumphant return of the classic "spectator" for daytime wear. Some of these shoes bear dramatic new touches to make them "strictly 1937."

In leather surfaces, patent leather is destined to sparkle through spring and summer. Smooth leathers and suedes, in combinations or solo-grained surfaces and textures... luxurious fabrics and exciting patterns are all due to step forth smartly on the spring scene.

Color and Fabrics Are Lighter in Men's Wear

Men's hats this spring will be mainly in medium shades. Grey and brown colors will be dominant although shades of green are due to enjoy more popularity than in many a year. Mixtures will challenge solid colors for the favor of buyers.

Many novelties have come into the hat fabric picture, including a "crushable" fur-nylon blend felt number, but felts will not be budgeted out of their number one spot.

The recent highly favored "flat-top" model, however, may have passed its zenith and may be replaced this spring by the variation of the pork-pie model with the pre-blocked crown known as the "light telescope" and the new drop-tip felts.

Hat shapes are growing narrower and narrower, with brims no wider than 1½ inches no longer considered a rarity.

The trend in neckwear toward more restrained patterns becomes more pronounced for spring, reflecting the renewed interest in patterned fabrics for men's suits and shirts.

Many light ground colors will be shown in new neckwear and there will be more interest in whites and silvers.

Reps and foulards will remain favorites with Ivy League participants. Some bolder patterns will be available to complement some of the new dark suits.

Bow ties will enjoy their usual warm weather revival. The narrow shape will continue to lead the field with little or no indication of any widening.

Fabric interest will be in typical summer silks and cottons, and there should be more interest in blends of silk and cotton.

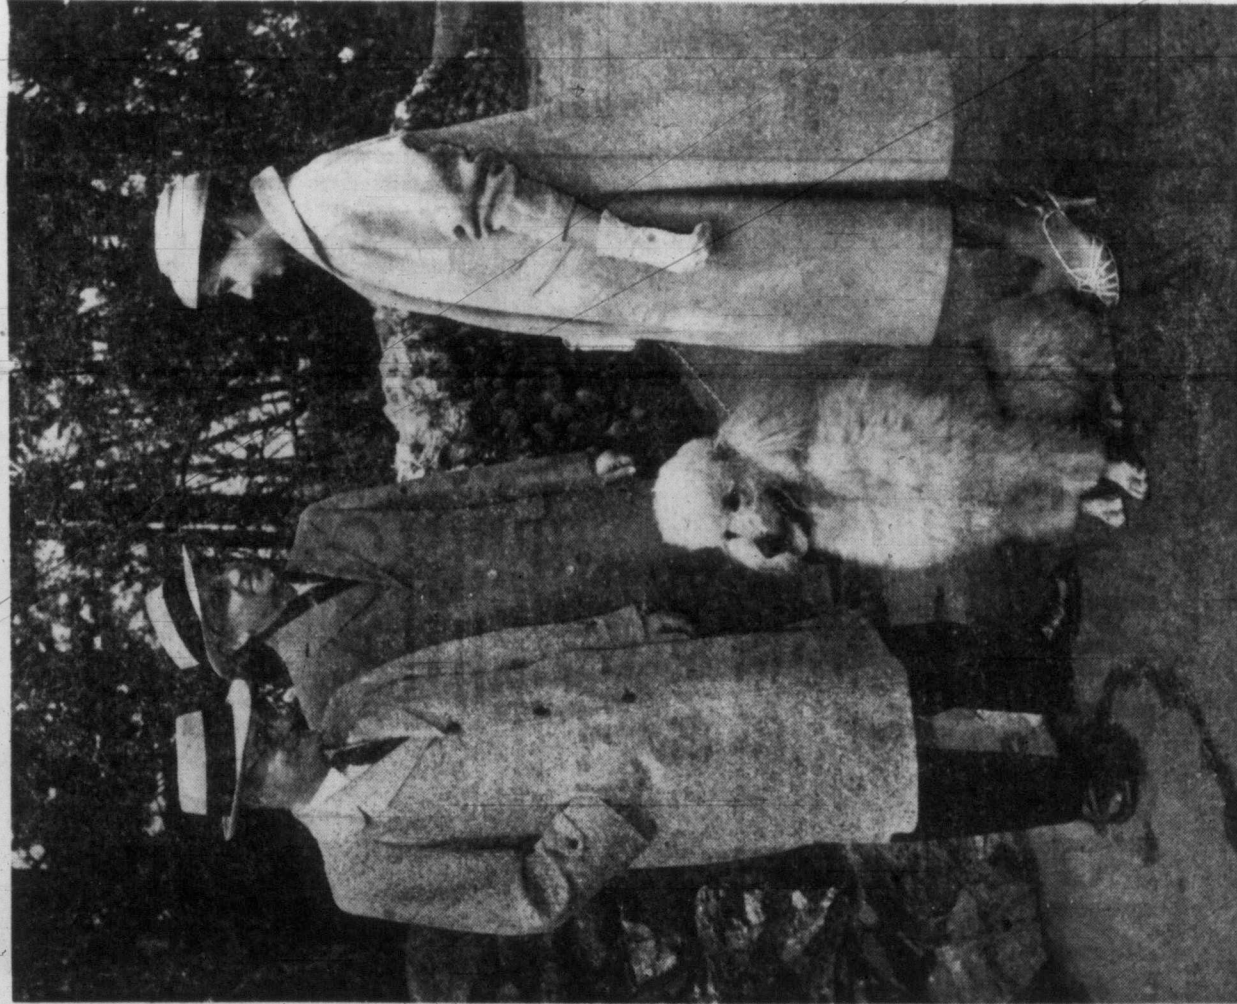

A Snowhill Irish tweed sports jacket in off-white with a rust nub will go everywhere with the man of distinction. Kerry Zeal, this season. Two-button style, the jacket lends itself to casual, yet stylish living, with the color accents blending with summer slacks.

Admiring glances from the lady . . . that's what the fashion-right man about town receives when he's smartly dressed in this season's top trend clothes. Wearing an overcoat of nub tweed in the new brushed Donegal with attractive contrasting fleck is Kerry Zeal. His hat, dubbed the "square rigger" has a tweedy finish and is available in tans or greys to complement the medium tan and grey tones of the Donegal overcoat.

Caps Are In

Caps continue to show an upsurge in sales. Smartly styled in worsteds, flannels and tweeds, they reflect the influence with either leather or belted with either leather or matching material. Wide and narrow stripes and solid colors predominate.

Belts Are Back

Belts return to the fashion spotlight. Besides leather and fabric belts, spring features a variety of cummerbunds and sashes.

Spring is in the air . . . and the ultra-femininity of these newest of the new hats are themselves a breath of spring.

A gracious Milan straw in navy blue is worn by Veronika Braun, left. The new, wide-brimmed hat is highlighted with sprays of mimosa lilac. Susan Edgell's Easter bonnet of ash rose satin finished straw is massed with full-blown roses in shades of pink and red. The shape is popular, adaptable to so many ensembles for spring.

Of Course You Can Wear Lovely New Mauve Tones

"But I can't wear purple!" may well be the regretful wail of many a woman surveying this season's fashions in enticing mauve hues. "Yes, you can!" is the answer from make-up experts. Hard-to-wear colors are becoming colors of the help of the right cosmetics.

Bold purple and black for instance, have a reputation for draining the complexion. This "pallid look" can be overcome by careful choice of cosmetics and a complete conscientious make-up job.

Powder base and powder should be chosen in a sister-shade to the skin, but a half-tone lighter.

Eye cosmetics, discreetly applied, do wonders to perk up the complexion. Suggestion here is to choose mascara in a shade to enhance the eyes. Look for black or a costume co-ordinated color—such as lavender, orchid, blue-green or blue to wear with purple-hued outfits.

Spring Fashions for Young Set

Reflect Adult Styles of Season

Junior fashions, always adventurous and imaginative, are especially so this spring. With a wonderful variety of dresses, ensembles and separates in a wide range of interesting new fabrics and colors. Silks, blends, cottons, prints, and navy crepes are favorites.

Both full and slim silhouettes are popular, with juniors definitely endorsing the new softened sheath. Treatments range from permanently knife-pleated skirts and controlled gores fullness to the slim, slow-fitting silhouette and pegged skirt. Modified princess styles, semi-fitted overblouse dresses, blouse on types and one-piece dresses with a two-piece look are other junior choices.

Replacing the Empire silhouette is the new raised waistline which is not more than one and a half to three inches above the waist. In some cases, the new line includes pleated cummerbunds, set-in folds and bands, bows and tabs.

Capes are especially popular in recent shapes and designs. They are worn with high collars, rather than voluminous types. Many dresses have detachable capes.

Flannel, often in pearl grey, is the favored fabric for short, waisted length, demi-fitted jackets teamed with peg-pleated, four-gore or all-round pleated skirts are popular.

Fitted jackets look fresh with such interesting new details as soft back-blowing, bow trims or self belts. Double-breasted closings and brass buttons are favored for both fitted and semi-fitted styles.

Skirts take on new interest through high-rise or cummerbund tops, wrap-around effects and buttoned flap pockets. High waistline effects, tiny.

'Romance' In New Hair Do's

A major trend of spring '57, is the "look of romance" which is basically a frankly pretty look in coils that are soft, glamorous and very feminine, whether worn short or semi, puffed or slinky, feathered or waved. To be sure, fashion-conscious females will want to be up-to-the-minute on length, waves, curls, and sweeps of her crown-ing glory.

The "bouffant" silhouette seems to be the vogue of favor for 1957. And this style, of course, demands longer length to the hair than has been seen in the past three seasons.

Soft fluffy waves and curls with the "forward look" are being strongly emphasized to give that ultra-feminine softness to the face. Gone is the cropped boyish look—in its place is the graceful, fascinating contour... distinguished by a lovely blend of puffed waves and feathered edges.

This does not mean that the hair but 1957 will see the decline of the "crew" cuts, the Italian cuts and the duck tails.

Pretty Silks Take Limelight As Spring's Fabric Favorites

Pity the poor little silk worm. He's certainly been a busy little one whipping up enough material for the 1957 fashions... because this year's women will follow the silken path.

The depth of silk fabrics in the spring collection represents a direct answer to the long time demand for the use of this lush material.

In contrast to spring of '56, the current trend is for the feminine and soft "baby doll" look. The silhouette is softened, fabrics are supple, and more than one jacket type is in order.

Emphasis is on linen-like silk, followed by silk shantung in solid colors and then closely associated with silk broadcloth and silk chambray, silk tweed, silk crepe and silk combined with man-made fabrics of Dacron, Acrilan and Jersey.

The influence of the early '30s is apparent in some of the relaxed, rather informal-looking silhouettes now being shown.

In contrast to the styles set in 1956, this year's collection incorporates pleats, drapes, belted or wrapped waistlines, and pegged skirt fronts, against last season's sleek molded look.

The two-piece and three-piece ensembles are especially new, particularly when they affect the appearance of dressmaker separates.

A creation to watch is the two-piece dress with semi-fitted overblouse and sheath skirt or accordion-pleated skirt.

Another important design is the three-piece ensemble consisting of hip-length, narrow box jacket, slim or accordion-pleated skirt and companion shirtwaist blouse.

Variety Gives Spice to Men's Wear for Spring

You'll choose stripes this spring. If you're in the know about tee shirts! Whether vertical or horizontal, no matter, so long as they're stripes. Cottons and jersey cloths are most popular and collar styles feature the continental models. Orlon in plain shades with contrasting collar is a new idea.

The clothing preferences of Ivy League collegians are exerting a strong influence on the styling of male sportswear for spring.

In slacks, sport shirts and jackets, ideas that grow up on Ivy campuses emerge as even more important style factors in past seasons. But even with the obvious influence of Ivy styling, something for the spring offers something for just about everybody—and the comfort and color of new sportswear will make going back out into the sun even more fun than usual.

Fabrics will be very diversified, with interest extending through polished cottons, plaids of wool and the man-made fibers, flannels, gabardines, tropical worsteds and some silks and silk blends. Wash-and-wear models also come in for more attention.

In sports coats, there will always be a larger selection of fabrics.

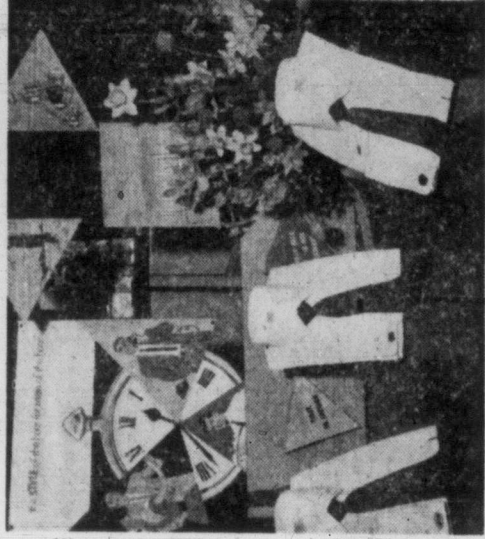

As to the styling of spring sports coats, a new button type is definitely coming into its own at the expense of the two-button model.

Bold patterns, especially plaids, will be shown more frequently. Dark shirts will be few in number as medium and light tones take over.

Men today lean toward lighter shades in their sportswear. In suits they like the lighter tones in pure wool English melanges in plain colors, as worn by Herb Wilson at right. Two and three-button models with trim lines are also popular. Paper-basted, padded shoulders, notched lapels, as worn by Harold Hamilton, are also in lighter tones and the blazer stripe is becoming popular. Harris tweeds, Shetlands, cashmeres, Irish tweeds are being shown for spring sports wear.

White is tops in men's dress shirts, giving the well-dressed man a crisp, spotless appearance. The stiffened, short-pointed collar is a favorite, and is found, too, in pastel shirts, also being shown. A number of shirts this spring have small patterns on pastel grounds.

MONTE ROBERTS

Thursday special, mixed grill...

So there was this fellow who worked in a restaurant as a bread slicer. And at first he used to slice bread two loaves at a time. Then he became more proficient, and learned to slice bread three loaves at a time.

Finally he felt capable of slicing bread four loaves at a time, but he had trouble finding a knife long enough to do the job.

He hunted high and low all over the city until he found just the ideal knife, and he rushed triumphantly back to the restaurant.

"Look boss," he cried, waving the knife, "I found a four loaf cleaver."

So there is this constituent who has a problem. Her problem is, her six-year-old collie (Lassie by name) has wanderlust.

I could make a wisecrack about "Lassie, come home," but I won't, because this is a serious problem with the constituent, and she has asked my advice.

Unfortunately, I do not know what makes dogs wish to wander, and I do not know how to stop them from doing same.

But possibly somebody has a solution, or even an idea which this constituent could try out, to keep Lassie at home.

The troubled constituent is Mrs. Irene Ward, 3230 Milgrove, telephone 2-0155, and all constructive suggestions will be gratefully received.

So there is this brand new automobile put out by Gen. Motors, and it seemed to me that at last I had found the car of my dreams.

This brand new product of Gen. Motors is a Cadillac, but it is not just a plain ordinary old Texas-type Cadillac, no sir.

It is a real fancy Cadillac, and it is priced between $18,000 and $19,000.

"Just what I have been waiting for," I said to myself when I read about this automobile.

So what happens? So then I found out only five of them have been allotted to British Columbia, and already there are 25 people standing in line to buy one.

So then I found out the way they are going to decide on who is allowed to buy one, Gen. Motors is going to hold a court of enquiry and if your blood is blue enough and your family line leads back to the fathers of confederation and you have stopped beating your wife, why, you may be permitted to spend $18,000 or $19,000 for an automobile.

So I guess I am out of luck.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Music should be considered essential in the education of children. Boyce Gaddes, associate professor of education at Victoria College, told a meeting of the Registered Music Teachers' Association Wednesday.

"Music, art and literature are essentials of life," he said. "They are among the few immortal things in the world." Mr. Gaddes urged music teachers to inspire children to listen to, and to participate in the performance of good music.

A finance committee recommendation that Victoria permit only five tag days in the course of the year was expected to be opposed in council later today by Ald. Hugh Ramsay.

He said he thought 12 tag days a year would not be an inconvenience. He was anxious that the privilege be extended to the auxiliary to B.C. Protestant Orphanage.

Unique Mobile Greenhouse At Saanichton

The Saanichton Dominion Experimental Farm, always looking for something new to improve the science of farming, has acquired a mobile greenhouse equipped with rails and wheels.

Purchased from England, the 20 by 40 wood constructed greenhouse, can be moved with ease to any spot on the farm.

The greenhouse will be used to encourage certain crops to bloom earlier than nature intended.

It will be moved from one bed of seedlings to another and kept at each until the plants get a good start from the additional warmth provided.

"We think mobile greenhouses can be particularly useful for growers in this area, horticulturist J. H. Crossley said.

This summer the greenhouse will be used extensively in experiments with outdoor chrysanthemums of which 13,000 will be planted.

Saanich Police Boys' Club will hold its inaugural rifle shoot of the season for members and interested boys 11-16 Saturday at 9 a.m. at the police revolver range in an old gravel pit immediately north of Cordova Bay-School.

Consent of parents is necessary before boys are eligible to attend.

Annual tour of Victoria's outstanding gardens in the Spring Garden Festival will be held May 2 to 4, inclusive, the Victoria Horticultural Society announced today.

In past years the gardens tour proved extremely popular, attracting visitors from the B.C. mainland and the northern states.

April 26 and 27 the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society show will be held in the Crystal Garden.

Results of the weekly session of the Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club follow:

North-South—Otto Leemant and Frank Artlett; Les Stewart and Elizabeth Warren; Sam Duprau and Joe Lukas; Eric Goodwin and Bill Browne-Cave.

East-West—Dora Duprau and James Duprau; Anne Kocutyn and Roland Perrin; Marjorie and George Beale; Laura Tingley and Isabel Kelly.

Cadets of Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, will go to Vancouver this weekend for a church parade to Saint Andrew's Wesley Church.

They will travel in HMCS New Glasgow, leaving Saturday afternoon and returning Sunday.

City Heavy Loser

School Cost Held 10.35% Too High

School board figures submitted to city council today indicated Victoria is a heavy loser in the present system of sharing district school costs.

School district 61 provided totals showing the percentage of children attending district schools from homes in Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and the provincial territories.

Following a census of 17,240 pupils attending district schools, it was found 42 per cent were resident in the city, 33 per cent in Saanich, 14 per cent in Oak Bay, 9 per cent in Esquimalt and 2 per cent in provincial areas.

At the same time, the recently prepared school budget, which assesses school costs to the member municipalities according to their gross property assessments, splits costs 52.35 per cent to Victoria, 24.26 per cent to Saanich, 16.17 per cent to Oak Bay, 5.39 per cent to Esquimalt and 1.63 per cent to provincial areas.

10.35% MORE

The tables show Victoria pays 10.35 per cent more than its share according to school populations. Oak Bay pays 2.17 per cent more than it should on the same basis.

Saanich pays 9 per cent less, Esquimalt almost 4 per cent less and provincial areas 37 per cent less than they would if costs were based on distribution of school populations.

The study was requested by city council on prompting by Ald. Geoffrey Edgell who sparked a drive to win a government second look at the Williston School formula.

LITTLE BOY, badly mangled in accident, won't be playing on his tricycle for a long time. He was walking to Chinese Mission School when accident occurred.

PASSERBY LAUDED

Boy's Leg Mangled By Truck

A Royal Jubilee Hospital pharmacist, who crawled under a truck to grasp a school boy's bleeding leg, was credited in part for saving the youth's life after a traffic accident about 8:10 a.m. at the Roundabout.

In "fairly satisfactory" condition at Jubilee at noon was Alfred Storm, 7½, 627 Manchester, son of German immigrants Alfred and Wilma Storm.

He was in collision with a truck loaded with lumber as he walked to classes at Chinese Mission School, where he has been a pupil since January.

RIPPED

The boy's left leg was ripped from groin to knee, exposing much of the thigh when a rear wheel of the truck passed over the leg.

There were no other known injuries apart from abrasions.

Assistant to the head pharmacist at Jubilee, Charles W. Burr passed the accident scene minutes after it happened. He was on his way to work and immediately stopped his car to assist.

TOURNIQUET

He crawled under the truck and held the leg, which was bleeding profusely, until he was able to fix a tourniquet and halt much of the bleeding until police arrived.

Mr. Burr praised the teamwork demonstrated by police, who worked on the boy continuously until getting him to hospital emergency.

OPERATION

Doctors performed a lengthy operation in closing the gaping wound.

Alfred is in the second grade at Mission School. His family had only just moved to the Manchester address and it is thought the boy may have been unfamiliar with traffic at the Roundabout.

Library Asks Bigger Budget

Victoria Public library today submitted a 1957 budget of $179,876 to Greater Victoria municipalities.

Estimated expenditures are $3,392 over last year. The increase was due to increases in library salaries.

Municipalities sharing in the library service will contribute to the expenses on the basis of Victoria 51 per cent, Saanich 28 per cent, Oak Bay 14 per cent, Esquimalt 4.25 per cent and Central Saanich 2.75 per cent.

The cost of circulating one book has decreased since 1952 from 37 cents to 32 cents, the budget revealed and over the same period gross circulation has soared from 405,815 to 541,962.

Library chairman James Neely said he felt the board was to be congratulated at holding its budget so close to the 1956 level, despite rising costs.

Street Lighting Helps Fight Against Crime, Convention Hears

There is significant relationship between poorly lighted streets and crime, Marshall Waterman, Bloomfield, N.J., president of the 8,811-member Illuminating Engineering Society, said here today.

Addressing the 11th annual Pacific Northwest regional conference which started today in the Empress Hotel, he told the 150 delegates that, conversely, well-lighted business centres reduces the tendency towards criminal acts, and also means increased trade.

Four out of five homes are improperly lighted, he said, as the public is basically ignorant of proper lighting principles.

"Lighting design must consider atmosphere, not only providing light with which to see, but light in which to be seen."

Industry has found, he said, there is a definite advantage in morale and production when lighting is bright and cheerful.

Today the lighting scene is being brightened and glare eliminated as "people absolutely refuse to put up with ugly naked bulbs, which have been eyesores for many decades."

Now there are more than 10,000 different lamps for different purposes.

Mr. Waterman called for increased technical research in the industry and furtherance of idea exchanges between lighting consultants and architects.

Willard Alphin, Salem, Mass., speaking on trends in school lighting, predicted an increase in visual education aids which will require that classrooms be capable of being darkened easily and quickly.

LONGER ROOMS

Another probable trend, he said, will be towards longer classrooms of irregular shape with different areas devoted to different purposes, and with "flexible" lighting to serve these purposes.

The group was welcomed by Mayor Percy Scourah, who expressed a couple of thoughts of his own regarding lighting.

He scored "these restaurants... which try to establish a phoney romantic atmosphere" by reducing lighting.

"I like to see what I'm eating and drinking."

Chairman of the three-day conference at which the 24-member Vancouver Island chapter of the society is host, is Gordon Roper, B.C. Electric Co. here.

An interesting display of old and new lights, a collection by Victoria's electrical engineer Kenneth Reid, drew attention of delegates.

Included in the display are "absolutely priceless" carbon filament bulbs, dated 1885, only six years after Edison first invented the light bulb. Biggest bulb in the assembly is a 1,500 watt floodlight, and weakest is a five candlepower unit.

Surprise Test Off Trial Is.

Units of the Royal Canadian and United States navies, assisted by land-based aircraft and the U.S. Coast Guard, carried out one of the most extensive and "hush-hush" peacetime practice submarine hunts in Juan de Fuca Strait near Trial Island Wednesday night and early this morning.

The exercise—details of which are completely classified by both navies—was based on a supposed sub "sighting" in the Strait.

Resulting activity, including dropping of parachute flares and firing of star shells, attracted attention of many waterfront residents.

Only a few senior naval officers knew of the exercise in advance.

It was carried out with grim reality and sprung as a surprise on officers and crew of the ships and planes concerned.

Two frigates and two minesweepers of the RCN Pacific Command are believed to have taken part, together with at least one USN destroyer.

Practice firing in the Strait was scheduled for today, with the frigates HMC Ships Sussexvale, Ste. Therese and New Glasgow firing anti-aircraft and surface armament from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., and again tonight from 11 p.m. to midnight.

Open Letter to MLAs Hits Ban on Live Music in Bars

An open letter protesting the "ban" on live music in licensed premises and calling for appointment of a three-man liquor board was given members of the legislature today by the 150-member local 247 of the American Federation of Musicians.

The "unconstitutional" ban is depriving musicians of a livelihood, the letter said. Canadian liquor legislation in all provinces but Quebec and Ontario "is directly responsible for the lack of development of Canadian musicians, artists and entertainers... consequently entertainers are being forced to leave this country in order to further their careers."

Live music in licensed premises would tend to reduce liquor consumption, making it of secondary importance, the brief pointed out.

Existing regulations state that music is permissible, but does not define interpretation of the act.

Musicians believe this is "loose legislation."

$500 Bank Reward Given TCA Man For Bandit Tip

Airlines ticket agent J. Reid Hannan, Sidney, today received a $500 cheque from Canadian Bankers' Association in reward for his part in the capture and conviction of bank robber Leon and Wilson last January.

Mr. Hannan had been given a description of the bandit and spotted him at Trans-Canada Airlines Patricia Bay airport terminal a few hours after the hold-up, Jan. 5, of the Douglas, and Cormorant branch of the Royal Bank.

He informed police, who later picked up Wilson in Seattle.

Springtime Accessories
For the Junior Charmers

By PENNY SAVER

Accessories are the thing! Not only adult females, but little girls and high school girls as well realize the importance of the proper accessories to complete outfits. Belts and collars to perk up dresses or skirts and blouses are most popular with the bobby sox set, and manufacturers this season have turned to pampering their tastes. Plastics that look and feel like feathers are wonderful, because they are pliable and washable, and... inexpensive. Belts in a range of widths from the very narrow to the wider contour style come with matching stiff collars. Gold studs highlight many belts, and other decorative touches on the various styles give them fashion-plate features that the girls love.

Pastels, solid colors and leather tones are available in the sets, which sell at $1.29.

Also for the young-fry are summertime purses of clear plastic. These clutch purses close with a jeweled snap, and inside each purse is a pair of sunglasses and a matching comb. No trouble finding anything in this purse, you don't even have to open it to see what's inside. A novel carry-all for girls of all ages—they will withstand a lot of wear and tear during a summer's use. Each purse costs $1.29.

Now, for older sister or mother, here are smart new earrings, that feature something new. In an oval of gold or silver are solid centres of suede or smooth leather. A perfect complement for suede accessories are the black suede earrings. And, of course, for more sporty outfits with leather belts and purses, you'll want the lighter-toned natural leathers. The earrings are $1 a pair. Bracelets and casual necklets are also available at slightly higher prices.

Spring hats in a profusion of light colors are everywhere in town, and the styles, keyed to the fashionable hair styles, are so feminine and flattering! You can pay any price you like, from $2.95 to $29.50 in most stores. In a low and medium price range, even the strictest budgeters will find dainty and large chapeaux covered with flowers or tulle or both to make you feel that spring has really arrived.

Gold and Fur
Still Brought
In for Trade

By TERRY FRENCH

Tales of trading posts, Indians, gold and furs are familiar to all, especially here on the west coast. But what to us is just a tale, is to Mrs. Marge McDougall, a reality.

Storekeeper, postmaster and part-time nurse for the Indians are roles she fills at Finlay Forks "where the Peace River begins." There, she and her husband run a trading post. Entire population is 135 Siksannie Indians and four whites.

As well as the post, the McDougalls have an extensive trap line and a small lumbering concern to fill their days. Nearest neighbours are 120 miles away. Travelling is done by boat until the high water, when it is necessary for all passengers and supplies to be flown in.

At this outpost in B.C.'s undeveloped north, the McDougall's take in gold and furs in trade from the Indians as pioneers did in this country 100 years ago.

"The really thriving fur sales from this district are no more," Marge McDougall explains. At one time fur auctions were held right in Finlay Forks, and the Indians received good payment from the harvest of their trap lines, but now the fur market is gone, so, the people are desperately poor, with no means, save occasional gold panning, to make a living.

There is no market for grown products in the area, the visitor says. "There are many minerals here, which could provide work for the population, but there is no money for the necessary digging and mining materials and machinery."

Mrs. McDougall's devotion to the Indians is evident as she talks of them. Typical of her tales is a Christmas story. It is the accepted thing that all who can, go to the McDougall's for Christmas dinner. This particular dinner was to be a bleak one with few visitors, and Mrs. McDougall in particular

About a thank-you note: We just moved to a house that we built and were presented with a handsome gift from a company which does business with my husband. The card is signed such-a-n-d-such-a company with no names. Since we do know the person who was the instigator, do I begin the thank-you note addressing this man or the firm? We do not know even the names of the officers or other personnel.

Louise Davis answers: Begin your letter "Dear Mr. Gardner and members of Such-and-Such-a Company." Mr. Gardner will receive the letter and, of course, will pass it on to others so that all will be duly thanked.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

You Can Cut Calories,
Build Health at Lunch

Many people think of lunch as a completely unimportant meal. The woman in the home may eat anything which happens to be left over. Even those who are interested in nutrition and take great care when planning breakfast and dinner, often just snack without thought at noon.

In some ways this is not a bad idea. If you eat an adequate breakfast, with cereal, fruit juice, eggs and toast with coffee or milk, you get many of the essentials for fine nutrition. Then if you plan a well-balanced evening meal, with fresh vegetables, meat, fish or fowl, salad and potatoes, you are not going to have any serious deficiencies.

You can consume a light lunch without damage to your health and with benefit to your figure. However, what you eat at lunch can make a big difference in both your appearance and your nutrition.

Luncheon provides a splendid opportunity to cut down on calories and build up on health. You can build up your vitamin and mineral and protein intake and still keep your calories low. For instance, you could have a medium slice of lean meat and a tomato-and-cottage cheese salad and a glass of skim milk; or a tomato and hard-boiled egg salad (if you did not have eggs at breakfast), and a cup of vegetable soup; or a serving of salmon and a fresh fruit salad with milk; or a lean beef or cheese sandwich; a glass of buttermilk and an apple or orange.

The mid-day meal gives you a wonderful opportunity to add to the health values in your diet, an opportunity you should not miss. It is important also to remember that the little leftovers from the icebox you may snack on which seem so harmless, often are packed with calories.

The distribution of your calories among daily menus is an individual matter, depending on your habits and tastes. However, I feel sure that the "two-meal a day" routine is a mistake. You will experience fatigue and unnecessary hollowness when using this plan, and are likely to consume more than the allowed calories at the evening meal because you will be so hungry.

If you would like to have my calories chart, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 36 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Visitors Entertained

Wives of delegates to the 11th Pacific Northwest Regional Illuminating Engineering Society conference this week at the Empress Hotel are being widely entertained during their stay in Victoria. Wednesday evening, with their husbands, they were guests at a cocktail party in the Georgian Lounge of the Empress Hotel and today, following a sightseeing tour at Royal Roads, the ladies were honored at a luncheon in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Mrs. Courtney Haddock spoke on "Bone China."

Miss Ross Feted

Mrs. B. Stipkala, Mrs. H. Young, Mrs. G. Gurney and Miss D. Owens were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower at the Skinner Street home of Mrs. Stipkala, to honor Miss Nora Ross, bride-elect, whose marriage to Mr. David Strawbridge takes place April 6. Gifts were arranged in a mauve and yellow decorated umbrella. A corsage of pink roses was presented to Miss Ross, and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ross, received pink and white carnations. The bride-elect's table was centred with a bouquet of daffodils and Miss Ross cut a shower cake decorated with a ship to compliment the groom, who is in the Royal Canadian Navy. Invited guests were Mrs. R. P. Mylrea, Mrs. J. Gibson, Mrs. V. E. Morrow, Mrs. Agnes McKenzie, Mrs. N. Wallace, Mrs. H. Whitehead, Mrs. M. Lawrence, Mrs. E. Nicholson, Mrs. A. Coutts, Mrs. R. Stepling, Mrs. A. Green, Mrs. F. Freethy and Misses Emily Dutka, Peggy Beadnell, Jess Richards, Donna Wallace and Diane Whitehead.

Wedding Guests

Guests at the Tebbutt-Berg wedding recently in First United Church included Mr. M. Bazett, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. W. Thistlewaite, Chemainus; Mr. and Mrs. J. Homer, Rev. and Mrs. Routley, Mr. and Mrs. L. Bentum and Laurie, Mrs. Murray, and Mr. Graham Murray, Duncan; and Mrs. K. Wilham, Courtenay and Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Homer, Campbell River.

Receives Names

Fifteen-month-old Theresa Alice Brown was christened, Sunday, in St. Andrew's Cathedral by Father M. Costello. The baby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Brown, has as godparents, Miss Margaret Best and Mr. Frank Bodenchuk. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Johnson and paternal grandfather is Mr. George Brown. Following the ceremony, tea was served at the home of the baby's parents, 633 Michigan Street.

Among Institute board members attending the meeting today were, from the left, Mrs. J. Frolek, Knutsford, B.C.; Mrs. R. Partington, Francois Lake, directors; Mrs. R. C.

White, Willow Point, Nelson, B.C., provincial home economics convener, and Mrs. R. Palmer, Okanagan Mission, a director. The Centennial cook book was discussed.

Church Choir Sings for Ceremony Uniting Young Victoria Couple

The choir of First United Church provided a lovely musical background for the wedding ceremony in which Miss Sylvia Irene Berg, daughter of Mrs. T. L. Berg, Graham Street, and the late Mr. Berg, became the bride of Kenneth William Alvin Tebbutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Tebbutt of Sooke.

Organist was Mrs. J. R. Wood. Before the processional the choir, of which the bride is a member, sang "Praise My Soul," "The Lord's Prayer" and "Hebrew Benediction" were sung at the altar, and "The 23rd Psalm" during the signing of the register.

The petite and lovely bride was gown in a ballerina-length dress of frosty white tiered nylon lace with bolero of nylon net over a strapless bodice. She wore a chapel veil of embroidered nylon net held to a dainty white nylon head-dress trimmed with opalescent sequins. Completing her outfit, she wore tiny pearl earrings and carried a bouquet of tawny gold tellurian roses and white spring flowers.

She was given in marriage by her uncle, R. C. Davis.

Mrs. W. Leach, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Frances Macdonald, bridesmaid, identically gowned in gold sheath dresses fashioned with back panels and cummerbunds.

Their gold hats were trimmed with yellow blossoms and they carried colonial bouquets of pale yellow daffodils.

The groom had his brother, David (Bud) Tebbutt, as best man, and ushers were Don Murray, Mike Bazett, and, junior usher, the bride's brother, Bjorn Berg.

A three-tier wedding cake surrounded with yellow tulle centred the bride's table, where tiny bronze rosebuds and vases of yellow narcissi completed the arrangement. Standard baskets of spring flowers repeated the yellow and white theme. David Oliphant proposed the toast to the bride's future happiness.

For a honeymoon in Vancouver and a motor trip to Cranbrook, the bride wore a copper-toned tweed fitted suit with beige coat and accessories and chocolate brown purse and hat. Her corsage was of tellurian roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Tebbutt will live in Victoria.

IRISH MEN AND WOMEN WOULD BE 'NOT THE MARRYING KIND'

DUBLIN (CP)—Kathleen Murphy is an attractive Irish colleen with a soft, lilting brogue. And like about half of her Irish sisters, she is, at 27, neither married nor being courted. The reason: "Nobody's asked me."

An Irishman doesn't look so much for romance and glamor as he does for a girl who will be a good mother and a thrifty housewife. If he's a farmer, the lucky girl must also be strong enough to help with the chores. And above all, the eligible Irish male prefers a girl with a dowry.

The even sadder truth is that a good many Irishmen apparently don't want a wife at all. For more than a quarter of Ireland's 3,000,000 men and women are still bachelors and spinsters at the age of 60.

Hookey-Playing Boys Lived Storybook Life of Huck Finn

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—While their parents thought they were in school every day, two young boys lived a Huck Finn life for 6½ months "exploring and sittin' and watchin' the sky."

The carefree life they built for themselves was shattered Wednesday and they were to return to school today.

Police discovered Ora Lee Linville, 14, and his brother, Jerry, 13, sitting beside a camp fire in a cave located in a creek bank.

"We spent the morning exploring," Ora said. "Then we'd build a camp fire and eat lunch."

In the afternoons we'd just sit and watch the sky or the creek until school was out and then we'd go back home."

Sometimes they would hike into the country if the day was warm. Their mother thought the boys had enrolled in school last September. They admitted it was a touch-and-go situation keeping mom and dad fooled.

Bergman Best For Anastasia

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The movie industry has given its highest honor to Ingrid Bergman, who left Hollywood eight years ago amid scandal and criticism and hasn't returned.

The 43-year-old Swedish star won the Academy Oscar—her second—at its 29th annual awards presentations Wednesday night. The prize was for her sensitive portrayal of the bewildered Russian princess in Anastasia.

Miss Bergman, who is in Paris, was the star in absentia, of ceremonies in which Yul Brynner won the top-actor award for The King and I and Around the World in 80 Days was acclaimed the best picture of 1956.

HEIRESS ROLE
Winners of supporting-player awards were Dorothy Malone, as a sexy Texan heiress in Written on the Wind, and Anthony Quinn, the artist Gauguin of Lust for Life.

Ingrid was the wife of a Hollywood surgeon and the mother of his daughter when she went to Italy and became the mother of a child by Italian director Roberto Rossellini and later his wife.

Anastasia, which marked her return to American films, was filmed in Europe.

George Stevens received the best-director award for his sweeping portrayal of a Texas oil family in Giant. He won the 1951 Oscar for direction of A Place in the Sun.

The $100 gold-plated statuettes voted annually by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences can be worth millions to careers and box office grosses.

Quotes of the evening included that of dynamic producer Mike Todd, who, backstage, mumbled over and over:

"Imagine this—and being married to Liz, too."

Todd had just kissed his beautiful bride, Elizabeth Taylor, and then run and walked to the stage to accept the best-picture award for "Around the World in 80 Days."

"This is especially wonderful for me," he told the audience, "because it's my first time at bat."

Quinn told reporters he was so surprised at his victory that: "I feel just like Harry Truman."

Like the former U.S. president in the 1948 election, Quinn wasn't favored to win. Most forecasts had tabbed Robert Stack, the alcoholic, psychopathic son in Written on the Wind, Quinn, 41, won a supporting Oscar in 1952 for Viva Zapata.

In an acceptance speech which Miss Malone said later she couldn't recall, the 29-year-old actress dedicated her Oscar to her 16-year-old brother, Bill Malone of Dallas, Tex. A lightning bolt killed him in 1954 on a golf course.

SECOND BIG PICTURE
Brynner, 41, born on the island of Sakhalin near Siberia of Mongolian and Romanian parents, won his Oscar in his second starring picture. The shaven-headed actor accepted the award from wild-haired Italian star Anna Magnani, who won best-actress honors last year for Rose Tattoo.

Brynner said his Oscar will be fastened to wood or steel in a place of honor in his house. He won it as royal sire of 82 children in The King and I.

A surprise winner was the song "Que Sera, Sera" ("Whatever Will Be, Will Be"), written by Ray Evans and Jay Livingston.

True Love, sung by Bing Crosby and Princess Grace Kelly in High Society, was the favorite.

Intensive Sales Meetings Prepare Local Newspaper Ad Salesmen to Assist the Retail Advertiser

Alex Davyduke, display advertising salesman, is pictured hard at work along with representatives from other newspapers who attended the Newspaper Advertising Workshop recently held in Portland, Oregon.

Latest techniques of successful advertising were studied thoroughly and put into operation by advertising department staff in Victoria to assist local merchants with their advertising problems.

THE AD SALESMAN FROM YOUR LOCAL DAILY NEWSPAPER IS COMPLETELY INFORMED ON THE RETAILER'S PROBLEMS

The current problems and needs of the retail advertiser are of prime interest to your local newspaper ad salesman. He is fully qualified to help you work out these difficulties and make newspapers, which receive the major portion of your advertising dollar, AN EVEN MORE EFFECTIVE SELLING TOOL!

Ask your salesman to help you analyze your present advertising setup and determine ways to make your business more profitable. He will help you build a sound advertising plan that takes full advantage of every selling opportunity, month by month, and department by department.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

"The Stars impel... They do not compel! What you make of your life is largely up to you."

FRIDAY, MARCH 29, 1957
ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Get off alone for a little while today and think out how you can increase your productivity and welfare by making some unostentatious changes in your work, or in getting rid of some limiting conditions. Do so tactfully for right results.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—All kinds of co-operation from friends and attachments, youngsters, and in connection with gaining your hopes and wishes, as well as arranging for pleasure, sports, recreation can now be yours by making some new approach thereto. Be happy.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Worldly matters require your exacting attention today. However, one of your family may be irked because you place your attention away from him or her. So make sure you explain what you are endeavoring to do. Then you gain added popularity.
CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Your mind is busily engaged today in uncovering new ways to operate that will increase your efficiency and approval from associates, as well as the knowledge with which you are endowed. Fine for trips, jaunts for conferences, errands, etc.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Financial problems can keep you properly occupied and all day, evening. It's necessary that you get your affairs on a better foundation and basis if you are to have the ease and peace of mind you seek. Then you can concentrate on attachment.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—This is your day to get together with all partners and opponents. Talk out any points of difference, since you can arrive at meeting of minds that can be in effect for some time to come. Let others see your willingness to co-operate.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Now you can pitch in at that multitude of odds, ends awaiting your active attention. However, it's necessary that you do add touch of color here, charm there, added timesaver, efficiency at another place, to get full use of today.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Get your personal charm brought out by the treatments at beauty parlor, barbershop, wherever you find your attractiveness is renewed. Then get together with friends, charmers who are important to you and have a good time.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—It's necessary that you get your foundational affairs in better shape, at home or over property or family matters, before you can venture into the outside world to make a big success there. So, fix up your dwelling, charm your clan, do whatever possible to please kin, neighbors, close comrades, business contacts is excellent. Confer and arrive at understanding with them. Then get errands done, wind up correspondence, fix car. Make sales. Expand.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Getting out and doing whatever possible to please kin, neighbors, close comrades, business contacts is excellent. Confer and arrive at understanding with them. Then get errands done, wind up correspondence, fix car. Make sales. Expand.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Look at where you stand in financial matters. Then pay bills, make collections where needed. Fine for improving and making repairs on property. Devise better budget. Get your weak points, your throat and voice, in better shape right now.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—This is your day to think out how you'd like relations to be between you and every other individual. Then, you can go to the most influential and experienced man you know and get his suggestions and/or active interest and co-operation.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN FRIDAY...
Friday's child is one of those youngsters who will not be happy unless and until he has an awareness and understanding of spiritual or religious tenets and precepts, as well as the practical and materialistic views which one must have to live in the outside world. Always have good literature near his or her bedside. Be sure you do not allow those who are ill, etc., to be near your progeny or he can take condition upon himself. Then, your talented child unfolds into remarkable, highly successful individual.

Totem Landscape Delayed by City

Parks Committee Cuts $33,000 From Estimates in Paring Drive

A sum of $3,025 for landscaping the base of the world's tallest totem pole in Beacon Hill Park, was chopped from this year's work program Wednesday by city council parks committee.

The committee lopped a total of $33,000 from its estimates which had included $84,000 in new parks conveniences.

"It's a question whether the taxpayers would be hurt if none of this was done," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, noting the new projects represented about a one mill increase in themselves.

The committee passed an estimate of $700 for installation of two plaques and a stone memorial cairn.

But the estimate for landscaping, building paths to the pole, providing water for sprinkling, was questioned.

"It was certainly a wonderful effort by The Times," said Ald. Edgelow. "I wonder whether we could ask them to undertake maintenance. Would it be unreasonable to ask The Times to finish the job?"

He added: "I was by on Sunday and saw nothing wrong with the site other than the plaques were not installed."

It was decided to delay other improvements until next year.

New Playing Field Dropped at Topaz

The committee also reduced the estimates by cutting out development of an additional playing field at Topaz ($12,000), and a $4,200 picnic centre planned for Beacon Hill.

Also dropped from estimates were half the cost of providing holly baskets for downtown streets at Christmas in arrangement with Chamber of Commerce ($950), pest control estimates were reduced $650, and $550 asked for a garage and storage place for the Beacon Hill caretaker's residence was dropped.

Plans for two Beacon Hill tennis courts to cost $7,000 also were cancelled. An $850 expansion of Beacon Hill parking areas was cut out as well as $850 for two shuffleboard courts.

Mr. Warren was asked to determine how much use Saanich sports groups make of city parks.

Parks committee may ask Saanich to contribute to their upkeep.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said assuming Saanich teams use Topaz playing fields, "could we get Saanich to donate something?"

"There are only a couple of

AVM Stedman, Retired RCAF Officer, Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Air Vice-Marshal Ernest Walter Stedman, 69, a former director-general of research in the RCAF, died Wednesday. He retired in 1946.

Born in Malling, Kent, England and a graduate of the Royal College of Science, London, his life was spent on the scientific and technical side of aviation.

In 1920 he moved to Canada as chief of the technical directorate of the air board of Canada. When the RCAF was formed four years later he joined.

In August, 1930, he represented the RCAF on a trans-Atlantic flight of the dirigible R-100.

Civic Duty Absentees Given Leeway

A clause in the government's new Municipal Act which would have disqualified an alderman from holding office after three months' continuous absence from council meetings was amended in the legislature Wednesday afternoon.

The clause was changed to read that an alderman or salaried officer of a municipality would be disqualified if he was absent for more than three months—without leave.

The words "without leave" were inserted on the motion of Provincial Secretary Wesley Black after members on both sides of the house had raised objections.

George Gregory (Liberal-Victoria) objected that an alderman who took a three-months' holiday could be disqualified under the original clause.

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson recalled the statement here recently by Calgary Mayor Don Mackay that outlying municipalities which use central service but don't pay toward them should be annexed.

Ald. Edgelow proposed Saanich use of city parks be surveyed.

"Then at least we could go to them and say, 'Here are the facts about the arena and the parks, we request that you give us some assistance.' I am sure they are fair-minded."

Hanna Will Make Bid For Immigrant Status

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Taylor, counsel for Christian George Hanna, said Wednesday night application will be made this week to have the stateless wanderer admitted to Canada as an immigrant.

He added: "I am sure the application will be granted." Hanna, who came to Canada as a stowaway aboard the Norwegian freighter Gudveig late last year, won an indefinite stay Tuesday when Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan of the British Columbia Supreme Court quashed a deportation order made against him by the immigration department.

Immigration Minister Pickersill said in Ottawa Wednesday the 25-year-old wanderer will be left "undisturbed for the time being without him being landed as an immigrant or any action being taken to deport him."

Mr. Taylor said this would be an "intolerable situation" if it continued indefinitely. He said the minister "at the earliest date should adopt a benevolent attitude" towards Hanna and allow him to land as an immigrant.

The residence time required for citizenship is five years from the time a person is admitted as an immigrant, he added.

J. Arthur MacLennan, immigration department counsel here, said he has not received instructions from Ottawa on whether Mr. Justice Sullivan's decision will be appealed.

Britain has more than 100 theatres with established repertory companies.

U.K. STRIKE END SEEN, EMPLOYERS MEET UNION

LONDON (CP)—Employers of 1,000,000 striking industrial workers today agreed for the first time to negotiate directly with union leaders on their demands for a 10-per-cent wage increase. The employers' decision, announced in the House of Commons, raised hopes that the crippling work stoppage, affecting Britain's vital exports, might be settled soon.

Victoria Excluded From Metro Plan

The provincial government did not have the Greater Victoria area in mind when it drew up the "metro" provisions of the new Municipal Act.

This was indicated by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black when he told the legislature Wednesday night: "Metro is not the answer in Greater Victoria in my humble opinion. Their answer is amalgamation."

Mr. Black was answering questions by P.A. Gibbs (Lib.-Oak Bay) on the metropolitan area plan spelled out in the new Municipal Act.

It became clear that the only area in the province likely to be encouraged by the province to enter a form of metropolitan union is the Lower Mainland. The act provides that the minister may direct the councils of two or more adjacent municipalities to set up a joint committee to study metro. The minister may also direct the councils of two or more adjacent municipalities to set up a joint committee to study metro. The minister may also direct the councils of two or more adjacent municipalities to set up a joint committee to study metro.

New Peace Move Announced By U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain today freed exiled Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus and said talks on the colony's future will be held with him and other Cypriot representatives.

The government also offered the terrorist leader Greek Col. George Grivas safe conduct out of Cyprus.

Makarios, leader of the Greek Cypriot movement for union with Greece, was deported a year ago to the Seychelle Islands for refusing to condemn terrorism.

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd told the House of Commons Makarios will be free to go anywhere except Cyprus, and passage from his Indian island home of exile is being arranged immediately. Three other Greek Orthodox clerics detained with him are also being released, Lennox-Boyd said.

Britain last week offered to release Makarios if he called for cessation of the two-year-old campaign by the terrorist organization, Ethniki Organosis Kyprion Agoniston National Organization of Cypriot combatants.

The archbishop's reply, published here today, said it is his sincere desire to see peace restored in Cyprus.

"I appeal to the EOKA organization and to the British government as well," Makarios said.

Lennox-Boyd said in his statement that the state of emergency will not be lifted in Cyprus until Governor Sir John Harding feels it is safe to do so.

KILLERS HUNTED IN DESERT

Paper Trail Left By Kidnap Victim

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Government officials said today troops and police have picked up a paper trail left by a pretty American woman kidnapped by bandit tribesmen who killed her husband and another United States official.

Government sources said they believe the band of about 12 nomads kidnapped Mrs. Anita Huovar Carroll, 35, of Issaquah, Wash., to "sell her on the Arab coasts of the Persian Gulf and the Gulf of Oman."

More than 1,000 Iranian troops and police were reported closing in on the bandits, fleeing across the Tangeerkheh Desert of south-eastern Iran. There was speculation they might be trying to escape into Pakistan.

Reports reaching the capital said the search force had "found little pieces of paper thrown away by Mrs. Carroll as she was forcibly taken away." The reports said the hunters found the paper trail useful in their pursuit.

The slain Americans, Iranian officials said, were Mrs. Carroll's husband, Kevin, 37, a development adviser for Kerman, and Brewster A. Wilson, 35, of Portland, Ore., a regional specialist for the Near East Foundation.

The Carrolls and Wilson were driving in a two-jeep party from Iranshahr to Port Chahbar, on the Gulf of Oman. They were ambushed by the bandits Sunday night and held off their attackers for a time with pistol fire.

Reports reaching the capital said the search force had "found little pieces of paper thrown away by Mrs. Carroll as she was forcibly taken away." The reports said the hunters found the paper trail useful in their pursuit.

HIGHLIGHTS

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of recommendations of the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting in its report issued today:

Appointment of a "board of broadcast governors" responsible for supervising all broadcasting in Canada, under Parliament.

Elimination of the present CBC board of governors, which now supervises operations of both the CBC and private stations.

The CBC would retain authority to direct private stations in the use of its "national service."

The federal government's policy of single-station TV operation in viewing areas should soon be abandoned but second stations should meet rigorous performance standards.

Proposed new system of regulation would not make any fundamental change in concept of existing system.

Federal treasury would contribute about $470,000,000 over the next six years to finance CBC expansion and operations, largely for TV.

There would be no licence on TV or radio receivers. Yield from a 15 per cent excise tax on radio and TV receivers—now going to the CBC for operations—would be used for capital purposes.

The CBC—which now gets its money year-to-year from Parliament—should be financed on a long-term basis founded generally on the amount of national consumer spending.

Canada's system of combining publicly and privately owned broadcasting should be maintained.

Enforcement of broadcast regulations should be tightened. The regulatory body should not hesitate to cancel station licences for flagrant violations.

Development of more live Canadian programs should be encouraged, in both radio and TV.

The commission suggested the CBC abandon its Dominion radio network (Dominion is a secondary network). Regulations for the program performance of private stations should not be based on a national minimum but on the capabilities of stations.

For the future, there should be a statutory prohibition against more than 20 per cent non-Canadian ownership in a Canadian broadcasting station.

Half the CBC's television service would be in color by 1963, following a start on color TV two years from now.

AGAINST CANADIAN ENVOY

'Red' Charges Raised Again

WASHINGTON (AP)—Counsel for the Senate sub-committee says if Canada takes the position that Canadian diplomat E. N. Norman never has been a Communist, this is contrary to information the FBI has given the U.S. state department.

A new chapter in the Senate internal security sub-committee's investigation of Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt, was made public today in the wake of a sharp protest by the Canadian government against the inquiry.

The new material was given out in the face of a state department request that it not be released because it "might be damaging to our relations with Canada." Joseph Reap, department press officer, said in response to queries that Undersecretary Christian A. Herter took that stand in a letter to sub-committee chairman James Eastland (Dem.-Miss.).

The department, after the Canadian protest, had said allegations in the hearing "do not represent opinions of the United States government."

Basic CBC System Little Changed— No TV Licence Fee

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A multitude of changes in Canada's radio and television setup—including more Canadian TV—is recommended today in the report of the royal commission on broadcasting.

But no basic change in the structure of Canadian broadcasting is called for in the report of the three-man body headed by R. M. Fowler of Montreal.

It proposes a new supervisory system for broadcasting, different in name but not in function from the present one.

The federal government's single-station policy for TV is about ready for abandonment, the commission said, an innovation that would bring two stations to some viewing areas under certain conditions.

A new method of financing would be launched for the CBC—

to give it financial stability for operation and development over five years at a stretch—with the main funds coming out of Parliament's general revenues.

These public funds would amount to some $470,000,000 over the coming six years.

There would be no licence fee on TV or radio receivers, though the present 15-per-cent excise tax on receivers would continue, to be used for capital expansion. It now goes into CBC operating revenues.

Regulations should be tightened and its proposed "board of broadcast governors" should not hesitate to cancel station licences for flagrant violations.

2. Development of more live Canadian programs should be encouraged on radio and TV.

3. The CBC's French-language service should be extended.

4. There should be tougher standards for the program performance of private stations.

5. The CBC might abandon its Dominion radio network—secondary to the trans-Canada—which is made up of about 50 private stations taking programs from a Toronto CBC outlet.

6. The commission said that half the CBC's television service would be in color by 1963, and it estimated a start on color two years from now.

1. Enforcement of broadcast

On the more immediate question of how broadcasting is to be regulated—a top issue in commission hearings through 5½ months last year—the commission proposed a shuffling and redefinition of functions now split be-

Between the 11-man CBC board of governors and the CBC management.

It proposed to set up a new "board of broadcast governors" distinct from the CBC and having supervisory authority over all broadcasting, including the CBC and private broadcasters.

Under this proposal, the whole 15-man personnel of the new board would be part-time, with the chairman getting $10,000 a year and the vice-chairman $5,000. Present full-time chairman of the CBC board of governors is A. D. Dunton, at $22,500.

The commission called for a new post of president of the CBC along with a general manager, which it now has, with their salaries to be set by the cabinet. Evident candidates for the presidency and general management would be Mr. Dunton and the present general manager, J. A. Quimet.

Under the commission's proposals, the CBC would retain a strong measure of control over private stations. It could continue to demand that programs considered necessary to national service be carried by private stations.

But the board of broadcast governors would have over-riding

CBC Single-Channel TV Policy Near End

OTTAWA (CP)—The Fowler royal commission of broadcasting today proposed stiff conditions for the licensing of two or more television stations in any given area.

The commission's report said the time "has come, or is near at hand," when the government's "single-channel" policy—the licensing of only one TV station in any city—should be abandoned.

But before this is done, the commission said, regulations should be passed to ensure that the programming of a second station will not be "substantially poorer" than that now offered by the national network.

Looking at the future of television in Canada, the three-man royal commission headed by R. M. Fowler of Montreal said the CBC and private broadcasters should plan to increase present TV broadcasting hours and widen network coverage.

In broad terms, the commission suggested regulations, should at hand, "when the government's provide that while second stations could not produce as many 'specials' as the national network, it probably could provide greater content of local and regional programs."

There should be a set minimum of news reports, discussions of current events and services to such minority groups as farmers, children and music lovers "whether or not such programs are capable of attracting commercial sponsorship."

METRO

later may "resolve any conflicts or inconsistencies" in the report and order a referendum.

A metropolitan government would be set up if a majority of the voters in each of two-thirds in number of the municipalities involved approve the plan.

TOO SMALL

The government feels that Greater Victoria is too small an area to support both local councils and a super-council as provided under metro.

Under amalgamation all local councils would merge into one. Amalgamation is provided for under section 25 of the new Municipal Act which states that when councils of two or more adjoining municipalities have each passed a resolution favoring union, the cabinet will bring it about.

But the initiative must come from the individual municipalities and not the minister, as under the metro plan.

Municipalities comprising the much larger area of the Lower Mainland would best have their interests looked after by metro, than complete amalgamation, the government feels.

LEADERSHIP NEEDED

Mr. Black said the Lower Mainland situation had been juggled about for the last four years and "leadership" is needed there.

He denied a claim by Mr. Gibbs that he was given "dictatorship powers under the new act."

"I have no idea to push any one at all," Mr. Black said.

An education program will be carried out to persuade Lower Mainland citizens of the value of metro government, Mr. Black said.

"The people must be told the truth," he said. "We must not say metro will mean lower taxes because in some cases they will be increased."

BOOST IN CIVIC COSTS

Victoria aldermen will have to pare $500,000 from the over-all 1957 estimates to maintain the 1956 tax rate, city comptroller Dennis A. Young said Wednesday.

Taking into consideration all departmental preliminary budgets and $150,000 asked for added school costs, he said the increased expenditures indicated represent about eight mills on the city tax rate, or $750,000.

Revenue was expected to be up about three mills this year.

NORMAN CRIBBENS

IN THE LEGISLATURE

Sound, Fury Dies In Wee Sma' Hours

Everyone was "so tired when Premier Bennett moved adjournment of the House early this morning that no one smiled — except the premier."

"May we ask what is in store for us this afternoon?" asked CCF leader Robert Strachan in funeral tones.

Looking as if he had just jumped out of bed, the premier replied:

"We are expecting a visit from Her Majesty's representative to prorogue this session of the legislature."

He looked and sounded as if he were announcing a Sunday school outing.

Mr. Bennett's bubbling vitality is the envy of many younger men in the legislature. Once or twice, as Wednesday's marathon sitting dragged into Thursday morning, the premier looked tired and drawn.

But this was only when business slowed to a routine tempo. The moment anyone attacked the government his face brightened, and he leaned forward in his chair as if he had a ringside seat at a bull fight.

Dowding Prepared to Talk for Hours

The weary hour that followed midnight was illumined with a little wit, as when Gordon Dowding (CCF-Burnaby) told the House he was prepared to "talk for hours" on the subject of verbal replies to members' questions placed on the order paper.

"I am sure the honorable member doesn't really feel like talking that long," replied Attorney-General Robert Bonner. "It is just that what he has already said seems like an hour."

would pass third reading in an hour and a half.

He under-estimated the persistence of the Opposition, for it took three hours and five minutes and there is no doubt the Opposition would have talked longer if they had been permitted.

George Gregory, Liberal member for Victoria, expressed the general feelings of the Opposition when after the government members had shouted "No" to half a dozen amendments he said:

"We seem to be wasting our time."

Uphill Takes Look From New Angle

Tom Uphill, oldest member of the legislature, left his seat in the opposition ranks Wednesday night and climbed up into the press gallery.

Sitting between two reporters, 83-year-old Mr. Uphill glared wond at his colleagues on the floor of the House and started taking notes.

"Now I know how you fellows feel," he said.

Up came a note from W. J. Asselstine, former minister of mines in the Liberal government, now Social Credit member for Atlin.

"I have viewed the press gallery for many years," Mr. Asselstine wrote, "and never has it been graced with a more intelligent and impartial atmosphere."

A reporter offered to help Mr. Uphill down the steep stairs from the gallery, but the veteran member from Fernie brushed him aside.

"I'll fall down when I'm ready," he said.

Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal was guest of honor at the afternoon session and looked quietly amused while members argued the question of whether commercial sports should be allowed in Vancouver on Sunday. (They were not.)

The mayor tactfully declined to express his feelings in the matter when approached by reporters, but as everyone knows Montreal has no such problem—it is more or less wide open on Sundays.

SECRET OUT

Minister Served Time For Murder

HACKENSACK, N.J. (CP)—Pastor J. Jerry Cacopardo, 46, of the Reformed Christian Church, wondered today how his congregation and neighbors would take the news that he was a convicted murderer.

Residents in this city of 30,000 knew Cacopardo only as a hard-working student who held a pastorate and studied for the ministry while supporting his wife and two small children.

They did not know until Wednesday that Cacopardo had spent 15 years in prison, part of a 30-year-to-life sentence for the second-degree murder of a Brooklyn woman in 1937 in a complicated family case.

Governor Averell Harriman of New York let out the "secret" when he announced Cacopardo need no longer observe the life-long parole restrictions that had been imposed on him when he left prison.

Private Radio Hails Plan For New Control

QUEBEC (CP)—The Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters in a statement today said the Fowler commission report indicated recognition of the "important position" of private broadcasting in recommendations for a new broadcast governing body as well as licensing of competitive TV stations.

The statement was issued by the CARTB board of directors following the first published summary of the commission's report.

Widow's Life Extended 2 Years, Crown Admits

LONDON (CP)—Counsel for Dr. John Bodkin Adams today drew an admission from a Crown medical expert that the rich old lady Adams is accused of drugging to death lived longer than might be normally expected after suffering a stroke.

Dr. Arthur Henry Douthwaite agreed under cross-examination that the wealthy widow "exceeded the reasonable prognosis of her expectation of life" by at least two years.

Earlier, defence counsel disclosed that the 81-year-old patient was given injections of morphia even before Adams took over the case—and suggested she might have already been a drug addict.

Douthwaite, steadfastly critical of morphia and especially heroin in treating strokes in elderly persons, agreed that the doctor on the spot had an advantage in making a "prognosis" of a case.

Defence counsel insisted "you can't worry about drug addiction" if the life expectancy is short. But the expert contended: "I have said previously that

Lawrence, speaking in a purring voice but with a ring of sarcasm, asked the Crown expert whether "the field of condemnation that you are spreading from this witness box" included the doctor who treated the aging woman before Dr. Adams took the case.

"If that treatment was for the stroke, yes," replied the tall, grey-haired specialist, senior physician at London's Guy's Hospital.

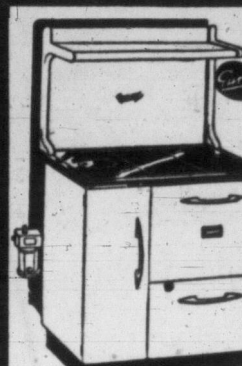

"Good gracious me," exclaimed the defence lawyer, Mrs. Morrell died in November, 1950—two and one-half years' after she suffered a stroke. Adams signed a certificate recording death by cerebral thrombosis.

Nursing records on the treatment of Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell when she first suffered a stroke in 1948 were offered as evidence at the trial of the 58-year-old Adams, charged with killing the woman to benefit from her estate.

Dr. Arthur Henry Douthwaite, Harley Street specialist, had testified there was "no justification" for such injections and had accused Dr. Adams of "murderous intent" in prescribing them.

A Great New Mocha Flavour!

Make Monarch Sponge Pudding with instant coffee

MONARCH MOCHA SPONGE PUDDING

Pour contents of LARGE bag into an ungreased 8" casserole or baking dish at least 2" in depth. Add 1/2 cup of triple-strength instant coffee. Mix 1 minute. Batter may be lumpy. Spread batter evenly over bottom of casserole or baking dish. Sprinkle contents of SMALL bag evenly over the batter. DO NOT MIX.

Pour over the top of this mixture 1 1/2 cups of triple-strength instant coffee. DO NOT STIR.

Bake 25-30 minutes, 425°F. Makes 4-6 servings.

We've discovered the unique and special flavour of Monarch Caramel Sponge Pudding makes a perfectly delightful combination with instant coffee. You just follow the usual directions on the package, but use triple-strength instant coffee instead of water. The mocha flavour that results is absolutely scrumptious. The children will love it. Surprise your family with this new dessert idea tomorrow.

Don't Fence Me In

I GUESS I'm getting hardened, because last Monday was this column's third anniversary, and I never even noticed it.

Instead, I noticed that Monday's column had a typographical error that turned my hair from sprinkled grey to almost snowy white.

Where I had written "It's short-sighted, if not stupid, to refuse to study other religious faiths," the printed column omitted the words "to refuse," so that what remained was the antithesis of all I was trying to say.

Normally, I laugh over such errors because my typing is so wild that only a genius can decipher it. But this time it hit me where it hurts. And I'm not going on record as saying that it's stupid to acquire additional knowledge on any serious subject.

In this bureaucratic age when, one by one, our freedoms are being whittled away, I'll always be in there pitching for the right to read, hear, see and think what I want.

I grow more and more fed up with people who try to fence me in. (Give me another 10 years and I'll be a ripsnorting Victorian, won't I?)

It infuriates me that the British are allowed to see "Baby Doll" while we callow Canadians are denied the chance to exercise our own judgment.

Personally, I don't like the films of Tennessee Williams because I've had an overdose of studies in neurotic and frustrated failure. Even Magnani the Magnificent could not redeem "The Rose Tattoo," so far as I was concerned. But I wish I lived in a country where I could see "Baby Doll" and judge for myself.

As to reading what we want, I guess we all remember what happened in Victoria at the time of the Library Board crisis.

To me, the brightest part of that strange hassle was the way Victoria's intellectuals rallied to the cause of academic freedom. It cheered me up considerably, to see the people of little faith being smacked down right and left.

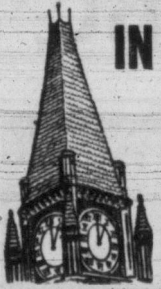

Because it seems to me that man's right to knowledge is most important.

It is especially important in the field of politics. And that's something which our present provincial government might do well to remember when "responsible" ministers blandly refuse to answer questions from the other side of the House.

But that—despite the Social Credit Halo—is getting away from people who refuse to study religions that are different from their own. (You should see some of the letters I've had in the past!) Surely, in this shrinking world of the 20th century, it's essential that we should try to understand the religions which mean so much to our newly-acquired neighbors. How else are we going to understand those neighbors, and some of the "queer" things that they do?

I can't see how, nowadays, anyone can be in favor of religious fencing-in.

But two consecutive columns on this subject are enough. As another columnist wittily remarked, "Pardon me, but my obsession's showing!"

IN PARLIAMENT

Taxes, Pensions Under Tory Fire

(From Times News Service)

Federal budget concessions to taxpayers were described Wednesday as so small as to make one wonder whether they were seriously made.

And furthermore, continued Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC-Hamilton West), increases of $6 monthly in pensions for the aged, blind, disabled and others announced in the budget would not provide "even half a loaf."

"In fact, I think it would be stretching the point to say this is a slice of bread."

On another tack, Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-MacLeod) directed some harsh words at Revenue Minister McCann for suggesting proposed payments by the Alberta Social Credit government of $11,000,000 in petroleum royalties to persons resident in the province five years would be taxable.

In that period arrangements were made by the government for additional purchases of ore from Canadian producers.

As a result, shipments of uranium to the United States Atomic Energy Commission would not be affected by the contract with Britain.

A proposal that the CBC grant 30 minutes free time weekly to Canadian universities for television broadcasting was received with mixed feelings in the Senate.

The idea was advanced in a motion proposed by Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot (L-Quebec), who said he was inspired by a "generous impulse" to help universities.

"The motion is not contentious, it is not political, and I hope that it will be adopted unanimously as an evidence of our goodwill to the Canadian universities," he said.

Solicitor-General Macdonald, government leader in the Upper House, said he was not opposed to the spirit of the motion, but wondered whether the Senate should approve it in the form proposed by Senator Pouliot.

Barren Year Needed For Black Currants

Last week I was looking at new-planted black currant bushes which had not been severely pruned.

The owner, as so many of us have done in the past, hoped for at least a small crop of fruit this season.

Years ago I made the same mistake and lost the crops of four seasons because I had the courage to cut back the third-year bushes severely, forego fruit for a year, and allow the plants to establish themselves.

We gardeners lose a lot of plants, or condemn them to years of little more than survival, through our eagerness to see the first bloom or fruit.

Even when plants have flowered or fruited the previous year it is often the best policy to limit or prevent flowering the year after moving.

No matter how carefully we dig a plant, hundreds of fine hair roots are lost, and these are the roots which pick up the food.

Preventing flowering permits the plant to become thoroughly established. This is to be preferred to draining its last bit of energy by trying to produce seed.

Each branch of a newly planted black currant should be cut back to the third-year bud above the soil. These buds will make strong new growths to carry the fruit next year.

Sacrificing this year's few currants leads to bumper crops in the years to come.

Dies Penniless

NEW YORK (AP) — Murray Garsson, 68, one of two brothers imprisoned after the collapse of their $70,000,000 Second World War munitions combine, died Thursday night, penniless and homeless.

His physician, Dr. Emanuel M. Josephson, took pity on Garsson when he was forced to leave his hotel last month. For three weeks Garsson slept in the doctor's reception room.

Garsson and his brother, Henry, served prison terms for bribing former representative Andrew May, Kentucky Democrat, who used his influence to get them wartime contracts. May went to prison.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Gallstone Operations

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

When I was a young man in medicine, I always ordered an operation for gallstones because that was what I had been taught to do. But as I grew older and saw hundreds of persons with perfectly silent gallstones which never bothered them, and when I saw at countless autopsies that persons who died of a pneumonia or a heart attack or a stroke had had harmless gallstones for most of their life, I lost my enthusiasm for operations. Today I advise operations only when the patient is getting colic and having a lot of pain or flatulence or abdominal distress. Sometimes when a man or woman has heart disease of a certain type plus trouble with the gallbladder, the removal of this organ brings great relief, not only in the abdomen, but up in the region of the heart as well.

I used to be influenced by the worry many physicians have as to the possibility that gallstones might eventually produce cancer of the gallbladder. But since I have read insurance statistics showing that among the hundreds of gallstone-carrying people who were insured years ago the final mortality has been only some 1.4 per cent higher than in persons without known gallbladder disease, I have quit worrying about cancer due to gallstones.

I used to fear that disease in the gallbladder might eventually injure the liver, but today I doubt if it does this often enough so that we need worry about it. When a patient persists in worrying about some possible but small danger, I tell him that the danger of being hurt in an auto accident is much greater.

RETARDED CHILDREN CAN BE HELPED

Because sometimes I comment on the fact that a number of retarded children have inherited their difficulty from someone else in the family who has some disease of the nervous system (usually not feeble-mindedness), quite a few persons have written angrily to say that I have done the cause of retarded children a terrible disservice. They accuse me of implying that when feeble-mindedness is inherited it is hopeless and nothing can be done. Of course, I never implied that or said that. Actually, for the last four years I have been trying in every way I could to help mothers with retarded children to learn how to help them and teach them to be useful and perhaps even self-supporting. Every time I find an instructive book that the mothers of retarded children can use, I comment on it.

Now I find on my desk a delightful book called "Retarded Children Can Be Helped," written by Maya Pines, with a remarkable series of photographs by that master of his profession, Cornell Capa (Chanel Press, Great Neck, N.Y.). In the book one sees children at play and at work, learning to do many useful things.

On page 70, the authors say that 67 per cent of retarded children could be taught even to hold a paying job. Many can perform happily certain monotonous tasks in a factory which highly intelligent persons might find too boring. A child with a mental age of five and an I.Q. of as low as 33 can be taught to wash dishes, to sandpaper furniture, to scrub and polish floors, to put laundry through a mangle, or to weave with a loom. A person who has never grown mentally beyond the age of six can mow a lawn, mix cement, assist in laying bricks, handle freight, make brushes, or do simple work in a laundry. A lad with a mental age of seven can be taught to help in repairing shoes, to assist a blacksmith, to run a plow, to do simple carpentry, to cane chairs, to do rough painting, to knit neckties and scarves, to pack small articles in a factory, and to perform domestic chores.

Someone with the mental age of eight may do much of the work about a farm, he can make toys, do stencil work, put together dresses cut out by others, and do plain ironing and other domestic work.

With a mental age of from nine to ten, and an I.Q. between 60 and 66, a man of woman can work at a number of jobs in a factory; he can repair furniture, make pottery, cut out and make dresses, do plain cooking and canning, sew on buttons, or embroider, or work with an electrician or a steam-fitter.

SYNOPSIS — Cloudy cover was fairly general overnight over northern sections of the province. Southern sections on the other hand remained almost clear.

However, cloud is spreading rapidly up the U.S. coast and should cover southern B.C. this morning and reach much of the rest of the province during the afternoon and evening. Some showers, too, will occur in coastal areas tonight.

Friday will be generally cloudy and more showers will occur in coastal areas in the evening as another disturbance nears the coast. However, only few showers are expected for the interior.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Immigrants Pay Tax On Earnings Here

By W. GORDON HOLMES
Immigrants to Canada have written to The Times asking how they stand in relation to Canada's tax laws. I will deal with these questions here:
An immigrant should be sure to mark on Page 1 of the T-1 short form the date of his arrival in Canada if he arrived during 1956. Only the income he has earned since arrival in Canada is taxable. Thus, under salaries and wages earned, only the amount earned in Canada should be entered.
This is not giving the immigrant favored treatment as his exemption to operate on an inverse ratio. For example, if the immigrant were here for six months in 1956 he would list his earnings for half a year. But the basic exemption of $1,000 would be cut to $500. The same apportionment applies to all exemptions.

Treasury Should Bear CBC Costs

Fowler Commission Estimates 6-Year Outlay $470 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian taxpayers may have to kick in about $470,000,000 over the next six years to finance the expansion and operating losses of the publicly-owned CBC.

FOWLER

authority over both the CBC and the private operators and would be responsible to Parliament annually—for the results.

NEEDS ITS POWERS

For the CBC board of governors, Chairman Dunton has told the commission that the publicly-owned corporation needs its powers to put over its national service.

Members of the commission, apart from 50-year-old Mr. Fowler head of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association at Montreal, are Edmond Turcotte, 59, Canadian Ambassador to Colombia and former Montreal newspaper editor, and James Stewart, 62, chairman of the board of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Toronto.

The Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters has been calling for an independent regulatory board separate from the CBC board of governors, and above both the CBC and the private broadcasters.

The commission contended that the CARTB was looking for a more authoritarian type of tribunal—and that the one it proposed would be closer to Parliament and its thinking, and therefore closer to the ideas of the public generally.

Dealing with television, it said the time has come or is near at hand when the "single-channel" policy of the federal government should be dropped. At present TV transmission is reserved for the CBC in Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

In other areas, single private stations only are allowed.

NOT BELOW CBC
The commission said any second stations in a viewing area should be made to provide programs not substantially below that of the national CBC network level.

For the future, the CBC and private broadcasters should plan to increase TV viewing hours and widen network coverage.

It also suggested that TV's present coverage of 80 per cent of Canadians could be broadened to 90 per cent by low-power "repeater" stations at small points.

On the tricky question of financing the CBC—the commission's corps of financial experts came up with three formulas, of which the report favored one based on consumer spending. On an intricate formula based on a so-called "1956 dollar," the CBC would get from the treasury amounts starting with about $44,200,000 in the fiscal year starting April 1 and some $74,000,000 in the year ending March 31, 1963.

BE ADDITIONAL
These sums would be in addition to what the CBC gets from other revenue sources such as advertising. They also would not include what the corporation receives from the tax on receivers, which would go into a fund to be used for capital needs of the government agency.

The starting $44,200,000 is roughly what the CBC estimated before the commission as what it could use to provide a service at its equivalent of last year. At that time, the CBC suggested it could do this at a cost of about $20 per TV household—not a fee—and on the basis of 2,000,000 households it would come to $40,000,000.

The CBC has been going into the red even with normal government grants since it started TV operations in 1952. For the 1956-57 year that ends March 31, it has needed a special parliamentary grant of $12,000,000 to bring it around the break-even point on expenditures of about $40,000,000. The corporation's full financial statement for the year has not yet been made public.

In dealing with the private broadcasters, the commission suggested regulations should be enforced strictly. The broadcast board should have no hesitation in taking away a station's licence for flagrant violations. A new department would be that a station be brought into court for offences that could call for fines ranging between $50 and $1,000. At present there is no intermediate step between a reprimand and a revocation of licence, the latter not exercised yet.

That's what the Fowler commission estimates in proposing that the federal treasury be used to meet the CBC's capital and operating costs with fixed annual grants. The commission rejected the idea of imposing a licence fee on television and radio viewers as unworkable.

The CBC now finances expansion by government loans and meets operating losses by revenue from the 15-per-cent excise tax on new television and radio sets and parts and by federal grants.

SUGGESTS REVISION

The Fowler commission suggested the CBC financial structure be revised and that the excise tax yields be provided for CBC capital expansion, giving the national broadcasting system a steady flow of money.

The CBC's net operating losses, after deducting income from advertising and other commercial sources, was forecast to swell to a total of some $53,000,000 over the six years, climbing from $44,238,000 in 1957-58 to $73,909,000 in 1962-63.

Thus, total outlays for the six years would amount to about $468,000,000.

The operating losses, rising partly from plans for increasing TV coverage and gradual introduction of color TV, also would be borne by more federal annual grants, fixed at between one-quarter and one-third of one per cent of Canadian consumer spending on goods and services.

The operating loss of the CBC in the current year of $38,000,000 was the equivalent of just 1.3 cents a day for each home equipped with television and nine-tenths of a cent for each equipped with a radio.

In scrutinizing the CBC's finances, the commission "found no examples of careless waste and certainly nothing that even remotely resembled fraud, neglect or mismanagement."

On the other hand, "We cannot say that everything is right with the present financial system of the CBC."

HAS MET PROBLEMS

Because of its rapid expansion, the CBC had encountered staff and administrative problems; it had increased operating costs by acquiring accommodation on a "patchwork" basis.

"But the greatest financial weakness of the CBC has been the lack of an assured and definite basis of current financing. . . . We think it is essential that the CBC have its duties accurately defined, that it be provided with an adequate but not excessive income over a term of years to enable it to discharge those duties and that it then be required to manage its affairs so as to live within that income. This is the central and essential basis of our financial recommendations."

ASKED FOR REPEAL
Canadian radio and TV manufacturers have pleaded for a repeal of the 15-per-cent excise tax, arguing that it discriminates against the electronics industry.

But the commission countered that the tax is levied against a number of products and the rising sales of TV sets in recent years did not indicate that the tax had a depressive effect.

Setting the proceeds of this tax aside for CBC capital needs would free the system from asking the government for any further loans. The commission emphasized that the proposed over-all grants for capital and operating losses would not require a complete new supply of federal money. Revenue from the tax would be an offsetting item.

The capital grants would be provided for the CBC on an annual basis. This would allow parliamentary scrutiny of CBC capital budgets. But a current restriction whereby the cabinet must approve of all CBC expenditures in excess of $25,000, would be removed.

One of the main features of the proposed grants to cover operating losses is that the CBC would get an idea of the size of the grants projected over a five-year period. This would assist in future planning.

TV—GOOD OR BAD?—Evaluating TV's influence on Canada, after a full year of intensive study, R. M. Fowler (left), chairman of the royal commission on broadcasting, said today: "It is one of the most potentially beneficial and one of the most potentially dangerous media ever developed." Asked whether he thought evil or good

"would eventually triumph in Canadian television, Mr. Fowler gave the nod to good. Other members of the radio-TV royal commission, whose report was tabled in the Commons today, were diplomat Edmond Turcotte (centre) and Canadian Bank of Commerce president James Stewart (right). — (CP photos)

STATE-CONTROLLED BROADCASTING ONLY ANSWER

U.S. 'Tidal Wave' of Culture Threat to Canada's Identity

OTTAWA (CP)—The Fowler royal commission on broadcasting said today there is a threat to Canada's national identity from the "tidal wave" of United States culture carried by American radio and television stations.

A Canadian state-controlled broadcasting system is the only means of maintaining and developing "a Canadian sense of identity," the commission said in its report published today.

A privately-owned system, without support from the public treasury, would be impelled by economic forces to become the outlet for American networks and programs.

Canada faced the problem of costs in transmitting both TV and radio signals over long distances.

LANGUAGE FACTOR

The economic problem was "still more difficult" because of the division of the population into about 11,000,000 English-speaking and 5,000,000 French-speaking people.

Canada could have cheaper radio and TV service if Canadian stations were tied to U.S. outlets. The same fact held true, through Canada's history, with respect to rail and air transportation and consumer goods.

But the Canadian answer, irrespective of party or race, has been uniformly the same for nearly a century.

"We are prepared, by measures of assistance, financial aid and a conscious stimulation, to compensate for our disabilities of geography, sparse population and vast distances, and we have accepted this as a legitimate role of government in Canada."

Political Broadcasts Party Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—Apportionment of time on Canadian radio and television stations for political broadcasts should be decided by political parties, the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting recommended today.

The commission's report, tabled in Parliament, stated the Canadian Broadcasting Act now provides that the CBC may make regulations "to prescribe the proportion of time that may be devoted to political broadcasts by the stations of the corporation and by private stations, and to assign such time on an equitable basis to all parties and rival candidates."

The commission said the proposed new board of broadcast governors should prescribe the proportion of time that may be devoted to political broadcasts by both CBC and private stations. However, it did not consider the board should "assign such time on an equitable basis to all parties and rival candidates."

This should be delegated to the representatives of the people. The proposed board should prescribe only the over-all time that may be devoted by public and private stations to political broadcasts and the various political parties should agree among themselves on the apportionment of that time.

50% CBC TV SERVICE IN COLOR BY 1963

OTTAWA (CP)—An estimate that approximately half the CBC television service will be in color by 1963—at an additional cost of $6,000,000 in that year—is made in the report of the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting.

The commission bases this on a calculation that two years from now the publicly-owned corporation will be equipped to transmit color, acquiring colored programs for English stations from the United States and using films to service French outlets.

By March 31, 1960, it calculated that 10 per cent of CBC programs would be in color. Color content of CBC programming would increase by the same percentage in each succeeding year.

On the production and transmission side, the commission said it was told the changeover to color would mean a cost of $15,000 to $25,000 for an existing TV station.

$2½ Million Outlay Proposed for North

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal expenditure of $2,500,000 to give north-land radio listeners Canadian programs instead of Russian and American broadcasts is urged by the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting.

The commission said in its report today that the 32,000 residents of the Yukon and the Northwest Territories "are in greater need of Canadian radio than most of their fellow countrymen . . ."

A capital outlay of $2,500,000 proposed by the CBC at commission hearings to push Canadian radio into the north "may well be justified."

The report said that under normal conditions such an expenditure would not be justified for a maximum audience of 32,000.

End to CBC Domination Proposed

OTTAWA (CP)—A new regulatory body which would terminate the CBC's long domination over Canadian broadcasting is proposed by the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting in its report to Parliament today.

While falling short of demands of private broadcasters, the new body—the Board of Broadcast Governors—would mean scrapping of the existing CBC board of governors which for years has ruled over both private and public broadcasting.

Its membership of 15, picked from across the country but excluding CBC officials, would sit for five years only with no chance of immediate reappointment. Fresh appointments would be staggered so that there would be no complete changeover of 15 at once.

It would be responsible to Parliament, and both the publicly-owned CBC and the private broadcasters would be answerable to it.

TO GET NEW POST

The nature of the concept indicates pretty clearly that the present chairman of the CBC board of governors, A. D. Dunton, would be cast in a new role.

The proposal calls for the chairman of the new board to get an annual salary of $10,000. Mr. Dunton, who also is operating head of the CBC, gets about $22,500.

The commission, while calling for the scrapping of the CBC governors, suggests also that a new office of president of the CBC be opened. It is believed likely that Mr. Dunton would continue in that post at $22,500 or more.

The commission rejected the private broadcasters' proposal for an independent regulatory board mainly on the grounds that such a body would not be responsive to parliamentary control.

The commission's suggested new body would take over many of the operations of the CBC board. It would hear applications for new stations and reach its conclusions "without private consultation with officials of the CBC or anyone else."

The commission also recommended: Foreign ownership of Canadian stations be limited to 20 per cent of each station.

HOUSE WORKS TO 1 A.M. TO CLEAN UP BUSINESS

The B.C. legislature worked until 1:10 a.m. today to clear the decks for today's prorogation.

It took three hours to pass the new 899-section Municipal Act.

An opposition motion, presented by Mrs. Lois Haggan (CCF, Grand Forks-Greenwood), urging more humane methods in slaughterhouses was accepted by the government.

Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan (acting for ailing Agriculture Minister Ralph Chetwynd) agreed to ask Ottawa to investigate the matter.

Lodgemen Pledge Continued Fight Against Private School Tax Ease

Opposition to the B.C. government's plan to exempt private schools from municipal taxation died a quick death in the legislature Wednesday night—but outside the House opponents said they'd not give up the fight.

As part of the new Municipal Act, the tax-exemption proposal became law in spite of a last-minute protest in the legislature by CCF Leader Robert Strachan.

But Saanich Social Crediter John Tisdalle, who opposed the measure during second reading of the Municipal Act, had nothing to say when the bill came up for third and final reading.

Mr. Tisdalle's protest was supported last week by the "We'll Fight to Last Ditch"

"We're determined to fight to the last ditch," said Fred Martin, 2440 Dalhousie.

"This is the stepping stone to separate schools," Mr. Martin added. "We'll have them within five years and then the Roman Catholic Church is going to dictate, with an increase in education costs."

The government had "railroaded" the tax exemption measure through, he said.

The tax exemption clause went through after Attorney General Robert Bonner said the exemption had been in effect in Vancouver, under the city's charter, since 1886.

In 1953, he said, the legislature reconsidered Vancouver's charter and decided the tax exemption clause for private schools should stand.

"There is nothing novel in this clause," he said. "We are merely extending it to other parts of the province in an effort to achieve uniformity."

A bid by Liberal George Gregory to have the whole Act stood over for six months was rejected.

CBC PUBLIC RELATIONS TOO TIMID

Radio, TV Broadcasters Accused Of 'Baiting' Governing Body

OTTAWA (CP)—The Fowler royal commission on broadcasting today accused the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters of "baiting" the CBC.

The commission also said in its report that the CARTB, an association of most privately-owned broadcasting stations, has issued "much one-sided or misleading information on the true nature and functioning of the present system of broadcasting in Canada."

The CBC in turn was chided for being "too timid" in telling the Canadian public about its job. It should have reacted to CARTB

"propaganda" to get the facts back into perspective.

The corporation's reticence, the commission said, probably was due to a tradition that crown corporations should refrain from all argument or controversy.

But "broadcasting is so intimately related to the daily life and interests of nearly every Canadian that it escapes, by its very nature, the standard rule of public relations followed by other crown corporations or government agencies."

Private broadcasters should express their views. It helped focus public attention on the evolution of broadcasting.

But they should "avoid the falsely doctrinaire, the emotional appeal or the emptiness of mere verbalism."

The CARTB had filed "a forbidding mass of printed or typewritten prose" with the commission, "offering no discernible argumentation, one way or the other and even presenting, at times, contradictions. . . ."

"At the end of the hearing we were left not knowing exactly what the CARTB sought to demonstrate or what it expected us to do with the large part of this great volume of words," the commission said.

MONTE ROBERTS

Thursday special, mixed grill . . .

So there was this fellow who worked in a restaurant as a bread slicer. And at first he used to slice bread two loaves at a time. Then he became more proficient, and learned to slice bread three loaves at a time.

Finally he felt capable of slicing bread four loaves at a time, but he had trouble finding a knife long enough to do the job.

He hunted high and low all over the city until he found just the ideal knife, and he rushed triumphantly back to the restaurant.

"Look boss," he cried, waving the knife, "I found a four loaf cleaver."

So there is this constituent who has a problem. Her problem is, her six-year-old collie (Lassie by name) has wanderlust.

I could make a wisecrack about "Lassie, come home," but I won't, because this is a serious problem with the constituent, and she has asked my advice.

Unfortunately, I do not know what makes doggies wish to wander, and I do not know how to stop them from doing same.

But possibly somebody has a solution, or even an idea which this constituent could try out, to keep Lassie at home.

The troubled constituent is Mrs. Irene Ward, 3230 Milgrove, telephone 2-0455, and all constructive suggestions will be gratefully received.

So there is this brand new automobile put out by Gen. Motors, and it seemed to me that at last I had found the car of my dreams.

This brand new product of Gen. Motors is a Cadillac, but it is not just a plain ordinary old Texas-type Cadillac, no sir.

It is a real fancy Cadillac, and it is priced between $18,000 and $19,000.

"Just what I have been waiting for," I said to myself when I read about this automobile.

So what happens? So then I found out only five of them have been allotted to British Columbia, and already there are 25 people standing in line to buy one.

So then I found out the way they are going to decide on who is allowed to buy one, Gen. Motors is going to hold a court of enquiry and if your blood is blue enough and your family line leads back to the fathers of confederation and you have stopped beating your wife, why, you may be permitted to spend $18,000 or $19,000 for an automobile.

So I guess I am out of luck.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Music should be considered essential in the education of children. Boyce Gaddes, associate professor of education at Victoria College, told a meeting of the Registered Music Teachers' Association Wednesday.

"Music, art and literature are essentials of life," he said. "They are among the few immortal things in the world."

Mr. Gaddes urged music teachers to inspire children to listen to, and to participate in the performance of good music.

A finance committee recommendation that Victoria permit only five tag days in the course of the year was expected to be opposed in council later today by Ald. Hugh Ramsay.

He said he thought 12 tag days a year would not be an inconvenience. He was anxious that the privilege be extended to the auxiliary to B.C. Protestant Orphanage.

Unique Mobile Greenhouse At Saanichton

The Saanichton Dominion Experimental Farm, always looking for something new to improve the science of farming, has acquired a mobile greenhouse equipped with rails and wheels.

Purchased from England, the 20 by 40 wood constructed greenhouse, can be moved with ease to any spot on the farm.

The greenhouse will be used to encourage certain crops to bloom earlier than nature intended.

It will be moved from one bed of seedlings to another and kept at each until the plants get a good start from the additional warmth provided.

"We think mobile greenhouses can be particularly useful for growers in this area," horticulturist J. H. Crossley said.

This summer the greenhouse will be used extensively in experiments with outdoor chrysanthemums of which 13,000 will be planted.

Saanich Police Boys' Club will hold its inaugural rifle shoot of the season for members and interested boys 11-16 Saturday at 9 a.m. at the police revolver range in an old gravel pit immediately north of Cordova Bay School.

Consent of parents is necessary before boys are eligible to attend.

Annual tour of Victoria's outstanding gardens in the Spring Garden Festival will be held May 2 to 4, inclusive, the Victoria Horticultural Society announced today.

In past years the gardens tour proved extremely popular, attracting visitors from the B.C. mainland and the northern states.

April 26 and 27 the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society show will be held in the Crystal Garden.

Results of the weekly session of the Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club follow:

North-South—Otto Leesment and Frank Artlett; Les Stewart and Elizabeth Warren; Sam Duprau and Joe Lukas; Eric Goodwin and Bill Browne-Cave.

East-West—Dora Duprau and James Duprau; Anne Kocutyn and Roland Perrin; Marjorie and George Beale; Laura Tingley and Isabel Kelly.

Cadets of Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, will go to Vancouver this weekend for a church parade to Saint Andrew's Wesley Church.

They will travel in HMCS New Glasgow, leaving Saturday afternoon and returning Sunday.

City Heavy Loser

School Cost Held 10.35% Too High

School board figures submitted to city council today indicated Victoria is a heavy loser in the present system of sharing district school costs.

School district 61 provided totals showing the percentage of children attending district schools from homes in Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and the provincial territories.

Following a census of 17,240 pupils attending district schools, it was found 42 per cent were resident in the city, 33 per cent in Saanich, 14 per cent in Oak Bay, 9 per cent in Esquimalt and 2 per cent in provincial areas.

At the same time, the recently prepared school budget, which assesses school costs to the member municipalities according to their gross property assessments, splits costs 52.35 per cent to Victoria, 24.26 per cent to Saanich, 16.17 per cent to Oak Bay, 5.39 per cent to Esquimalt and 1.63 per cent to provincial areas.

10.35% MORE
The tables show Victoria pays 10.35 per cent more than its share according to school populations. Oak Bay pays 2.17 per cent more than it should on the same basis.

Saanich pays 9 per cent less, Esquimalt almost 4 per cent less and provincial areas 37 per cent less than they would if costs were based on distribution of school populations.

The study was requested by city council on prompting by Ald. Geoffrey Edgell who sparked a drive to win a government second look at the Williston School formula.

EX-LAW CLERK CHALLENGE STILL IGNORED

Challenge issued last month by dismissed government law clerk W. Berkeley Monteith that Attorney General Robert Bonner report him to the Law Society of B.C. has gone unanswered.

"The attorney-general has never said anything to me about it," said Mr. Monteith today.

He had demanded the attorney-general report him to the law society so that "the blemish on my professional character" can be aired.

He was dismissed by the government because, said Mr. Bonner, he had acted for petitioners appearing before the private bills committee at the same time he was government adviser to the committee.

Mr. Monteith claimed he was fired because he refused to contribute to Social Credit campaign funds.

Three Seamen Charged in Stabbing

Three British merchant seamen were charged in city police court today in connection with the knife-wounding early Wednesday of unemployed city welder Philip W. Morgan, 35.

Morgan is in Jubilee Hospital being treated for seven stab wounds in the left chest and minor facial cuts and is reported in fairly good condition. The seamen, from the British freighter Baron Incheape, are Brian Smith, Liverpool; John Huartson, Fleetwood, Lancas, and John Foulks, Colwyn Bay, Denbighshire, Wales.

Huartson and Smith are both 18, Foulks is 23.

They were charged that with intent to wound they caused bodily harm by stabbing with a knife.

Magistrate H. C. Hall remanded them to Friday to enable the sailors to contact a British consul with regard to legal representation.

Morgan was found by passing motorist C. A. Zufelt, of Burnaby, on a boulevard at the intersection of Richmond and Fort, about 2:30 a.m.

2-Nation Alert In Sub 'Hunt'

WHO WON THE PRIZE?

With a wide smile, sturdy tongue and enthusiasm of three and one-half years, Denise Wood is set to prove local ice cream is as good as experts say. Each of three entries submitted at International Institute of Dairying, Pullman, Wash., by Northwestern Creamery won diploma of merit. (Times photo)

Surprise Test Off Trial Is.

Units of the Royal Canadian and United States navies, assisted by land-based aircraft and the U.S. Coast Guard, carried out one of the most extensive and "hush-hush" peacetime practice submarine hunts in Juan de Fuca Strait near Trial Island Wednesday night and early this morning.

The exercise—details of which are completely classified by both navies—was based on a supposed sub "sighting" in the Strait.

Resulting activity, including dropping of parachute flares and firing of star shells, attracted attention of many waterfront residents.

Only a few senior naval officers knew of the exercise in advance.

It was carried out with grim reality and sprang as a surprise on officers and crew of the ships and planes concerned.

Two frigates and two minesweepers of the RCN Pacific Command are believed to have taken part, together with at least one USN destroyer.

Practice firing in the Strait was scheduled for today, with the frigates HMC Ships Sussexvale, Ste. Therese and New Glasgow firing anti-aircraft and surface armament from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., and again tonight from 11 p.m. to midnight.

ESQUIMALT NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Ontario, Jonquiere, Stettler at Okinawa on training cruise, return Esquimalt May 3.

Fortune, James Bay return April 12.

Porte Quebec leaves today, returns Monday.

Open Letter to MLAs Hits Ban on Live Music in Bars

An open letter protesting the "ban" on live music in licensed premises and calling for appointment of a three-man liquor board was given members of the legislature today by the 150-member local 247 of the American Federation of Musicians.

The "unconstitutional" ban

is depriving musicians of a livelihood, the letter said. Canadian liquor legislation in all provinces but Quebec and Ontario "is directly responsible for the lack of development of Canadian musicians, artists and entertainers . . . consequently entertainers are being forced to leave this country in order to further their careers."

Live music in licensed premises would tend to reduce liquor consumption, making it of secondary importance, the brief pointed out.

Existing regulations state that music is permissible, but does not define interpretation of the act.

Musicians believe this is "loose legislation."

They want a set of regulations governing live music in licensed premises.

Chalmers is accused of the gunpoint holdup of the Superior Street Canadian Bank of Commerce stealing $3,600 Feb. 11. His trial opened before Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes.

After the crown completed its case against the accused at noon today, defence counsel James Proudfoot and Kenneth Murphy told the court there would be no witnesses called to testify on Chalmers' behalf.

The announcement means that the case will go to the jury late this afternoon, immediately after Mr. Justice McInnes has summed up evidence.

Earlier, two city detectives testified that Chalmers, after his arrest in Vancouver, refused to talk about the robbery. They quoted Chalmers as saying "I'm not going to cop out. I don't mean to say anything about this case."

City detectives Norman Bath and William Andrew explained that the term "cop" is underworld lingo and means "admit guilt."

They said that Chalmers told them that the last time he had "copped up" on a previous charge of armed robbery, it had not done him any good, and this time he was going to do it differently.

Full Scout Rites For J. S. Hopkins

James Stanley Hopkins, 61, secretary of the group committee of Emmanuel Boy Scouts, died Wednesday night in the Veterans' Hospital.

Funeral services with full Scout honors will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. in Emmanuel Baptist Church with Rev. J. E. Smith officiating. Interment will be at Royal Oak Burial Park. McCall Bros. have charge of arrangements.

Street Lighting Helps Fight Against Crime, Convention Hears

There is significant relationship between poorly lighted streets and crime, Marshall Waterman, Bloomfield, N.J., president of the 8,811-member Illuminating Engineering Society, said here today.

Addressing the 11th annual Pacific Northwest regional conference which started today in the Empress Hotel, he told the 150 delegates that, conversely, well-lighted business centres reduce the tendency towards criminal acts, and also means increased trade.

Four out of five homes are improperly lighted, he said, as the public is basically ignorant of proper lighting principles.

"Lighting design must consider atmosphere, not only providing light with which to see, but light in which to be seen."

Industry has found, he said, there is a definite advantage in lighting is bright and cheerful.

Today the lighting scene is being brightened and glare eliminated as "people absolutely refuse to put up with ugly naked bulbs, which have been eyesores for many decades."

Now there are more than 10,000 different lamps for different purposes.

Mr. Waterman called for increased technical research in the industry and furtherance of idea exchanges between lighting consultants and architects.

Willard Alphin, Salem, Mass., speaking on trends in school lighting, predicted an increase in visual education aids which will require that classrooms be capable of being darkened easily and quickly.

LONGER ROOMS

Another probable trend, he said, will be towards longer classrooms of irregular shape with different areas devoted to different purposes, and with "flexible" lighting to serve these purposes.

The group was welcomed by Mayor Percy Scurrell, who expressed a couple of thoughts of his own regarding lighting.

He scored "these restaurants, which try to establish a phoney romantic atmosphere" by reducing lighting.

"I like to see what I'm eating and drinking."

Chairman of the three-day conference at which the 24-member Vancouver Island chapter of the society is host, is Gordon Roper, B.C. Electric Co. here.

An interesting display of old and new lights, a collection by Victoria's electrical engineer Kenneth Reid, drew attention of delegates.

Included in the display are "absolutely priceless" carbon filament bulbs, dated 1885, only six years after Edison first invented the light bulb. Biggest bulb in the assembly is a 1,500 watt floodlight, and weakest is a five candlepower unit.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—I was born in England. I lost my birth certificate and now need it as proof of my citizenship. Will you please inform me if I can obtain a copy. Where should I write and what will it cost?

A—You can obtain an official copy of the certificate by writing to Vital Statistics, Somerset House, London, Eng. Enclose 7s 6d if the reply is to come by ordinary mail. ## SHOPPING GUIDE

Springtime Accessories
For the Junior Charmers

By PENNY SAVER

Accessories are the thing! Not only adult females, but little girls and high school girls as well realize the importance of the proper accessories to complete outfits. Belts and collars to perk up dresses or skirts and blouses are most popular with the bobby sox set, and manufacturers this season have turned to pampering their tastes. Plastics that look and feel like feathers are wonderful, because they are pliable and washable, and... inexpensive. Belts in a range of widths from the very narrow to the wider contour style come with matching stiff collars. Gold studs highlight many belts, and other decorative touches on the various styles give them fashion-plate features.

Pastels, solid colors and leather tones are available in the sets, which sell at $1.29.

Also for the young-fry are summertime purses of clear plastic. These clutch purses close with a jeweled snap, and inside each purse is a pair of sunglasses and a matching comb. No trouble finding anything in this purse, you don't even have to open it to see what's inside. A novel carry-all for girls of all ages, they will withstand a lot of wear and tear during a summer's use. Each purse costs $1.29.

Now, for older sister or mother, here are smart new earrings, that feature something new. In an oval of gold or silver are solid centres of suede or smooth leather. A perfect complement for suede accessories are the black suede earrings. And, of course, for more sporty outfits with leather belts and purses, you'll want the lighter-toned natural leathers. The earrings are $1 a pair. Bracelets and casual necklets are also available at slightly higher prices.

Spring hats in a profusion of light colors are everywhere in town, and the styles, keyed to the fashionable hair styles, are so feminine and flattering! You can pay any price you like, from $2.95 to $29.50 in most stores. In a low and medium price range, even the strictest budgeters will find dainty and large chapeaux covered with flowers or tulle or both to make you feel that spring has really arrived.

LEASE DEPT.Gold and Fur
Still Brought
In for Trade

By TERRY FRENCH

Tales of trading posts, Indians, gold and furs are familiar to all, especially here on the west coast. But what to us is just a tale, is to Mrs. Marge McDougall, a reality.

Storekeeper, postmaster and part-time nurse for the Indians are roles she fills at Finlay Forks "where the Peace River begins." There, she and her husband run a trading post. Entire population is 135 Siksannie Indians and four whites.

As well as the post, the McDougalls have an extensive trap line and a small lumbering concern to fill their days. Nearest neighbours are 120 miles away. Travelling is done by boat until the high water, when it is necessary for all passengers and supplies to be flown in.

At this outpost in B.C.'s undeveloped north, the McDougalls' take in gold and furs in trade from the Indians as pioneers did in this country 100 years ago.

"The really thriving fur sales from this district are no more," Marge McDougall explains. At one time fur auctions were held right in Finlay Forks, and the Indians received good payment from the harvest of their trap lines, but now the fur market is gone, so, the people are desperately poor, with no means, save occasional gold panning, to make a living.

There is no market for grown products in the area, the visitor says. "There are many minerals there, which could provide work for the population, but there is no money for the necessary digging and mining materials and machinery."

Mrs. McDougall's devotion to the Indians is evident as she talks of them. Typical of her tales is a Christmas story.

It is the accepted thing that all who can, go to the McDougalls for Christmas dinner. This particular dinner was to be a bleak one with few visitors, and Mrs. MacDougall in particular

On Etiquette

About a thank-you note: We just moved to a house that we built and were presented with a handsome gift from a company which does business with my husband. The card is signed such-and-such a company with no names. Since we do know the person who was the instigator, do I begin the thank-you note addressing this man or the firm? We do not know even the names of the officers or other personnel.

Louise Davis answers: Begin your letter "Dear Mr. Gardner and members of Such-and-Such a Company." Mr. Gardner will receive the letter and, of course, will pass it on to others so that all will be duly thanked.

Chairman was Robert Baird; the soloist, Cliff Horwood. Mrs. T. B. Lowe gave the vote of thanks.

The stage was arranged with antiques; and the characters in the play were dressed in costumes of the day, all of which added to the authenticity of the period depicted.

An interesting interlude was the introduction by Dr. Gilbert of Mrs. Martha Cartnell, a niece of the original Cartnell family mentioned in the play.

For the first time in a year, Mrs. Marge McDougall is "a-visiting". Living 120 miles from her closest neighbor, and 200 miles from Prince George, house-hopping would be quite an undertaking. While in Victoria she is a guest of Mrs. H. M. Hall on Arbutus Road.

was feeling very sad. She started to make dinner anyway. Then nine Indians arrived. She set the young Indian girls to making a cake (the cake pan leaked and the oven door fell off, but it baked) and she made a big bowl of icing for them to decorate it. It wasn't a fruit cake, but would be more a birthday-type cake.

As she prepared dinner (canned chicken and the trimmings) she was presented with the cake, carefully decorated with gumdrops, a crib in one corner and the inscription, "Merry Birthday, Dear Jesus."

It was a real birthday cake and the simplicity of the true sentiment and the love put into the work made Christmas for the McDougalls that year. As a final touch to a perfect Christmas, their 12-year-old daughter from Prince George was flown in as a surprise from the pilots of that area.

Somewhat different from our Christmases! Mrs. McDougall leaves tomorrow to return to Finlay Forks, and her thoughts even now are there, with the Indians.

As I left, she called after me to be sure to write something about her Indians, "please, don't forget my Indians."

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

You Can Cut Calories,
Build Health at Lunch

Many people think of lunch as a completely unimportant meal. The woman in the home may eat anything which happens to be left over. Even those who are interested in nutrition and take great care when planning breakfast and dinner, often just snack without thought at noon.

In some ways this is not a bad idea. If you eat an adequate breakfast, with cereal, fruit juice, eggs and toast with coffee or milk, you get many of the essentials for fine nutrition. Then if you plan a well-balanced evening meal, with fresh vegetables, meat, fish or fowl, salad and potatoes, you are not going to have any serious deficiencies.

You can consume a light lunch without damage to your health and with benefit to your figure. However, what you eat at lunch can make a big difference in both your appearance and your nutrition.

Luncheon provides a splendid opportunity to cut down on calories and build up on health. You can build up your vitamin and mineral and protein intake and still keep your calories low. For instance, you could have a medium slice of lean meat and a tomato and cottage cheese salad and a glass of skim milk; or a tomato and hard-boiled egg salad (if you did not have eggs at breakfast), and a cup of vegetable soup; or a serving of salmon and a fresh fruit salad with milk; or a lean beef or cheese sandwich, a glass of buttermilk and an apple or orange.

The mid-day meal gives you a wonderful opportunity to add to the health values in your diet, an opportunity you should not miss. It is important also to remember that the little leftovers from the icebox you may snack on which seem so harmless, often are packed with calories.

The distribution of your calories among daily menus is an individual matter, depending on your habits and tastes. However, I feel sure that the "two-meal a day" routine is a mistake. You will experience fatigue and unnecessary hollowness when using this plan, and are likely to consume more than the allowed calories at the evening meal because you will be so hungry.

If you would like to have my calories chart, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 36 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

FULL-TORONTO TRADING

MARKET SUMMARIES

Profit-Taking Hits Trading at Toronto

A new ripple of profit-taking drifted through the Toronto stock market today in light trading. Uranium was knocked down a shade from Wednesday's advance.

Milliken, Lake, Stanleigh, Northspan, Can-Met and Gunar were at least 15 cents easier. Rayrock, however, managed a 13-cent gain to $1.77.

Steels forged ahead to improve earlier gains on the New York market today. Turnover was moderate. There was a scattering of financial losses.

AT TORONTO International Utilities, on an extremely light turnover, was up 2% at 56, among leading industrial winners. Algoma Steel, Dominion Stores, Aluminum, Power Corp. and Ogilvie were ahead between 1 and 1 1/2 points.

Junior base metals were mixed.

Affiliated and Nickel Rim each lost 15 cents. Hudson Bay gained 1 1/2 points to 81 to lead seniors. Western oils were ahead. Canadian Atlantic and Fargo each gained 30 cents and Jupiter added 29 cents. Triad lost 10 cents to $7.55.

AT NEW YORK upside Canadian stocks included Hudson Bay Mining, added 1 1/2, Aluminum Ltd. and McIntyre, up 1/2 each and Granby Mining, up 1/4. Dome Mines dropped 1/2.

Gaining Canadian issues on the American Stock Exchange included Fargo Oil, up 1/2, and Jupiter Oils and Sapphire Petroleum, ahead 1/16 each. Lower were Preston East Dome, off 1/2, Brazilian Traction 1/2 and Eureka 1/16.

AT MONTREAL industrial stocks today were irregularly higher in afternoon trade on the stock exchange.

In pulp and papers, Great Lakes at 42 1/2 was 1 1/2 better while Fraser moved up 1/2 to 30. Calgary Paper added 1/2 at 65 1/2 and Bell firm 44 1/2. Mines were steady to higher, with U.N. Oil gaining 1/2 at 31.5. Tazin at 31 was 5 cents better.

AT LONDON the stock market lost some of its buoyancy today and there was a tendency for operators to hold off pending more favorable developments in the labor situation.

Government securities went ahead during the early part of the session but reacted from the best following the unchanged bank rate announcement.

In the foreign section, German bonds were favored but Greek issues eased on profit-taking. In rails, Canadian Pacific was a firm feature while trans-Atlantic stocks were occasionally better.

Operators in the industrial market proceeded cautiously. Nuclear power shares were depressed. Engineering shares were irregular but shipping shares advanced on a broad front. A number of miscellaneous leaders were slightly lower but Hudson's Bay improved.

In Canadian issues, International Nickel advanced and Rio Tinto Canada remained in favor at 7 1/2. Leading oils were unsettled. Coppers were firm.

AT VANCOUVER the market was active with prices moving up. Vantor sold 12,300 at $14.7. Mid-West Copper sold 6,500 up to 36. Futurity moved 7,900 at 47.

Marketing Legislation To Be Changed

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has decided to amend its marketing legislation this session to make it easier for provincial marketing boards to operate, Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today.

The government's decision follows a ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada generally considered to have reduced the effectiveness of provincial farm marketing schemes.

Youth Centre Favored for Centennial

A majority of city council this afternoon spoke in favor of a youth centre to provide additional ice surface for youngsters near the Memorial Arena as a centennial project. Ald. G. Edgewood, chairman of the inter-municipal centennial committee had asked council's opinion of the plan and while no vote was taken, five council members expressed themselves in approval.

Randalls to Buy Portland Race Track

PORTLAND (AP)—Jack and Robert Randall, Vancouver, said here today they have an option on Portland Meadows race track and hope to get control by May 2.

"There are some loose ends" still, Robert Randall said, adding ownership of the stock of Mrs. William P. Kyne and of the California Jockey Club is under option and they have been named acting managers.

Facing Trial, Montreale Drops Dead

MONTREAL (CP)—A 35-year-old man charged with the attempted murder of his father collapsed and died today as he was about to be taken to court for preliminary hearing.

The death of Jacques Allard was believed from natural causes. He collapsed as he was to be placed in a van for transportation from Bordeaux jail to the downtown courthouse. Allard was alleged to have shot at his father, Ovide, last Wednesday. The shot missed.

Hungary Knot With Russia Tightened

MOSCOW (AP)—Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar signed two agreements in the Kremlin tonight binding Hungary to the Soviet Union even more closely than before—and without any promise of the withdrawal of Soviet forces.

N.Y. Commuters Hit By Rail Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Trains of the Hudson and Manhattan Railway stopped operating today, signalling the start of a strike affecting some 65,000 daily commuters from New York and New Jersey.

A walkout by five unions of non-operating employees hit commuters in New York and Newark, Hoboken and Jersey City, N.J.

U.K. STRIKE END SEEN,
EMPLOYERS MEET UNION

LONDON (CP)—Employers of 1,000,000 striking industrial workers today agreed for the first time to negotiate directly with union leaders on their demands for a 10-per-cent wage increase. The employers' decision, announced in the House of Commons, raised hopes that the crippling work stoppage, affecting Britain's vital exports, might be settled soon.

Cyprus
Bishop
Freed

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain today freed exiled Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus and said talks on the colony's future will be held with him and other Cypriot representatives.

The government also offered terrorist leader Greek Col. George Grivas safe conduct out of Cyprus.

Makarios, leader of the Greek Cypriot movement for union with Greece, was deported a year ago to the Seychelle Islands for refusing to condemn terrorism.

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd told the House of Commons Makarios will be free to go anywhere except Cyprus, and passage from his Indian island home of exile is being arranged immediately. Three other Greek Orthodox clerics detained with him are also being released, Lennox-Boyd said.

Britain last week offered to release Makarios if he called for cessation of the two-year-old campaign by the terrorist organization, Ethniki Organosis Kyprion Agoniston National Organization of Cypriot combatants.

The archbishop's reply, published here today, said it is his sincere desire to see peace restored in Cyprus.

"I appeal to the EOKA organization and to the British government as well," Makarios said.

Lennox-Boyd said in his statement that the state of emergency will not be lifted in Cyprus until Governor Sir John Harding feels it is safe to do so.

HOUSE PROROGUES THIS AFTERNOON

Power, Wenner-Gren Issues
Undecided as Session Ends

By PETER MURRAY
The newly-elected 25th Legislature of B.C. completed the business of its first session at 1:10 a.m. today and cleared the way for prorogation by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross this afternoon.

Two issues dominated the seven-week session—the Wenner-Gren agreement and Columbia River hydro—and both remained unsettled as the House rose shortly before 2:30 p.m.

The government did not make clear what concessions it intends to grant Swedish multi-millionaire Axel Wenner-Gren in a 40,000-square mile chunk of northern B.C., or whether public or private interests shall harness the mighty Columbia.

Apart from these two major themes the session was marked by battles over the Cassiar-Stewart Road, Sunday sport, aid to UBC, the Workmen's Compensation Board, and of course, "Cham's courthouses."

A new Municipal Act with some wide-reaching changes in local government was the most important single piece of legislation approved at the session. Other important bills introduced by the government included a new motor-vehicle code, changes in the B.C. mining industry and the $28 tax rebate for homeowners.

The session started Feb. 7 with a rare opening day debate which kept the lieutenant-governor waiting close to half an hour before reading the Speech from the Throne.

The Opposition took the occasion to protest the government's firing of former legislative Sergeant-at-Arms E. A. Jamieson over the Cassiar-Stewart road dispute, and law clerk W. Berkeley Monteith.

Mr. Monteith claimed that he was dismissed because he refused to contribute to Social party campaign funds.

The government countered that Mr. Monteith was replaced for acting on occasion as both legal adviser to the House private bills committee, and petitioners before the committee.

The session was also notable for something that was missing—the Sloan Forestry Commission report.

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan had hoped to complete his report by Dec. 1 in time for the session, but found he was unable to meet the deadline. He is still at work on the monumental task.

If the report recommends important changes in the present sustained yield program, it is Continued on Page 27

Hydro Talks
Open in May
At Washington

OTTAWA (CP)—Resources Minister Lesage said today the first Canada-United States meeting to discuss use of international rivers, including the Columbia, will be held in Washington in May.

The exact date was not given in his Commons announcement but said he will head the Canadian government delegation.

The meeting had been decided upon following agenda-setting talks between Canadian and American officials here March 19.

The Washington meetings will deal with future use for power development and so on of such international rivers as the Columbia in British Columbia and the St. John in New Brunswick.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) asked whether representatives of the B.C. government would take part in the discussions.

Mr. Lesage replied that while no B.C. representatives took part in the preliminary meeting here, one or two were in Ottawa at the time and officials of his department found it "very helpful" to get the B.C. view on various matters.

If the B.C. government wished to send representatives to Washington, so that federal officials might consult them during the May discussions, they would be "more than welcome."

'Red' Charges
Raised Again

WASHINGTON (AP)—Counsel for the Senate subcommittee says if Canada takes the position that Canadian diplomat E. N. Norman never has been a Communist, this is contrary to information the FBI has given the U.S. state department.

A new chapter in the Senate internal security subcommittee's investigation of Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt, was made public today in the wake of a sharp protest by the Canadian government against the inquiry.

The new material was given out in the face of a state department request that it not be released because it "might be damaging to our relations with Canada," Joseph Reap, department press officer, said in a statement.

No TV Licence Fee
In Recommendations

(Full Details of Fowler Report, Page 6)

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A multitude of changes in Canada's radio and television setup—including more Canadian TV—is recommended today in the report of the royal commission on broadcasting.

But no basic change in the structure of Canadian broadcasting is called for in the report of the three-man body headed by R. M. Fowler of Montreal.

It proposes a new supervisory system for broadcasting, different in name but not in function from the present one.

The federal government's single-station policy for TV is about ready for abandonment, the commission said, an innovation that would bring two stations to some viewing areas under certain conditions.

A new method of financing would be launched for the CBC—

to give it financial stability for operation and development over five years at a stretch—with the main funds coming out of Parliament's general revenues.

These public funds would amount to some $470,000,000 over the coming six years.

There would be no licence fee on TV or radio receivers, though the present 15-per-cent excise tax on receivers would continue, to be used for capital expansion. It now goes into CBC operating revenues.

Signposts for the Next Decade

Recommendations of the commission are merely advisory to the federal government but are expected to provide signposts for federal action on broadcasting in the next decade. The royal commission spent a year on the study.

No action on any of the proposals in the 150,000-word report is looked for at the present Parliament, expected to dissolve within a fortnight for a general election in June.

As a fundamental concept for its whole report, the commission was firm in its recommendation that Canada's broadcasting combination of publicly-owned and privately-owned broadcasting facilities should be maintained.

But it had a variety of suggestions including these:

1. Enforcement of broadcast regulations should be tightened and its proposed "board of broadcast governors" should not hesitate to cancel station licences for flagrant violations.
2. Development of more live Canadian programs should be encouraged on radio and TV.
3. The CBC's French-language service should be extended.
4. There should be tougher standards for the program performance of private stations.
5. The CBC might abandon its Dominion radio network—secondary to the trans-Canada—which is made up of about 50 private stations taking programs from a Toronto CBC pulpit.
6. The commission said that half the CBC's television service would be in color by 1963, and it estimated a start on color two years from now.

New Board of Broadcast Governors

On the more immediate question of how broadcasting is to be regulated—a top issue in commission hearings through 5½ months last year—the commission proposed a shuffling and redefinition of functions now split between the 11-man CBC board of governors and the CBC management.

It proposed to set up a new "board of broadcast governors" distinct from the CBC and having supervisory authority over all broadcasting, including the CBC and private broadcasters.

Under this proposal, the whole 15-man personnel of the new board would be part-time, with the chairman getting $10,000 a year and the vice-chairman $5,000. Present full-time chairman of the CBC board of governors is A. D. Dunton, at $22,500.

The commission called for a new post of president of the CBC along with a general manager, which it now has, with their salaries to be set by the cabinet. Evident candidates for the presidency and general management would be Mr. Dunton and the present general manager, J. A. Ouimet.

Under the commission's proposals, the CBC would retain a strong measure of control over private stations. It could continue to demand that programs considered necessary to national service be carried by private stations.

But the board of broadcast governors would have over-riding Continued on Page 6

HIGHLIGHTS

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of recommendations of the Fowler royal commission on broadcasting in its report issued today:

Appointment of a "board of broadcast governors" responsible for supervising all broadcasting in Canada, under Parliament.

Elimination of the present CBC board of governors, which now supervises operations of both the CBC and private stations.

The CBC would retain authority to direct private stations in the use of its "national service."

The federal government's policy of single-station TV operation in viewing areas should soon be abandoned but second stations should meet rigorous performance standards.

Federal treasury would contribute about $470,000,000 over the next six years to finance CBC expansion and operations, largely for TV.

There would be no licence on TV or radio receivers.

Yield from a 15 per cent excise tax on radio and TV receivers—now going to the CBC for operations—would be used for capital purposes.

Canada's system of combining publicly and privately-owned broadcasting should be maintained.

Enforcement of broadcast regulations should be tightened. The regulatory body should not hesitate to cancel station licences for flagrant violations.

Development of more live Canadian programs should be encouraged, in both radio and TV.

The commission suggested the CBC abandon its Dominion radio network (Dominion is a secondary network).

Victoria Excluded From Metro Plan

The provincial government did not have the Greater Victoria area in mind when it drew up the "metro" provisions of the new Municipal Act.

This was indicated by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black when he told the legislature Wednesday night.

"Metro is not the answer in Greater Victoria in my humble opinion. Their answer is amalgamation."

Mr. Black was answering questions by P.A. Gibbs (Lib. Oak Bay) on the metropolitan area plan spelled out in the new Municipal Act.

It became clear that the only area in the province likely to be encouraged by the province to enter a form of metropolitan union is the Lower Mainland.

The act provides that the minister may direct the councils of two or more adjacent municipalities to set up a joint committee to study metro. The minister may "resolve any conflicts or inconsistencies in the report and order a referendum."

A metropolitan government would be set up if a majority of the voters in each of two-thirds in number of the municipalities involved approve the plan.

TOO SMALL.

The government feels that Greater Victoria is too small an area to support both local councils and a super-council as provided under metro.

Under amalgamation all local councils would merge into one. Amalgamation is provided for under section 25 of the new Municipal Act which states that when councils of two or more adjoining municipalities have each passed a resolution favoring union, the cabinet will bring it about.

But the initiative must come from the individual municipalities and not the minister, as under the metro plan.

Municipalities comprising the much larger area of the Lower Mainland would best have their interests looked after by metro, than complete amalgamation, the government feels.

Mr. Black said the Lower Mainland situation had been juggled about for the last four years and "leadership" is needed there.

He denied a claim by Mr. Gibbs that he was given "dictatorship powers" under the new act.

"I have no idea to push anyone at all," Mr. Black said.

An education program will be carried out to persuade Lower Mainland citizens of the value of metro government, Mr. Black said.

"The people must be told the truth," he said. "We must not say metro will mean lower taxes because in some cases they will be increased."

KILLERS HUNTED IN DESERT

Paper Trail Left By Kidnap Victim

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Government officials said today troops and police have picked up a paper trail left by a pretty American woman kidnapped by bandit tribesmen who killed her husband and another United States official.

Government sources said they believe the band of about 12 nomads kidnapped Mrs. Anita Huovar Carroll, 35, of Issaquah, Wash., in itself her on the Arab coasts of the Persian Gulf and the Gulf of Oman.

More than 1,000 Iranian troops and police were reported closing in on the bandits, fleeing across the Tang-e-Kheh Desert of south-eastern Iran. There was speculation they might be trying to escape into Pakistan.

Reports reaching the capital said the search force had found little pieces of paper thrown away by Mrs. Carroll as she was forcibly taken away. The reports said the hunters found the paper trail useful in their pursuit.

The slain Americans, Iranian officials said, were Mrs. Carroll's husband, Kevin, 37, development adviser for Kerman, Iran, and Brewster A. Wilson, 35, of Portland, Ore., a regional specialist for the Near East Foundation.

CBC Single-Channel TV Policy Near End

OTTAWA (CP) — The Fowler commission of broadcasting today proposed stiff conditions for the licensing of two or more television stations in any given area.

The commission's report said the time "has come, or is near at hand," when the government's "single-channel" policy — the licensing of only one TV station in any city — should be abandoned.

But before this is done, the commission said, regulations should be passed to ensure that the programming of a second station will not be "substantially poorer" than that now offered by the national network.

Looking at the future of television in Canada, the three-man royal commission headed by R. M.

Private Radio Hails Plan For New Control

QUEBEC (CP) — The Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters in a statement today said the Fowler commission report indicated recognition of the "important position" of private broadcasting in recommendations for a new broadcast governing body as well as licensing of competitive TV stations.

The statement was issued by the CARTB board of directors following the first published summary of the commission's report.

sponse to queries that Undersecretary Christian A. Herter took that stand in a letter to sub-committee chairman James Eastland (Dem.-Miss.).

The department, after the Canadian protest, had said allegations in the hearing "do not represent opinions of the United States government."

The sub-committee made public additional testimony taken behind closed doors March 21 from John K. Emmerson, counsellor of the U.S. Embassy at Beirut, Lebanon. Emmerson first was questioned about Norman at a secret sub-committee hearing March 12. The testimony was made public two days later and L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, protested that the transcript contained "slanders" against Norman.

Widow's Life Extended 2 Years, Crown Admits

LONDON (CP) — Counsel for Dr. John Bodkin Adams today drew an admission from a Crown medical expert that the rich old lady Adams is accused of drugging to death lived longer than might be normally expected after suffering a stroke.

Dr. Arthur Henry Douthwaite agreed under cross-examination that the wealthy widow "exceeded the reasonable prognosis of her expectation of life" by at least two years.

Earlier, defence counsel disclosed that the 81-year-old patient was given injections of morphine even before Adams took over the case and suggested she might have already been a drug addict.

Douthwaite, steadfastly critical of morphine and especially heroin in treating strokes in elderly persons, agreed that the doctor on the spot had an advantage in making a "prognosis" of a case.

Defence counsel insisted "you can't worry about drug addiction" if the life expectancy is short. But the expert contended: "I have said previously that
